G-Men Study Nazi Bund's Aim as Paper Charges Plot

Cummings Orders F.B.I. Report; Reich Embassy Repudiates Leader.

Denies Fuehrer Backs Movement

'U. S. Hitler' Indignant at Story He Plans Revolution.

Attorney General Cummings has ordered an intensive investigation of Nazi activities in this country, J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Investigation, announced last night in Portland, Oreg.

Hoover said his men expected to compile an "extended report on the Nazi matter."

"I can't say when we will be ready to give this report to the Attorney General," the G-Men chief told the Associated Press. "It will be several weeks, because we are going into this matter very thoroughly."

Six Weeks Behind Him.

Hoover's announcement came when his attention was called to demands from Congressional leaders for an investigation following publication by the Chicago Times of a copyrighted story asserting American Nazis are organizing secretly to seize the Government.

Demands Are Late.

"They are about six weeks behind in their demands," Hoover replied, "because six weeks ago the Attorney General called on us to start the investigation. It began at once."

The German Embassy here earlier last night vigorously denied the charge that the Amerikadeutcher (German-American) Bund, and its companion organization, the Deutcher Volksbund, are "integral parts of the Hitler movement in Germany."

"They are entirely excluded from the National Socialist movement in Germany," a spokesman for the Embassy said.

Asked if the leaders of the Nazi-American groups are "in frequent communication" with Berlin, as charged, the spokesman said the Embassy had "no knowledge" of such contacts. He admitted the possibility, however, since the American groups "can act independently" of the German body.

Cites Secret Inquiry.

The Times said the article resulted from "an exhaustive investigation of American Nazis" made by three of its reporters. The investigators, two of whom were accepted as members of the Nazi groups, "worked for many months both within and without the organizations," the paper said. Summing up, the Times article stated:

"The Times investigators found the German branch of fascism spreading throughout the Nation. Leaders of the movement say they will seize control of the United States, but not until 'the communist' revolution starts.

"The organization is an integral part of the Hitler movement in Germany. Leaders are in frequent communication with Berlin. Every method of modern propaganda is used to win converts to the cause."

Repercussions to the story echoed throughout the Nation and from Capitol Hill to the Wilhelmstrasse.

According to the Associated Press, Senators Borah (Republican), of Idaho and Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, declared Congress should investigate Nazi activities in the United States.

"On the first day of the next session, special or regular," Burke

Mrs. Harold Dahl whose husband was captured by insurgents.

Wife's Letter Touches Franco With Pleas Phrased in Quaint Spanish; Fascist Chief Willing to Exchange Dahl for a Loyalist Captive.

By the Associated Press.

Burgos, Spain, Sept. 9.—A young American wife's written plea of "please don't destroy my happiness" won a promise of life and freedom today for her imprisoned aviator husband.

Insurgent Generalissimo Franco read her letter, studied the picture of herself which she enclosed, and decided to exchange 28-year-old Harold Dahl, of Champaign, Ill., war pilot, for any insurgent aviator held captive by the Spanish government.

Mrs. Dahl wrote from her temporary residence in Cannes, France, asking life and freedom for her husband, whose Spanish government war plane was shot down behind insurgent lines July 12.

In quaint, studied Spanish she addressed Franco as "Chief of Fascism," a term Franco dislikes.

What offset the mistake was Mrs. Dahl's picture—a photograph of a tall, beautiful, young American girl with blond hair and sparkling eyes.

C. I. O. Enlists 170,000 Cast Off by A. F. L.

Expelled W. Va. Federation Chartered Under Lewis Policy.

Brophy Expects Other States Will Turn From 'Dictators.'

By William V. Nessly.

John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization yesterday took into its fold the entire West Virginia Federation of Labor, heretofore affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and made plans to issue charters to C. I. O. forces in other States where the A. F. of L. has insisted on ousting unions favorable to the Lewis organization.

Thus was advanced the program announced by the C. I. O. last March to set up throughout the country its own State, city and central organizations paralleling the set-up maintained for many years by the A. F. of L.

Other Groups Set Up.

In all cases, however, the C. I. O. is leaving it to the A. F. of L. to do what the C. I. O. calls the "splitting" of the organizations. Whenever a State federation is controlled by the C. I. O. forces it is the Lewis plan to maintain the status quo, leaving it to the Green forces to withdraw and set up their own organization, if they choose. Where the Green forces control a State or central or city body, however, the C. I. O. is leaving it to the A. F. of L. to expel the C. I. O. workers. Then the C. I. O. will charter the latter into their own local union or council.

Yesterday was the first time an entire State federation went to the C. I. O. from the national federation headed by William Green, but already the C. I. O. has chartered industrial union councils in Montana and Wisconsin, embracing the unions, favorable to Lewis, which had been ordered ousted by the Green organization.

In addition a joint industrial union council has been chartered for Arkansas and Oklahoma to rival the State federations there. Further carrying out the program announced in March, councils have been set up, also, in more than 60 cities and counties, where action has been taken by the A. F. of L. to expel forces backing Lewis in his rivalry with Green for leadership of American labor.

The West Virginia body, representing 170,000 organized workers, it was announced yesterday by John Brophy, C. I. O. director, will be chartered under the name of the West Virginial Industrial Union Council. The decision followed a conference here between Brophy and John B. Easton, president of the State federation.

Brophy and Easton severely criticized the A. F. of L. in separate statements.

"What we in West Virginia want to know," Easton said, "is how Mr. Green can reconcile his oft-repeated talk about democratic rule, and against forcing the will of a minority on a majority, with his action in this instance. The West Virginia Federation of Labor, not merely by a majority but by the action of the entire group of 661 delegates, unanimously rejected Green's order to expel the C. I. O. local unions. As we in West Virginia see the picture, the A. F. of L. executive council is seeking to make federations of labor and central bodies its catspaw to enforce minority rule."

He predicted that "many more federations and central bodies are

Mason-Dixon Line Is Plainly Visible To Airline Pilots

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Often discussed as an imaginary line, but actually surveyed by two Englishmen, the Mason-Dixon Line has been located from the air by pilots flying between Chicago and Washington.

W. H. Proctor, veteran American Airlines pilot, said tonight he first noticed the line about a year ago as he flew near Cumberland, Md. Subsequent investigation disclosed its identity. It appears, Proctor said, as a miniature highway, cutting through the heavily wooded land.

Charles Mason and Jeremia Dixon, two British surveyors, cut a narrow path through the wooded wilderness between the colonies of Maryland and Pennsylvania in 1767 while surveying the boundaries of the two territories, establishing the line which later acquired fame as the division of the free and slave States in Civil War days.

Shanghai, (Friday), Sept 10.—Inspired Chinese armies today stopped dead in its tracks on three fronts Japan's mighty military invasion.

The great Japanese offensive at Shanghai, started five days ago, withered under a series of Chinese counter-attacks. A Japanese army spokesman admitted it might be ten days or more before it could be resumed as a major operation.

In North China, Gen. Kiyoshi Katsuki's drive southward along the Tientsin-Nanking Railway toward Shantung Province also ran into stone-wall Chinese resistance and was changed into a defensive operation.

The same was true southwest of Peiping along the Peiping-Hankow Railway.

Chinese Retreat on Railway.

It was only in the vital Peiping-Suiyan Railway area, northwest of Peiping, that the Japanese continued to roll forward—and even there its movement was slow and Chinese were prepared for a mighty battle in northern Shansi Province.

There were indications Lieut. Gen. Iwane Matsui, commanding the 75,000 Japanese troops here, and Lieut. Gen. Count Juichi Terauchi, former imperial war minister and supreme commander of 100,000 Nipponese soldiers in the north, were being forced to revise their war estimates.

Foreign military attaches believed Japan's 175,000 troops in this country may have to be reinforced to a total of 250,000 men—near the entire strength of the Japanese regular army—before the ambitious plan of Nipponese conquest can be started toward real fruition.

Potassium Study Cuts Earth's Age By Billion Years

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP).—Chemists with new methods of measuring the age of the earth reported to the American Chemical Society here today the earth is younger than science has believed by a billion years. The estimate was based on the amount of potassium stored in rocks. The discovery was announced by Dr. E. Keith Brewer, of the U. S. Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, Washington.

Developments in Europe

Growing tension in a Europe divided into opposing Fascist and Communist blocs was given added impetus yesterday by a series of grave developments.

Italy and Germany refused to attend a conference in Switzerland called to consider methods of dealing with submarine "piracy" in the Mediterranean.

Great Britain and France went ahead with plans to use their warships and those of seven other European powers to stamp out the Mediterranean attacks.

Premier Mussolini refused to answer a second Soviet protest accusing Italy of the submarine attacks, and Italy and Russia appeared on the verge of a diplomatic break.

France accused her military ally, Russia, of a "diplomatic blunder" in sending the protests to Rome. A rift in the Franco-Russian relationship seemed a probability.

The League of Nations Council prepared to meet at Geneva to struggle with undeclared wars in Spain and China.

Democracies of the world were scathingly attacked by two of Nazidom's highest spokesmen at the Nazi Party's congress at Nurnberg, Germany.

U. S. 'Personages' Berated by Goebbels; Jew-Ridden Press Called 'Scourge.'

By the Associated Press.

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 9.—National socialism's annual congress heard the democracies of the world vigorously berated today by two of Nazidom's highest spokesmen.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, fiery minister of propaganda, in the course of a vituperative attack on communism and the Spanish government, criticized the democracies and "some leading American political personages" who, he said, sympathized with the Madrid-Valencia regime.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, chief of the Nazi regime's press bureau, scathingly attacked the freedom of the press in Western democratic nations.

These two speeches effectively disposed of reports that speakers before the congress had been ordered not to attack the democratic nations in order to spare embarrassment for their representatives who are to visit the congress tomorrow.

Hails New Europe.

Goebbels declared a new Europe is being formed "for which we will fight to the last breath" against communism. He warned Europe and especially the democracies that "Spain is the world's crossroads."

Goebbels' speech came a few hours after Germany had decided she would not sit down with other powers at a conference to discuss the dangerous Mediterranean situation if Soviet Russia, which accused

Il Duce Decides To Reject All Soviet Notes

Refuses 'Initiative' in Breaking Relations as Tension Grows.

By the United Press.

Rome, Sept. 9.—Diplomatic relations between Italy and Russia were at the breaking point tonight when it was announced officially Italy will not reply to the Soviet's second note charging Italian submarines with Mediterranean terrorism.

So far as the Mediterranean issue is concerned diplomatic relations have been broken already, observers said.

Fascist officials, obviously aware of an impending rupture in diplomatic relations, said "Italy never will take the initiative in such a move" even though the Soviet note is to be ignored.

Diplomats viewed the Italian announcement with extreme forebodings, pointing out that under the conduct of international affairs Russia must—for the sake of her prestige — take immediate recourse against such an outright rebuff.

Soviet Envoy Absent.

The Italian communique, announcing Premier Mussolini's decision, said:

"The Italian government will not reply to the second Soviet note regarding the Mediterranean incidents which was remitted yesterday morning. Count Galeazzo Ciano, the minister of foreign affairs, will leave unanswered any other Soviet note which might be received in this connection."

London, Sept. 9.—Great Britain and France determined on force tonight as the only protection left for their Mediterranean shipping after Italy and Germany jointly had refused to attend tomorrow's "anti-piracy" conference in Switzerland.

Anglo-French unity was cemented strongly by the sharp cleavage with the Fascist powers on the eve of what may prove one of the most vital meetings in Europe's recent history.

Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler, bluntly rejecting invitations to the Switzerland conference, charged Britain and France with permitting the reign of submarine terrorism to develop.

In their answers delivered to London and Paris late today, the two dictators said they could not sit in any conference attended by Russia, which has "insulted" Italy with "infamous charges" that Fascist submarines are responsible for the Mediterranean attacks.

Cites Attack on Leipsig.

Germany's note added:

"The German reply to the invitation to the Mediterranean conference must record that the German government, taking a similar initative a few months ago, encountered an attitude adopted by the French and British governments which is not apt to encourage Germany's confidence in any new collective agreements in this field.

"Although after grave attacks against the armed ship Deutschland binding pledges were undertaken concerning the treatment of such aggression, the British and French governments were not in a position to show even a minimum of solidarity with Germany in connection with a torpedo attack on the cruiser Leipzig which followed immediately."

Hitler and Mussolini agreed to collaborate on ending the Mediterranean attacks on merchant shipping if the crisis is dealt with by the London nonintervention committee.

Discard "Quarantine."

That proposal, however, was politely but firmly rejected, and Britain and France proceeded with plans for the use of their warships for "punitive action" to safeguard Mediterranean shipping.

They agreed to discard a "preventive plan"—a system of restricted areas in which submarines would be forbidden—that would have been proposed had Germany and Italy attended the conference.

The use of warships called for organization of a nine-power international fleet with orders to sink any submarine threatening a neutral merchantman. Besides the men-of-war of Britain and France, the international fleet would include those of the other seven nations participating in the parley—Greece, Turkey, Yugoslavia, Soviet Russia, Egypt, Rumania and Bulgaria.

French Foreign office officials said they already had received assurances from Turkey and Greece of their support for patrols covering shipping lanes off their coasts.

[France and Britain, anxious to repudiate suspicions they are organizing an anti-Fascist front, have agreed to ask Germany and Italy t

Federal Control Still in Infancy, Landis Asserts

'We Must Live With the Corporation and Conquer It,' He Comments.

Federal control of corporations has only begun, James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, said yesterday in an interview on the eve of his formal resignation.

"We must live with the corporation and conquer it, rather than let the corporation conquer us," Landis said.

"The commission forces institutions to live up to their pretensions, and by full disclosure of their operations educates the public and investors on what to buy without in any way telling them."

Landis, who will become dean of the Harvard Law School this month, about the time of his thirty-eighth birthday—September 25—disclosed an extensive program still to be pursued by the SEC. He also indicated he will answer the charges made by the New York Stock Exchange, that due to Federal regulation the market's firmness is threatened, before he resigns early next week.

Fleeing Bandits Abandon Slain Leader's Body

Texas Outlaws Win Battle With Posse After Policeman Is Killed.

By the United Press.

Jena, La., Sept. 9.—Two companions of Goldy Hairston, 33, a Texas badman, fleeing after the murder of a policeman at Gulfport, Miss., dumped their leader's nude, bullet-torn body near here today.

Officers rushed to Vidalia, La., believed to be a hideout for the two remaining fugitives.

Members of the Louisiana identification department late today confirmed that the body found on a trash dump 3 miles east of Jena was that of Hairston. He was accused of fatally shooting Patrolman J. O. Wolff, who tried to question him in Gulfport Tuesday.

Federal agents, peace officers and armed posses from Georgia to Texas were mobilized with orders to shoot to kill the bandit trio after they machine-gunned their way clear of one posse near Gulfport Tuesday night. Hairston was believed fatally wounded in the battle.

With Hairston was a 28-year-old dapper companion in crime, believed to be Bobbie Campbell, who

Youth Drowned in Mid-Ocean, Washington Relatives Believe

Washington relatives last night were attempting to piece together the strange disappearance of McClelland Henry, 20-year-old son of the former attorney of the War Risk Insurance Board, believed to have fallen overboard in mid-Atlantic from the S. S. Duchess of Richmond last Sunday.

Henry, a graduate of Andover Academy and Eton in England, was on his way back to America after two years at Oxford. Last summer he spent several months in Washington with his parents, Judge and Mrs. Robert L. Henry, jr., of the Mixed Court of Alexandria, Egypt.

Well-known in Washington, where he lived while his father served with the War Department in 1919 and 1920, Henry was on his way to Lexington, Ky., where he was to spend this year with a brother.

Officials of the Canadian steamship line reported to John L. Coontz, of Washington, the boy's uncle, that Henry's disappearance was not noted until the boat docked at Quebec yesterday and the passenger list was checked.

Investigation showed he had not been seen since 4 a. m. Sunday. At that time, company officials are reported to have stated, the liner was approximately 1,300 miles from North America. Further details of the disappearance could not be immediately supplied.

Coontz, who lives at 2443 Fortieth street northwest, last night said he had communicated with the young man's mother, who said she had seen him off at Southampton when the boat sailed.

Bungo, 3-Ton Hippo, Gambols in New Pool After Straining 2 Trucks and Keeper's Nerves

Zoo's Daintiest Denizen Tests His Bath Water Before Swan Dive.

By Gerald G. Gross

The Government's rehousing program caught up with Bungo yesterday.

With a grunt, a splash and a beautific glance in the direction of his head keeper, the Zoo's 6,000-pound hippopotamus took over his quarters in the new pachyderm house at exactly 1:00 p. m., culminating an engineering feat that Goethals himself might have envied.

When Bungo, the merry widower, affably set down his four stumpy legs in the handsome cage and then plunged into his private tank, it marked the successful conclusion of a transfer plot months in the planning. Not until he was safely in the pool did Head Keeper William H. Blackburne and Acting Superintendent Ernest P. Walker uncross their fingers.

Never since his arrival at the Zoo in 1914 as a tiny 1-year-old weighing a mere 895 pounds had Bungo been away from his small tank and outdoor play pen at the lion house. Zoo officials, frankly, were quite concerned over the manner in which he would take to his new home, not to mention the problem of getting him into a crate and hauling the mammoth hulk a quarter-mile uphill to the pachyderm house.

A week ago they made their first move, setting the crate in Bungo's

Ambassador Aranha Admits Supplying Money for 1930 Brazilian Revolution

Funds Misused To Further Red Ideals, He Says

Ambassador Here Named by 'Extremist' in Rio Trial.

By the Associated Press.

Brazilian Ambassador Oswaldo Aranha said yesterday he had provided money to finance revolutionary activity in Brazil but declared he was "surprised" when the recipient declared he would appropriate the funds toward realization of his communistic ideals.

Luiz Carlos Prestes testified in Rio de Janeiro that an abortive communistic revolt in Brazil in 1935 was financed with money which "passed through the hands of" Aranha and Dr. Getulco Vargas, now president.

The money, Aranha pointed out, however, was given to Prestes in 1930, five years before the 1935 communist attempt.

"It is true," Aranha said, yesterday, "that in 1930 I sent, through the intervention of a firm in Montevideo suggested by Luiz Carlos Prestes, the sum of 1,000 contos (about $6,000).

"When he received that money, to the great surprise of myself and his closest aides, among whom were Juarez Tavora, Siqueira Campos, Juan Alberto, Miguel Costa, Stilac Leal and others, Prestes attempted to impose extremist ideals on the movement. On being turned down, he declared to all those officers, his companions, who had gone to see him in Buenos Aires where he was in exile, in an effort to bring him to reason, that he was communist and would appropriate that sum toward the realization of his ideals.

"That money had been received by me from contributions of comrades in all Brazil and, as I was then secretary of the Rio Grande government, I can affirm that the treasury of that state did not contribute in the slightest amount to that fund or to defray the expenses of the revolution."

Aranha said Prestes, after pretending to espouse the revolutionary cause of 1930 which culminated in placing President Vargas in power, openly avowed his communistic aims after receiving the funds to finance his part of the revolution.

Confirming that the money Prestes received had passed through his hands, Aranha said it was money contributed by comrades of Prestes and sent to Prestes in 1930. It was this money, Aranha said, which Prestes appropriated for his communistic plans, and which he may have used five years later to attempt to overthrow the cause which, Aranha said, Prestes had once pretended to support.

U. S. to Buy Loans To Cotton Growers

Jones said the banks may sell notes to the Commodity Credit Corporation at any time prior to next July 31. The loans, he said, must be made in accordance with R. F. C. requirements.

Lewis' C.I.O. Charters W. Va. State Federation Of 170,000 Which Green Expelled From A.F.L.

going to follow the example of the West Virginia federation."

Brophy said:

"The C. I. O. has from the first made every effort to preserve the utility of the organized labor movement. But the action of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in ordering State and city central bodies to expel affiliates of the C. I. O. compelled us to take steps to protect our organizations by issuing charters to industrial union councils in cases where the A. F. of L. officials acted to split the movement . . .

"The A. F. of L. executive council is now pushing its splitting tactics in nearly every State and city in the country and the C. I. O. will be compelled to charter many more industrial union councils in the near future."

Declaring the A. F. of L. action "particularly glaring" in the West Virginia case, Brophy said that in that State 92 per cent of the workers are in C. I. O. unions or in close sympathy with the C. I. O.

In numerous States the rivalry between the two big labor groups is nearing a critical stage in the State-wide organizations.

Massachusetts likely will see a C. I. O. State council chartered there, comprising the textile, rubber, electrical and radio, ladies' garment, Amalgamated Clothing, and gas and coke workers who are lined up with the Lewis forces. The council would operate as a rival to the State federation.

In Pennsylvania, a majority within the State federation is claimed by the C. I. O., though craft workers of the A. F. of L. are strong in Philadelphia and other cities.

Colorado is reportedly presenting a peculiar problem for the A. F. of L., since the State federation is said to be in the hands of the C. I. O. forces, while the A. F. of L. is scheduled to hold its national convention in Denver next month. C. I. O. circles yesterday predicted that Green would move to set up a rival federation of craft unions in Colorado.

In Georgia the State federation, at its convention last spring, was controlled by the C. I. O. forces, who re-elected as State president Steve Nance, organizer for the C. I. O. Green, however, sent Francis J. Dillon to Georgia to take over the reins of the organization and Dillon led a portion of the delegates from the convention hall and held a separate convention.

Issuance of a C. I. O. charter for a council in Connecticut was predicted yesterday following word that the State federation plans to expel Lewis sympathizers.

Swift action also was forecast in issuing industrial union council charters to C. I. O. unions in all other States as rapidly as Green's order for expulsion of the C. I. O. followers from State federations may be complied with.

A. F. L. Refuses Dock Workers' Offer of Peace

C. I. O. Proposes Vote to Settle Jurisdictional Row on Coast.

By the Associated Press.

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Representatives of A. F. of L. teamsters rejected tonight an offer of C. I. O. longshoremen and warehousemen to settle a jurisdictional fight threatening waterfront paralysis here. Both sides called sessions to map future strategy.

Approval of the teamsters was necessary to start the peace plan under which the National Labor Relations Board would have intervened to determine by vote whether warehousemen wished C. I. O. or A. F. of L. affiliation.

The teamsters, claiming jurisdiction over warehousemen not working directly on the waterfront, have refused to handle dock cargoes here and in Oakland until the warehousemen allegedly organized by the C. I. O. return to the A. F. of L. fold. The embargo is ten days old here and started Wednesday in Oakland.

John P. McLaughlin, head of the teamsters here, rejected the longshoremen-warehousemen vote proposal.

"We will not submit to any such one-sided vote," he said.

Ordered to Keep Mouth Shut.

Johnstown, Pa., Sept. 9 (U.P.).—A former member of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation employe representation plan told the National Labor Relations Board today that he was ordered to "keep your mouth shut" when he attempted to obtain wage increases for Bethlehem steelworkers.

The witness, George Fetzko, appeared at the second session of the hearing, the result of charges brought by John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization that Bethlehem dominated its ERP and otherwise sponsored antiunion activities in violation of the Wagner act.

Witness Threatened.

Gadsden, Ala., Sept. 9 (AP).—Apprehension expressed by union officials for safety of a witness today brought an order for a special session at Birmingham, Ala., tomorrow of the National Labor Relations Board hearing of a complaint against the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., of Alabama, union officials said.

Grady Cleere, described as a former Goodyear "company deputy," reportedly was threatened today as he was leaving his hotel.

Landon Assails 'Carpetbagging' Court Tactics

Declares 'Amendment Only Way to Change Judiciary.'

By the Associated Press.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 9.—Alf M. Landon, declaring "it is not democracy to do away with the judiciary by carpetbagging methods," said here tonight a "remedy" is at hand—"amend the Constitution, if that is the will of the people."

The Republican nominee for president last year, in a speech prepared for delivery before the national convention of the Phi Delta Phi, legal fraternity, said of President Roosevelt's court reform plan, "on a matter so fundamental, there must be a common ground on which all can meet."

He said America has "just witnessed a practical demonstration" of the "effectiveness" of this nation's "theory of government."

"The Constitution is a great charter of liberty under law," Landon said. "It has served us well during a century and a half of progress without parallel in the history of the world. Nevertheless, it is not unchangeable."

Change Right Assured.

"In any government, where men and women are free, they must have the right to change their form of government. Otherwise, they would not be free. The Constitution itself contemplates change. It provides methods of amendment by the people.

"Its great principles, like the receipts of the Ten Commandments, do not change. But its genius lies in its flexibility. Over and over again, the Supreme Court has held that the principles of an ordered liberty under the law must be applied to conditions as they are today, not as they were yesterday."

Landon said "the people must be the only power above the judiciary if our democracy is to survive."

"When any group tries to rush important changes into our Government, when important facts are misstated or significant information is withheld, or thoughtful deliberation is shut off in the name of emergency, the public has a right to be suspicious," he continued.

At another point the former Kansas governor said: "The conflict between the President and the Congress or between Congress and the Supreme Court . . . has a wholesome retarding effect." It leads, he said, to "legislation carrying out the final decision of the people."

Spinal Fluid Test Held Indicative of Crime Tendencies

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Two Chicago doctors said tonight nine years' research led them to believe they could determine whether a criminal has a "confirmed repeater" by examining spinal fluid extracts.

The doctors, S. W. Brownstein, of the board of health, and M. H. Levy, of the Cook County Jail staff, said microscopic examination of spinal extracts of criminals disclosed a ratio between tendencies to re-enter a life of crime and an abnormal cell count.

Ex-Athlete Is Held As Mass Poisoner

Roswell, N. Mex., Sept. 9 (AP).—Carl Holden, 26-year-old former New Mexico Teachers College athlete, was ordered held on $25,000 bond late today on charges of attempting to poison Ernest Langenegger, prominent cotton planter at Hagerman.

Five other members of the Langenegger family were sickened in an apparent plot at mass poisoning. Holden was a farm hand on the Langenegger ranch. Police had uncovered no motive.

Parents Doubt Lost Girl Is Alive

Oak Grove, Ark., Sept. 9 (AP).—Distracted parents of 4-year-old Florence Jackson, who disappeared Monday in the Ozarks, near here, all but abandoned hope today of finding her alive.

Six hundred searchers turned up only one new clew to her whereabouts as they tramped through heavy undergrowth, drenched by rain. One party found a fragment of Florence's blue-checked dress, caught on briars. It was about 2 miles from the spot where her shoes and socks were discovered yesterday under a tree. The hunt centered in wild country, known to harbor timber wolves.

Uruguay Plunger Loses $300,000 but Keeps Gambling

Biarritz, France, Sept. 9 (AP).—Amleto Battisti, of Uruguay, who came to win $1,000,000 at baccarat and remained to play "in the red," announced today the offer of a new stake from one Argentinian, but he had the prospect of a nemesis in another—a cool, blonde senora.

Battisti said he probably had lost about $300,000 on the system he hopes will regain the $1,000,000 he lost in 1929.

Blue-eyed and ash-blonde Senora Peresha Cortina Solzetra, of Argentina, who eschews systems and claims to be a novice, said "voices" directed her playing, which kept croupiers busy handling her heavy winnings.

"But I still have confidence in my system," declared Battisti. He added that he believed he had "plenty" to continue banking the game without calling on friends for help.

Fugitive Taylor's Murder Case Continued for 8th Time

Criminal Justice Group Is Studying Court's Delays Since 1935.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

For the third time since a $2,000 bond was ordered forfeited on July 17—and for the eighth time since 1935—the case of Albert Taylor, fugitive rum runner and second degree murder suspect, was continued in District Court yesterday.

Justice Jesse Adkins gave Bondsman Louis Weinstein until October 1 to produce Taylor in court or forfeit the long-standing bond. In July, Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in a special session of criminal court, ordered the forfeiture, but agreed to "keep the term of court open" for 30 days.

Later, the case was presented to Justice James M. Proctor and he granted another continuance by extending the term of court—this time until September 15.

Claims New Information.

Yesterday, however, Irving Goldstein, former Assistant United States Attorney, representing the bondsman, appealed for a third extension and was granted 15 days.

As long as the term of court is held open, it was explained, Bondsman Weinstein may recover his bail by producing Taylor in court and having the forfeiture order set aside. Goldstein told Justice Adkins yesterday "recent information" may lead to Taylor's apprehension by October 1.

Each time the strange case has been presented in court, it was learned, efforts have been made to secure hearings before different judges.

The Washington Criminal Justice Association, which recently uncovered similar evidences of apparent laxity in criminal court prosecutions, has been studying the Taylor case for several month.

Truck Killed Woman.

Taylor was arrested July 2, 1935, by agents of the Internal Rvenue Bureau. Allegedly driving a liquor-laden truck, he attempted to flee on foot and the driverless vehicle careened through Naylor's court southwest and struck Mrs. Annie Briscoe, 60-year-old colored woman, and a companion, Edna Chase. Mrs. Briscoe died of her injuries several hours later.

Although held by a coroner's jury and indicted on charges of second degree murder and violating the liquor tax act of 1934, Taylor has never been brought to trial. Five times before the bond was ordered forfeited, the case was continued in District Court.

Because witnesses against Taylor were absent from the city, his trial was postponed after the indictments were first returned. The murder case was called in September, 1936.

For two days the accused man sat in court awaiting trial. His case was not reached on the calendar until the third day. By that time Taylor had disappeared. No traces of his whereabouts have since been learned.

Police and Federal agents throughout the country have been on the lookout.

Before Justice O'Donoghue ordered the forfeiture, the case was discussed behind closed doors with Weinstein's attorney.

Later the same day, however, after the continuance, Justice O'Donoghue learned additional facts in the case—among them that Taylor was wanted for murder. He convened his court in special session, ordered the bond forfeited and assailed the delay in apprehending the fugitive.

Yesterday's extension of time was not opposed by United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett.

San Pedro, Calif., Sept. 9 (U.P.).—The Norwegian tanker John Knutsen was tied up at an oil terminal dock tonight by a sit-down strike of her 25 crew members, who refused to sail for the Orient because of the Sino-Japanese war.

Shove Saves Baby Grandson As Woman Plunges Into Pit

Grandmother Hurt Seriously as Section of Old Brick Sidewalk Collapses After Being Undermined by Water.

A grandmother, wheeling her 2-year-old grandson in a baby carriage along Third street southeast, was injured seriously yesterday when the sidewalk collapsed, dropping her into a hole of muddy water and bricks.

The injured woman, Mrs. Annie T. Buckey, 51, of 318 North Carolina avenue southeast, was reported in an undetermined condition at Providence Hospital last night. Physicians said she suffered a fractured rib, fractured left leg, internal injuries and shock.

The baby, Melvin Beck, also of the North Carolina avenue address, escaped injury.

The cave-in occurred as Mrs. Buckey was walking in the 200 block of Third street. She was plunged into a 4-foot hole, but managed to shove the baby carriage clear. Little Melvin rolled several feet down the sidewalk, shaken but unharmed.

Passersby dragged Mrs. Buckey from beneath a pile of mud and brick and she was taken to the hospital in a police car. Her first thoughts were of her grandson and insisted upon learning his whereabouts before permitting physicians to examine her.

The Third street sidewalk is constructed of brick. Residents of the block estimated it has been down 50 years. A few hours before the cave-in occurred, workmen repaired another dangerous spot less than two feet away.

A leaking water main was held responsible for the sidewalk collapse. The old walk, it was reported, was apparently undermined by seepage of water. The soil foundation, according to investigators, was washed away, leaving nothing to support the bricks.

Police closed the section of walk and warned pedestrians to use the opposite sidewalk.

Cancer Institute Construction Is Authorized

Other Projects 'Trimmed' by Treasury; Work to Start at Once.

The National Cancer Institute at Bethesda, Md., was among 319 public building projects selected yesterday by the Treasury and Postoffice departments to be paid for out of the $70,000,000 emergency fund authorized by Congress.

Only by last-minute "trimming" was it able to include the institute in this year's program, the Treasury said.

Architects will be assigned to drawing up plans for the buildings, from which the Nation will wage its first big fight against its second-biggest killer, and the project will "go forward immediately," according to the announcement.

As authorized by Congress, institute building and facilities will cost no more than $750,000. How much will be allocated to laboratories and how much to construction has not yet been worked out.

From Wilson Estate.

The building will be designed to fit in with buildings of the National Institute of Health already planned for the Bethesda center. It will be erected on land donated from the estate of Luke I. Wilson, Washington businessman, who was a victim of cancer, and who gave land for the other buildings.

An annual purchase of $200,000 worth of radium and administrative expenses totaling $500,000 per year were contained in the act.

The radium purchase will be made this year, but administration will cost no more than $200,000 for the remainder of the time, Treasury and health officials said.

To Name Six to Council.

Surgeon General Thomas Parran, who will return to Washington today, has said the radium would be bought as soon as the Treasury approved an allocation for it. It will be loaned to various States and hospitals.

Dr. Parran was awaiting Tresaury approval, he said recently, to announce appointments of six members to the National Advisory Cancer Council, which was created to supervise work of the institute.

Official announcement also will be made soon of the person chosen as active head of the institute. Dr. Carl Voeghtlin, of the National Institute of Health, is expected to be named. Dr. Voeghtlin has spent the summer studying cancer treatment in various European centers, and will return to Washington around September 30.

Children 'Love It' As 2 Fight Over Which Is Teacher

Groton, Conn., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Center Groton district school situation, where two teachers are doing the job of one, kept a furrow in the brow of Groton officialdom today, but it wasn't bothering the 22 boys and girls who spent their second day under dual instructions.

In fact, they "love it," according to Mrs. Hazel Bucklyn, one of the two teachers. Mrs. Bucklyn, the legal teacher in the eyes of Third District Committeeman Dudley Brown, and Miss Ellen Innes, who, School Superintendent S. B. Butler says is the teacher, have worked out a system to avoid duplication of effort.

Miss Innes conducts the class and Mrs. Bucklyn gives individual attention to the pubils.

The situation arose when Brown and Butler failed to agree on an appointeee for the Bucklyn-Innes room at the school and each named a teacher to the post.

'Miss North Dakota' Prefers the Farm

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

MAXINE PAGEL, who won the title of "Miss North Dakota," was missing from the line of beauties that paraded at Atlantic City yesterday. She was starting to school at Kansas City. Why? Because the company sponsoring her "told me I'd have to be photographed in bathing suits and getting in and out of bathtubs. I wouldn't do that," Maxine confided blushingly. She is shown above holding a vase of wheat she won in the North Dakota contest.

said, "I am going to introduce a resolution proposing a Senate committee investigation."

The Idahoan, who charged last session Nazi groups were training American youths in anti-American principles, said he deemed the matter "sufficiently important" to call for a special inquiry.

A demand for Congressional action was voiced by John J. Crim, national legislative chairman of the Army and Navy Union, according to the Associated Press.

Crim asserted his organization had found that "the swastika was displayed high above the American flag" in German-American Bund camps, and said he would propose Congress cancel citizenship of persons "preaching and advocating Naziism."

The Associated Press said official Germany received the newspaper charges "with mixed amusement and irritation."

Nazis Support Hull.

A spokesman for the foreign office said:

"You cannot emphasize too strongly that the German government fully supports Secretary of State Hull's recent statement regarding responsibilities of citizenship.

"We expect every German citizen of the United States to be a good German, but, at the same time, scrupulously to respect the laws of the country—just as we expect Americans in Germany to remain good Americans without meddling in German affairs."

The story likewise brought quick denials from German-American leaders.

According to the United Press, Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, described by the Daily Times as "The American Hitler," denied in New York his organization proposes to seize control of the United States.

The trio escaped from Gulfport and managed to cross the Mississippi River, possibly at Natchez, in an automobile stolen at Vivian, La.

Two cotton haulers found the body. They notified Sheriff Barlow Thompson, who believed the gunman had been dead about five hours.

Thompson said the two bullet wounds apparently were treated by an "experienced hand," and that possibly a hypodermic had been used. He surmised that a rural doctor who did not know Hairston's identity had given aid—or had been forced to.

Sen. Walsh Urges Quick Evacuation

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP).—The Worcester Evening Post, in a copyrighted article today, quotes United States Senator David I. Walsh, chairman of the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs, as vigorously asserting this country must keep out of war, and demanding Americans now in the China-Japanese war zone be evacuated as quickly as possible.

The paper said Senator Walsh declared the Federal Government, by providing the means of departure from the trouble area, was doing its full duty.

Red Error Helped Fascists Dodge Pirate Parley, French Charge

Paris Rightists Hope Rift With Soviet Is Near Official Spokesman Passes Strictures Upon Military Ally.

By the United Press.

Paris, Sept. 9.—France tonight accused Soviet Russia, her greatest military ally, of committing a "diplomatic blunder" that provided Italy and Germany with an excuse to escape from a showdown on the source of submarine attacks in the Mediterranean.

An official spokesman of the foreign office, admitting the Russian action has "given rise to one of the most confused situations in months," said that if Russia had not sent two notes to Rome demanding satisfaction for the sinking of two Soviet ships, the Nazi-Fascist powers could not have escaped attending tomorrow's Mediterranean conference.

The spokesman said France had no warning Russia intended to accuse Italy formally of submarine terrorism.

Eden, Delbos Confer.

The attack on Russia, interpreted by Rightists as perhaps heralding a breach in Franco-Soviet collaboration, was made shortly before the British foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, and the French foreign minister, Yvon Delbos, sat down together to arrange for tomorrow's conference.

France, it was apparent, is determined like Britain to organize a gigantic "international navy" to wage war on submarine "pirates" in the Mediterranean, regardless of the Italo-German boycott of the parley.

The cabinet met for three hours today and much of its discussion raged around the Russian "monkey wrench" thrown into the international machinery.

French diplomats insisted the Soviet notes were not the real reason underlying the Italo-German refusal to attend the Lake Geneva meeting.

Avoid "Showdown."

Government-controlled Agence Radio, regarded as a semi-official voice of the Quai d'Orsay, said the Italian explanations and those of Germany indicated the two powers refuse to be drawn into any "showdown" or the Mediterranean crisis.

"Obviously," Agence Radio said, "such a debate would strip Germany and Italy of benefits of many kinds they have expected to obtain from their interests in the Balearic Islands, Spanish Morocco and Spain as the price of their military support to the insurgents."

Meanwhile, fears of another government economic crisis brought heavy selling of the French franc, driving the currency to a new low in more than 10 years in relation to foreign currencies.

Deep pessimism in financial quarters over the future domestic situation accounted for the selling. The financial nervousness is traceable to the fact there has been no substantial recovery in natural production, considered essential to the improvement of France's economic position.

Schacht Hurriedly Quits Nazi Parley

Nurnberg, Germany, Sept. 9 (AP). Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, returned hurriedly to Berlin today, apparently without having patched up his reported differences with Chancellor Adolf Hitler, who was here for the Nazi party congress.

Observers said it was taken generally as a fact that these "differences" were more serious than any which have cropped up before. Schacht is reported to have demanded that the nation quit spending so much money on building and armaments and devote more raw materials to the export trade. The economics minister has been attempting to take advantage of rising world prices to increase exports in order to get foreign exchange while the time is ripe.

Japanese Protest 27 Ship Seizures

Tokyo, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Japanese government sent an urgent dual protest to Soviet authorities today against the seizure of 27 Japanese vessels, including the Korean gunboat Asakaze Maru.

The protest, urging the immediate release of the ships, was sent both to Moscow and Vladivostok. The Japanese vessels, mostly fishermen, were reported to have been detained at various times during the last week in waters of the Korean-Siberian coast.

held in military prison at Salamanca since July 13," she wrote.

"I received a letter from him two weeks ago. Since then I have heard nothing.

"I am writing you to explain that he was, and is, a neutral. He joined (government aviation forces) only to get money because there are too many pilots in the United States air force.

"We have been married only eight months. I am all alone. He flew only to get money for me.

"I know you are an intelligent man with a great heart and much courage. I promise you he will fight no more if you have the compassion to give him his freedom and send him back to me in France.

"This case was much discussed in America, but the United States is completely neutral and will not do anything for him except ask for his release."

"Victory Is So Near."

"Your victory is now so near that the life of one United States pilot could not mean very much to you. I promise he never will bear arms again.

"I trust your understanding.

"He has been out of the hospital only a few months after an appendicitis operation. I'm afraid prison life will kill him.

"I was an actress for many years and only now have I found my happiness. Please don't destroy it. Please answer my letter so I may know what to do and if I may hope.

"I have had no dealings with the Barcelona government. Any instructions you give me will be carried out faithfully."

Franco wasted no time with the problem, once he got the letter away from general staff officers, who were reluctant to give up the photograph.

The generalissimo wrote assurance he had neither need nor desire for the life of the young aviator who, he said, was in excellent health.

British, French Fleets to War On Subs Despite Fascist Stand

subscribe immediately to the decisions of the Mediterranean conference, the United Press said it had learned.

[British and French diplomats believed Italy and Germany might indorse the plan for an international war on "pirate" submarines if the matter were laid before them after the conference. Regardless of the Italo-German response to this compromise, Britain and France will proceed without further delay to establish the convoys, it was stated. —Editor's note.]

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden flew to Paris today and conferred on the Mediterranean crisis with French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, while a committee of naval experts drafted plans for the international fleet.

Although there were no new incidents of aggression against Mediterranean shipping, the French naval ministry, incensed over the shooting down of a French mail plane over Gijon, Spain, prepared a protest to the Spanish insurgents and ordered four destroyers from France's Atlantic fleet to bolster her full Mediterranean force.

Answering the proposal that the nonintervention committee handle the Mediterranean issue, Britain and France contended that the issues, involving the whole Mediterranean basin, were too large for the inactive neutrality committee and that speed was best served in Switzerland, where diplomats are gathered for the League of Nations sessions.

The immense importance that Britain attaches to the conference at Nyon was evident from the character of the British delegation, which included such men as Sir Robert G. Van Sittart, permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs, and Baron Chatfield of Ditchling, first sea lord of the admiralty and chief of the naval staff.

Bar Political Squabbles.

London countered Italy's rejection of the invitation with warnings that abstention laid Italy open to suspicion at least that she "is indifferent to Mediterranean policy."

British delegates were understood to have been instructed that no political squabbles be permitted to befog the issue at Nyon.

The situation left the democratic powers holding the whip after a long period of German and Italian diplomatic victories, with the Rome-Berlin axis standing aloof and no solution apparent for the Italo-Russian impasse.

Russia, after Italy's flat rejection of the charges in her first note, made a second sharp protest which Rome has refused to answer.

Italy of sinking her ships, would be there.

He declared the democracies were "deluding themselves" with the idea the Spanish insurgent cause was a bid for power by reactionary generals. He said that idea was the "devilish" work of Moscow.

He declared "Our warmest sympathies are with Gen. Franco" and added it was absurd for anyone to think Germany was trying to seize Spanish territory or implant Nazi principles there through support of the insurgent dictator.

Cites Leftist Atrocities.

Goebbels dwelt on bloody details of what he said went on in government Spain. He recounted stories of murder, rape, despoiling of churches and the killing of hostages. He went on:

"In view of these facts, it is perfectly incomprehensible that some church authorities should take Red Spain's side. All this might have happened with us except for Adolf Hitler. The churches ought to be everlastingly grateful to us."

Dietrich declared war on "destructive forces in the world press which have grown to be a real scourge of humanity. He said Jewish business interests were "anonymous wire-pullers trying to ensconce themselves behind the phraseology of 'freedom of the press' to continue their poisoning of peoples and fasification undisturbed."

Berlin, Sept. 9 (AP).—Prentiss B. Gilbert, American charge d'affaires, left here tonight by train to visit the Nazi Party congress at the invitation of Chancellor Adolf Hitler. In the same sleeper were the British Ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, and the Belgian Minister, Viscount Jacques Davignon. French Ambassador Andre Francois-Pincet also is scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning in Nurnberg. In previous years, invitations to the congress have been sidestepped by foreign diplomats and the acceptance this year was for one day only.

Large Tropical Storm Moves Toward Florida

Miami, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—A tropical disturbance, attended by winds of gale force, was located today by the Federal hurricane system 1,500 miles east-southeast of St. Martin in the Virgin Islands, moving in a west-northwesterly direction. The center of the disturbance was moving in the direction of the Florida East Coast.

Loyalists Swap Jibes With Rebels in France

Perpignan, France, Sept. 9 (AP). A train carrying 1,000 government supporters from Santander, recently occupied by insurgents, to government-held Catalonia, stopped briefly today beside a train bearing 100 rebel refugees from Catalonia to insurgent Spain, where they will fight for Gen. Francisco Franco.

While French police kept them apart, the Spaniards shouted at each other:

"We'll meet you on the battlefield."

Rebels Batter At Last Loyalist Port in North

Guns Pound Mountain Fortifications of Gijon; Planes Bomb City.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Sept. 9.—The guns of Spanish insurgency boomed tonight against the fortifications of Gijon, the government's last sea foothold on the northwestern ledge of Spain.

Misty rain hampered ground advances.

Insurgent field pieces pounded the "Covadonga line," new fortifications on mountains bordering the coast, after retreating government forces had made a sudden stand and killed more than 1,000 insurgent troops.

Aerial attacks on Gijon, which is about 30 miles west of the vanguard of Franco's main forces, also caused heavy damage.

The insurgents' coastal column passed Cape Prieto, just east of Ribadesella, where a government fortified line stands between it and the east bank of the Stella River, gateway to Gijon.

A central insurgent column was said to have "mopped up" scattered forces of government troops in the rugged mountains inland and to have massed its strength for a concerted attack with the coastal army at the Stella River.

Two other columns, one striking north from Oviedo and the other pressing eastward from Provia, established a junction. The operation completed the rapidly narrowing insurgent land ring, leaving Gijon's defenders encircled except for the sea at their backs.

him to the League of Nations meetings at Geneva tomorrow and Monday.

The second Russian note repeated the charges and demands of the first, delivered Monday—that Italian submarines sank two Soviet merchant ships in the Mediterranean, and that Russia demands indemnity and punishment of the guilty parties.

Italy answered the first note, rejecting both the charges and demands as an "intolerable insult."

Informs Paris, London.

Earlier today, Count Ciano, after long conferences with Il Duce, informed France and Great Britain Italy refused to attend tomorrow's Mediterranean conference at Lake Geneva, Switzerland, because of the presence of Russian delegates.

[In Moscow Soviet authorities charged Italy's refusal to attend the conference was "an open admission of guilt." They refused, however, to speculate on what course of action would be taken as result of Italy's announcement the second Soviet note to Rome would not be answered.—Editor's note.)

Germany issued a similar note.

London and Paris were told Italy, as an impotrant power, has followed and will continue to follow the Mediterranean situation with full attention "because she is interested directly and vitally in security and peace in this sea."

Glass Magnate Asked to Head Census of Idle

Election Machinery May Be Used; McNinch Opens FCC Inquiry.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt began work on his Constitution Day speech today after ordering a full investigation of the administration of the Federal Communications Commission.

He also gave some preliminary thought to a proposal to utilize the Nation's election machinery in carrying out the recently authorized unemployed "census," and asked John D. Biggers, of Toledo, Ohio, to direct the registration job.

Biggers, who is president of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co., will delay a reply until he has discussed the matter of leave with his company.

It was because of inability to obtain such leave that he recently turned down a membership on the Communications Commission.

The need for reorganizing this agency, torn with internal strife for months, was discussed by the President at luncheon with Frank R. McNinch, Federal Power Commission chairman, who has been given a temporary assignment on the Communications Commission to overhaul it.

Given Free Hand.

"The President has given me a free hand to find out what may need correction and apply the remedy," McNinch said before boarding a train for Washington.

"What's wrong with the FCC?" a reporter asked.

"That's what I've got to find out," he replied.

He said he would take over the new job Sept. 20 and return to the Power Commission after the reorganization was completed.

He added the "general impression" seemed to be that the commission's radio activity was in greater need of correction than its administration of the telegraph and telephone industries.

The President talked with McNinch after his conference with Biggers.

The latter told newspaper men he was a "working man," and while he wanted to be of public service there was the question of leave.

"I think the unemployed census can be so handled as to be of real value," he said, adding it should be on a voluntary registration basis as the President favors.

May Use Election Machinery.

It was learned that under one tentative plan being considered, the local election machinery would be used along with the rural letter carriers.

Under this plan a single day—more likely a Saturday—would be set aside after the fall elections as "registration day."

Questions would be so framed as to get the full information possible on employment and unemployment.

Some Saturday in January has been suggested tentatively for registration day.

If Biggers takes charge of the count, he will co-operate with a committee composed of the secretaries of Commerce and Labor, the chairman of the Social Security Board, the Works Progress Administrator and the heads of the Census Bureau and Central Statistical Board.

Biggers is a member of Secretary Roper's Business Advisory Council, and a Republican, although he says he has "never been active" in politics.

D. C. Park Executive Leads Crusade Against Silver Maple

These are two of the latest offending silver maples to feel the ax. Workmen removed them from K street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth yesterday.

Lanham Calls Species an Outlaw and Hopes to Eliminate It From 125,000 Trees for Which He Cares in Capital.

When one of Washington's 125,000 or more trees is turned into kindling wood you can bet that it's a silver maple. You can also bet that Clifford Lanham is responsible and glad of it.

Lanham, District superintendent of trees and parking, likes nearly all the trees in Washington except the silver maple.

He calls it an outlaw. He checks off its crimes and says cheerfully, "I would enjoy cutting down every silver maple in the city." Two of them were being cut down on K street, near Thirteenth street northwest, yesterday.

"When they started to plant trees on a large scale back in the '70's, they planted silver maples because they grew fast, and the planters wanted shade in a hurry. They got the shade, but all the trees were soft and brittle. Now, when we have a storm, we look for trouble where the silver maples are, and usually we find it."

Last year Lanham did away with more than 1,900 of the "outlaws." He did it casually—when a silver maple needed a tree surgeon Lanham refused medical aid. He let it die and then put in a better tree.

There are many better trees, he says. For wide streets his favorites are the American elm, the red oak, oak and willow oak. For narrow streets he chooses the common sugar maple.

Motor Mishaps Fatal.

If he wants to conceal the disappearance of a silver maple, he uses the oriental plane tree, Platinus Orientalis, grown from seeds originally gathered in the Capitol Grounds. "This is the only tree that grows fast and still remains hardy," he says.

Outside his feud with the silver maple, Lanham's biggest problem is the death rate of trees. Sometimes they die in automobile accidents—3,400 tree boxes, protecting young trees, were knocked over last year.

The greatest danger to city trees comes from leaking gas mains, which saturate the ground and slowly suffocate the trees. Inspectors rarely detect the menace until it is too late, and when the tree dies no others can be planted there for more than two years.

Brine Was Fatal.

Lanham said the trees escaped one menace when people started to use electric refrigerators and buy ice cream. In the days when everyone had his own ice cream freezer, it was common practice to pour off the brine near trees. This killed them.

Lanham recalled that many trees on Sixteenth street north of Columbia road had been killed when the street was oiled. Oil-soaked dust settled on the leaves and soaked down to the roots.

Even with these menaces, Lanham said Washington has more trees along its streets than any other city in the world, 126,625, with average spacing of 52 feet.

"That is enough trees to line both sides of a road from here to Key West," he said.

Widow of Sun Sends Girl Reds To Cheer Army

Recruits 500 to Spur on Chona's Troops Against Japanese Invaders.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, Sept. 9.—Mme. Sun Yat-sen, beautiful and dynamic widow of the "father of the Chinese Republic," has organized 500 girl Communists and sent them into the Chinese army to teach their doctrines and encourage the soldiers, it was reported tonight.

The girls were trained in Shanghai by the Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., graduate, according to prisoners' reports to the Japanese intelligence service. They are armed with a revolver each and observe strict discipline.

The Japanese feared the girls' activities were part of a nation-wide movement to strengthen Communist influence, now that Nanking and the Chinese Communists have affected a military rapproachement.

They insisted that Soviet military aid to China will increase and recalled that Mme Sun has urged a military alliance between Russia and China against Japan for years.

China Asks World Help.

Shanghai, Sept. 9 (AP).—China's most prominent intellectuals today appealed to "the peoples of the world to pool their material, spiritual and moral strength to help China deal a death blow to Japanese militarism so that justice, law and morality may be vindicated and the spirit of aggression may be destroyed."

Mme. Sun Yat-sen and Dr. Tsai Yuan-pei, best known of the nation's educators, were among the signers of the appeal, which was telegraphed to learned societies in many countries.

After reviewing Japan's conquest of Manchuria and establishment there of her protectorate, Manchukuo, and her campaign in North China, her appeal stresses the recent killings of thousands of Chinese noncombatants by Japanese air bombings.

"Not only this," it continues, "but the Japanese army has deliberately bombed institutions of learning, libraries, hospitals and Red Cross units. That is only one more instance of the Japanese army's contempt for all the decencies and accepted canons of international law."

Meat Ax Shown In Murder Trial

Dedham, Mass., Sept. 9 (AP).—A meat cleaver and butcher knife were offered today as evidence against Oscar Bartolini, former chef on trial for the dismemberment slaying of attractive Grayce Asquith, Weymouth widow.

A medical examiner, Dr. William J. Brickley of Boston, waving the cleaver and knife, said they "could have" caused Mrs. Asquith's death; that the former "exactly fit." Fractures on the widow's head, found floating in Boston harbor, and the knife "could readily" have been used to sever the neck and legs. The latter also were pick up in the harbor several days after the head was found.

Brickley contended severing was done "with a sharp instrument, great power, and by someone with a knowledge of how to cut meat."

Japanese Remain on Guard at Shell-Torn Barracks

Amid a background of war ruins not far from Shanghai, these Japanese marines armed with automatics appear ready for any emergency while doing guard duty amidst debris that once was a military barracks.

Chinese Will Win, U.S.-Naturalized Diplomat Predicts

Los Angeles, Sept. 9 (AP).—China will defeat Japan in the undeclared war, Dr. Alfred Dip Lum, a United States citizen of Chinese parents, predicted today on his arrival from Shanghai.

Technical experts on foreign affairs for the Chinese nationalists government, Dr. Lum said "Japan had realized its mistake" three days after the fighting started.

"Twenty thousand of Japan's marines, her best men," he said, "were wiped out in the first four days of fighting. Twenty-five thousand more who arrived August 17 were badly decimated.

"China is equipped with war materials to carry on the war for three years. If China holds out for six months, I believe Russia will enter the war on the Chinese side. But the Japanese are practically defeated now."

Bruening in Quebec.

Quebec, Sept. 9 (U.P.).—Dr. Heinrich Bruening, former chancellor of Germany, arrived here today aboard the Empress of Britain en route to Harvard University, Cambridge, to lecture on "The Economic Crisis Since 1930." He will stay at the university four months.

Ickes Ends Vacation.

Bar Harbor, Me., Sept. 9 (AP).—Secretary Ickes, bronzed and rested after a three-week vacation here, left today to resume control of the Department of the Interior at Washington.

Dr. Jenne, 77, Dean At Vermont U., Dies

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 9 (AP).—Dr. James Nathaniel Jenne, 77, dean of medicine at the University of Vermont for the past 10 years, died today.

Van Zeeland Gets Vote.

Brussels, Sept. 9 (AP).—The Senate followed the Chamber of Deputies today in a vote of confidence in Premier Paul van Zeeland, who had been accused by Rexist (Fascist) leaders of illegally accepting money from the National Bank.

Foes' Drive Again Checked; River Is Barricaded Below Nanking.

the Nanking government and the signature of the Sino-Russian nonaggression treaty, is increasing. They said 100 Soviet motor trucks had reached Sian-Fu, capital of Shensi Province, with dismantled airplanes and other munitions. Japanese war planes have bombed the Sian Airdrome repeatedly, it was revealed, but were not able to destroy Chinese planes there. The Sian Airdrome has been enlarged and its defense batteries strengthened. Soviet instructors are teaching Chinese fliers, it was charged.

2. American missionary groups joined business men of the American communities in denouncing President Roosevelt's evacuation policy and urged that Washington afford the best protection it can for Americans who must remain in China to protect their homes and jobs. Hundreds of American missionaries clung to their posts in hospitals and schools despite new appeals from United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and his associates that they leave China at once.

British Envoy Arrives.

3. In Tokyo the new British Ambassador to Japan, Sir Alexander L. Craigie, presented his credentials to Emperor Hirohito and prepared to exert new pressure to obtain satisfaction from Japan for the shooting of the British Ambassador to China by a Japanese military aviator outside Shanghai.

4. The Japanese navy, enforcing a blockade of China's entire coast against Chinese shipping except foreign-controlled ports and Tsingtao, searched more British ships but allowed them to proceed when they had proved their identity.

5. Chinese built new blockades in the Yangtze River between its mouth and Nanking to prevent Japanese warships from steaming up the stream and bombarding the central capital.

Rice prices toppled in Siam, where almost all commerce is in the hands of Chinese traders, the commerce of the great British crown colony of Hongkong shrank sharply, and cargoes piled up in the British port of Singapore as foreign ships unloaded there rather than risk the Japanese blockade of the China coast.

Evacuation Pressed.

Shanghai (Friday), Sept. 10 (AP).—United States citizens in nearly all the principal seaports of China today were urged to evacuate in the face of increasing perils from Japan's air and naval attacks along all China's 2,150-mile coast line.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking ordered the American consulate at Swatow, in Kwangtung Province, closed and all Americans there evacuated. Previously Johnson had authorized closing of the American consulates at Amoy and Foochow, formerly thriving ports of Fukien Province.

Several hundred Americans at Tsingtao, chief seaport of Shantung Province, were urged to get out as soon as possible. United States officials indicated they feared Tsingtao soon would be a field of hostilities. The Japanese army and navy, it was believed, would attempt a landing there for an expedition to strike at Tsinanfu, provincial capital.

Capture of Tsinanfu would cut the Tientsin-Pukow Railway, main line of communications between Nanking and North China.

American lives were gravely endangered Thursday at Shanghai, Amoy and Foochow. Japanese warplanes and warships subjected Amoy to a terrific two-hour bombardment, causing American residents to seek shelter in dugouts.

A punishing raid by Japanese planes made Foochow, northeast of Hongkong, unsafe for American and British residents.

Jury Will Hunt County Frauds In Montgomery

Prosecutor Calls Commissioners to Testify on Theft Rumors.

The Montgomery County Commissioners will be subpenaed to appear before the Montgomery County grand jury when it convenes September 20 at Rockville, Md., to tell what they know about rumors of defalcations of public funds, State's Attorney James H. Pugh announced last night.

Pugh said that numerous rumors that there had been mishandling of funds had reached his ears and that he had been given no official report on them by the commissioners.

His statement read:

"In view of certain rumors in reference to the handling of public funds, coupled with the fact that there have been two resignations of public officials within the last 30 days, and not having had any knowledge of investigations being made by the Montgomery County Commissioners, I deem it my duty to subpena not only the entire board of county commissioners before the Montgomery County grand jury, but also to subpena all of the auditors employed by the county commissioners who have been auditing public accounts.

"This is being done by me as State's attorney to determine whether the rumors of defalcation are true."

The State's attorney said that he had been informed that there had been mishandling of funds or circumstances which might indicate such mishandling of funds and that he intends to sift the rumors.

"I feel that I would be negligent in my duty were I to ignore such strong rumors," he said. "It may be that the rumors are unfounded, and if this is true it is best for the county that they be shown to be unfounded."

Approximately 45 cases are waiting action by the grand jury, including four manslaughter cases.

Beggar Approaches Detective, Seized; Long Search Ends

John Wesley Lankford, 22, yesterday learned it isn't wise to beg from a detective, particularly when the detective has been looking for him for three months.

Lankford approached Detective Sergeant E. E. Thompson while he was sitting in a car in front of Emergency Hospital. "Can you spare two bits for some food?" he asked Thompson. The detective, off duty at the time, immediately recognized Lankford as a man he had been searching for more than three months, and arrested him.

Thompson said Lankford had been arrested six months ago after John J. Martin, 74, of 1011 Otis place northwest, had been beaten and robbed of a $200 watch. Martin failed to identify him, however, and Lankford was released. Later the watch turned up in a pawnshop and Thompson began another search for Lankford.

Lieut. C. W. Hughes To Be Buried Here

Lieut. Claude W. Hughes, 31, U. S. Navy, died yesterday of injuries he received in an airplane crash at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., Wednesday.

The board of inquiry appointed by the Navy has not yet determined the cause of the accident.

While at the Naval Academy, Lieut. Hughes played center on the football team and won the Thompson Trophy as the member of the Class of 1930 contributing most to athletics. He also played lacrosse and was a member of the wrestling team.

After graduation, Lieut. Hughes was appointed assistant coach of the Navy football team, and in 1935 was line coach of the squad.

Funeral services were held yesterday in Pensacola, before the remains were sent here for burial in Arlington Cemetery.

He left his wife and one child.

Bridges' Secretary Is Engaged to Wed

A romance that started in Washington a year ago was revealed yesterday when the engagement was announced of Miss Gladys Gustafson, of Concord, N. H., to Dr. Luther H. Miss Gustafson is a member of the secretarial staff of Senator H. Styles Bridges.

Bank Office Lease Refused by Court

Justice Jennings Bailey in District Court yesterday declined to agree to a proposal of the defunct Commercial National Bank to lease 11,300 feet of its former main office at Fourteenth and G streets northwest on a graduated scale to the Morris Plan Bank.

Lack of affidavits from expert real estate operators together with omission of the allegation that the offer proposed by the Morris Plan was the best offer obtainable were suggested by Justice Bailey as his reasons for refusing.

Federal Control Still in Infancy, Landis Asserts

'We Must Live With the Corporation and Conquer It,' He Comments.

the commission will include further efforts to segregate the functions of broker and dealer, he said; further study of the "effectiveness" of customers' men in "inducing" stock market trading, with Federal regulation to follow the survey, and close scrutiny of the larger utility holding companies as the "death sentence" law comes into application January 1, 1938.

Legislation to revamp corporate reorganization law will be pressed next session, he indicated, and expressed hope a bill to secure the first Federal control of investment trusts will be enacted.

He expects the SEC will regulate the $5,000,000,000 investment trust business inside another year.

In discussing his philosophy of office, as a co-author of the Securities act of 1933, a member of the commission since its inception, and chairman for the past two years, Landis said:

"It is the function of the SEC to keep before the broker and the dealer the broad public interest so that he may align himself with it."

"Playing a Losing Game."

In speaking of the long battle with the utilities, Landis was emphatic in his remarks on those holding companies which have refused to register under the law.

"They trust the Supreme Court will throw out the law," he said. "They are playing a losing game. I don't think they expect to win and what will they show for it? Nothing. Legal fees. Reorganization plans delayed. It will cost the utilities dear in the years to come. The public is not becoming more pro-utility-minded on that score."

Landis' successor is expected to be Commissioner William O. Douglas. Commissioners of the SEC elect their chairman from their own number. If, after Landis leaves, the President appoints Commissioner J. D. Ross as administrator of the Bonneville Dam and power project in the Pacific Northwest, there will be two vacancies. In that case, it is believed, the commissioners might possibly delay election of a chairman until the President fills the two seats.

'Death Curve' Is Eliminated From Va. Road

Cutoff Nearly Completed Between Falls Church and Fairfax.

Work on elimination of a "death curve" on the Lee highway near Merifield, Va., was progressing rapidly yesterday, with removal of one of the principal obstacles in the cut-off—a two-story house—completed.

A long, looping curve, which natives say was "first laid out by a wandering cow," has been entirely eliminated. This "S" curve, more than a mile in length, has been the scene of numerous serious accidents.

Half of the new pavement has been laid, a wide, three-car strip of concrete. Grading for the remainder is almost finished. Steam shovels were biting out the last of two small knolls at each end of the mile-long cut-off yesterday.

The entire job will cost the State about $300,000, it was said. Several smaller curve straightenings remain to be done. When they are finished, one of the main traveled roads out of Washington will be a wide, high-speed roadway between Falls Church and Fairfax.

The house removed from the path of the main road belonged to E. D. Bosburn. It was moved at State expense.

One Hurt as 3 Cars Figure in Collision

One man was injured last night in a three-car auto crash on the Defense highway near Lanham, Md. None of the other three persons involved was hurt, although one of the cars rolled over several times.

The injured man is Charles Petrain, of Charlotte, Md. He was taken to Emergency Hospital suffering head injuries.

The accident occurred, police said, when a sedan operated by William A. Rabbitt, 38, of 405 Tenth street northeast, sideswiped the Petrain car, driven by Albert Petrain, of 2134 I street northwest. Petrain's machine hurtled into a ditch; the sedan continued and smashed against an automobile driven by Robert A. Johnson, colored, of Lanham, Md. Johnson's car turned over several times.

Police charged Rabbitt with reckless driving and with failing to have a registration card in his possession and failing to stop after colliding.

Police said the victim is about 28 years old, 5 feet 11 inches tall, has blond hair and weighs about 155 pounds. His clothing is of good quality.

Time Ripe to Curb President's Power, Declares Wheeler

Billings, Mont., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, a leader in the fight against President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan, raised today the question: "Hasn't the time come when the people of this country should say there is a line beyond which no President of the United States should go, no matter how much we think of him?"

Addressing a group of coal miners at Bearcreek, Mont., last night, Wheeler said Roosevelt "has more power than any ruler in the world except Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin."

Elaborating on the point today he said Congress had given the President billions for building projects, "which he has power to build or not;" billions for relief, "which he can give or withhold;" the power to raise or lower the tariff 50 per cent, the power to close the grain stock or stock exchanges, the power to remonetize silver and the power to issue three billions in currency to replace bonds.

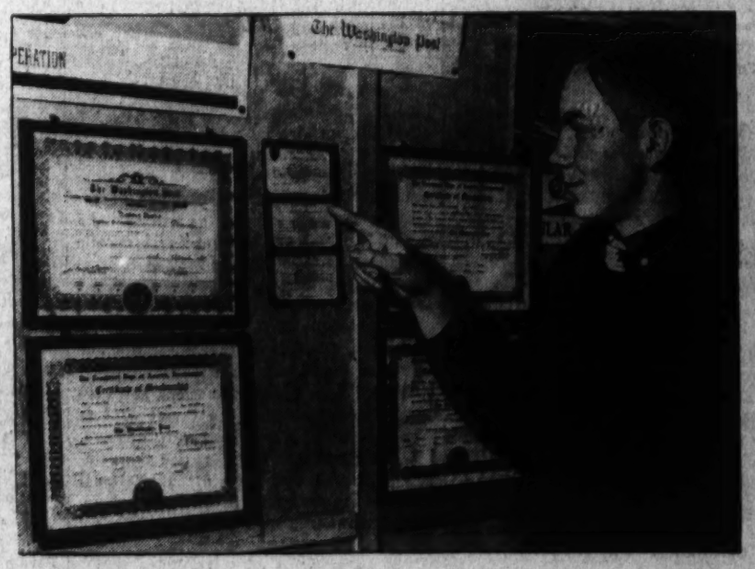
Newspaper Boys of America



Only The Post Has This Training For Its Carriers

The Washington Post is the only Washington newspaper which maintains membership in the Newspaper Boys of America for its carriers.

What does membership in the N.B.A. mean?

This organization is designed to give each newspaper boy the benefits of special training in his work, recognition for his efforts and awards for accomplishments.

Boys advance in rank as they serve their customers. Some become team captains. They are taught to be thrifty, courteous, neat and to give service.

Post district stations display the membership cards, membership certificates and other attractive and important materials in connection with the organization.

The photograph here shows a typical Post newspaper boy pointing to his membership card in the N.B.A. This newspaper boy, like all who service The Washington Post to their subscribers, is in business for himself. The profits realized from servicing his route provides him with remuneration for his work.

Because Post newspaper boys are in business for themselves, it is necessary that they collect regularly and promptly for the success of their business. You can assist the newspaper boy on your route by paying him when he makes his first collection call each week.

The Highway Program.

Col. Sultan, the Engineer Commissioner, is to be commended for his prompt request that various civic and technical organizations should criticize the newly proposed five-year highway program. It would cost $20,000,000 in all and $4,721,000 during the next fiscal year. The current appropriation for highways is $2,894,340. A 60 per cent increase, notwithstanding new motor vehicle taxes which should provide a greater highway revenue this year, deserves fullest public discussion, particularly in a city which has no vote.

Col. Sultan has asked for general comment, and most of it will doubtless agree that the general objectives of the proposed program are good. One of the principal factors in Washington's unenviable traffic record is a complicated street system originally designed for slow-moving, polite horse-drawn vehicles. Very possibly the city needs the new bridges, the additional arterial highways and the tunnels beneath the circles recommended by Capt. Whitehurst, the highway director.

But virtually every department of the District government has applied for increased appropriations in 1939. The city will be hard put to satisfy even the most urgent of these requests. And in all probability the highway program will have to submit to pruning with the others.

The excellent idea of a scientific program, to be achieved gradually, should be maintained, however. The failure to follow any long-range plan, due to Congressional parsimony, has brought the school and health departments to their present plight. There is no economy in blindly postponing improvements which will ultimately be forced by changing conditions. A few each year, taken in order of urgency according to a carefully-prepared scheme, is the sensible course.

Behind The Swastikas.

There is much marching and countermarching at Nuremberg, where the National Socialist Party is holding its annual congress. There are excellent propaganda displays by the subtle Dr. Goebbels; there has been a lecture on art by the Fuehrer himself, and a handsome prize for cultural leadership has been awarded to Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, the Nazi leader who believes that democracies are "piteously short-sighted and as terrified as a rabbit before a rattlesnake."

While Dr. Rosenberg's simile is apt—more apt all around than he perhaps intended—neither it nor any other aspect of the Nuremberg congress constitutes the most important news of the week from Germany. All the window-dressing is secondary to the insistent report that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht is soon to resign from his dual office as economics minister and president of the Reichsbank.

The resignation of Dr. Schacht has been reported before and it is known that he has several times asked to be allowed to retire from his onerous offices. But heretofore Hitler has prevailed on the economics minister to remain in this key office, stressing both the power and the responsibility which attach thereto. If Dr. Schacht, who likes authority, leaves official position now it will be a further sign that German economy is cracking under the strain of the autarky program. His own paper, the Deutsche Volkswirt, has of late frequently warned that planned economy has reached the end of its rope in Germany.

Superficially the country seems prosperous, with virtually no unemployment and an internal boom still drawing stimulus from the rearmament and public-works program. But underneath the signs of strain multiply. There are food and raw material shortages; there is a huge and mounting short-term debt which threatens the rigid control of prices and wages, on which Nazi economy rests; there is an increasing shortage of economic and financial reserves which not even the inbred frugality of the German people can longer completely counteract.

While giving all his brilliant capacities to the Nazi regime, Dr. Schacht has made no secret of his opposition to the totalitarian policies which are in large part responsible for Germany's present plight. He has fought the doctrines of autarky and self-sufficiency and has undoubtedly delayed the natural evolution of the Nazi regime into an economic system as completely socialistic and state-dominated as is that of Russia. So if the minister of economics leaves his post now the inescapable conclusion will be that he finds the regimentation trend too much for him and refuses to accept responsibility for what he sees ahead.

As the economic pinch tightens in Germany the tendency of the Nazi regime is to become increasingly socialistic. As it becomes more socialistic the economic strain increases. The vicious circle is one which Dr. Schacht has no power to cut and in which he has no will to be caught. His resignation, leaving full direction of economic policy in the hands of the ineffable Gen. Goering, who was an excellent aviator, would be a sign of a grim winter ahead for Germany.

Not As In Decatur's Day.

The notice broadcast by the Navy Hydrographic Office to American ships, warning them of the dangers of attack by unidentified marauders in the Mediterranean, arouses an echo of "old, unhappy, far-off things, and battles long ago."

It is as though civilization were thrown back a century and a half ago to the time when our Nation was just struggling to its feet. American shipping at that time had to put up with the depredations of the Barbary pirates. Now piracy is again rampant in the Middle Sea and with it a renewed threat to peaceful carriers of commerce.

But history never quite repeats itself. Piracy in the Mediterranean today is a far different thing from what it was in the days when corsairs raided our clipper ships. Gone are the galleons of the Dey of Algiers and gone are his piratical crews. No longer are nations compelled to pay tribute to Mediterranean pirates or, refusing, have their ships seized and the sailors sold into slavery. The pirates of today employ the very latest type of craft, including airplanes and submarines, and no quarter is given their victims.

So far as the American people and Nation are concerned, however, there is an even more striking difference in the situation today from what it was then. At that time an outraged public opinion demanded that the Government do something. It did. Naval squadrons were fitted out and sent to the Barbary coast. We then fought fire with fire. And through the heroism of Commanders Preble, Decatur, Bainbridge and others piracy in the Mediterranean was dealt a severe blow from which it did not recover until our own day.

We are now infinitely more powerful than we were in the days of Jefferson. But the revival of piracy in the Middle Sea finds us perturbed but curiously indifferent. We regard the task of meeting that threat as one to be performed by others.

Our present timidity in the face of this and other equally dangerous developments in the world may be justified. That depends on the point of view. But the American people must realize that this timidity has its price. For as we continue helplessly to see one area after another engulfed in war and one safeguard of civilization after another destroyed by the new barbarians, the threat to us steadily comes nearer. And in the meantime trade which we have so painfully built up is destroyed or threatened.

Can we afford such destruction? In their present mood, most Americans will undoubtedly answer that we can, if the alternative is involvement in the quarrels of others and possibly war. But the fact must not be ignored that the destruction of our trade is certain to increase the pressure here for drastic reorganization of our economic life and thus pave the way for the destruction of those liberties by which we have set such great store.

So far as the Mediterranean situation is concerned, the danger that threatens our commerce may now be past its peak. Great Britain, France and other nations now give indications of meeting the threat of continued piracy by a concerted show of force. Doing little to save ourselves and the painfully acquired standards of international life, our interests may be saved by others. It was different in Decatur's day.

Try Anything Once.

The Washington airport drama—some prefer to call it a farce—has reached a sudden though probably not ultimate denouement.

A month ago Congress seemed on the verge of approving a permanent Federal landing field at Camp Springs, Md. The bill had passed the Senate; but it failed to receive the approval of the House. A stopgap measure was hastily devised. It was proposed and adopted that the present field be continued temporarily as the Capital's airport, with certain improvements and extensions. Then the President intervened with a veto, suggesting incidentally that Gravelly Point might be the best site for a new airport. Thus, after ten years of discussion, the District was right back where it started, so far as adequate permanent airport facilities are concerned.

That was eight days ago. Today there is, metaphorically speaking, a "For Sale" sign on the Washington-Hoover Airport. And, beginning next month, commercial air lines serving the Capital will land and take off from Bolling Field, the Army airport. This will not be a permanent arrangement. But, according to the president of the Airline Pilots' Association, it will permit flying here "with greater safety than ever known in the past."

Such words from the pilots ought to carry a lot of weight. They, better than any commission or group of airline directors, know what they are talking about when it comes to a discussion of maneuvering today's huge planes around Washington. Yet, to the layman, the maneuvering of planes is simplicity itself compared with that which seems necessary for Washington to obtain an airport adequate to its needs.

The One Effective Control.

It is very difficult to follow the reasoning of Secretary Wallace when he argues that the unusually large cotton crop in prospect demands legislation for production control.

It is of course obvious that if cotton planters are to be subsidized on a basis of so much per bale, control of production is a logical sequence. Otherwise planting will be done with an eye to the Federal Treasury rather than the market, and taxpayers will be called upon for ever-increasing outlays to pay for a product which will be raised without any reference to demand.

But two wrongs do not make a right and there is no evidence whatever that any control scheme at present foreshadowed would offset the evil effects of outright subsidies to individual planters.

If the control is on an acreage basis its restrictive effects can easily be overbalanced by more intensive production. This is demonstrated by the fact that this year's predicted yield averages 228.5 pounds per acre, the highest in the history of the country. If yield per acre doubles while acreage planted is halved, the gain from this form of control does nothing to offset the subsidization paid by the taxpayers to a privileged group.

If the control is applied directly to production, the results are no more certain. A vast amount of regimentation would be necessary to prevent evasion of any regulations which might be prescribed. And experience indicates that the share-cropper would suffer while the big planter pockets his subsidy with little or no curtailment of the poundage on which it is paid.

The one effective control, in every case of what is often called over-production, is the price control. This, in the absence of clumsy governmental interference, will apply automatically and accomplish neatly what a special session of Congress and a host of Federal agents could only bungle.

The present official forecast is for a crop of something over 16,000,000 bales. In 1926, it may be recalled, production reached 18,000,000 bales and the price received by farmers dropped to 12.5 cents a pound from 19.5 cents the year before. The next year production dropped to 13,000,000 bales and the price rose to just over 20 cents a pound.

No advocacy of unadulterated laissez faire is implied in pointing out that the automatic control operated by the market should not be sabotaged by a confused subsidy and restriction program. Such a program can only prove an entering wedge for repetition of the whole unfortunate AAA experiment—at a time when there is not even the justification of emergency.

Promotion In Pulchritude.

What are the wild waves saying? No doubt those in Atlantic City are full of ideas but like Old Man River, they "don't say nothing, they just keep rolling along." Perhaps they are a little bored, for this is the seventeenth year the breakers have furnished background for potential Miss Americas from all over the country. If anything, the Atlantic probably feels it has been cheated, what with all the ballyhoo about bathing beauties and nary a one of them bathing.

What weather is to California and tropical verdure to Florida, so is the annual Bathing Beauty Contest to Atlantic City. Welcoming committees are formed; loving cups are polished; entertaining is in order, and gapers form on the right. It has been the same every year since the first contest in 1920, when costumes were more ample and the judges had a great deal more guesswork to do. But none can say there is no progress in these competitions. "Miss New York" this year was "Miss Brooklyn" only two years ago.

Judging by what we read in the Atlantic City papers, perhaps it would have been better if this year's contestants had taken more clothing with them. Apparently everything there is co-operating but the weather. Chilly northeast winds are kicking up the surf and the beauties are covered with goose bumps, which is something. Perhaps Dame Nature, usually smarter than most of us, is getting a little fed up with the whole silly procedure. Hence the cold shoulder.

An optimist is a person who hopes to make enough money next month to pay last month's bills.

In some respects boys of today are better than were boys a generation ago. It has been 20 years since we've seen a miserable dog skedaddling down the road hell for leather, trying to outrun a tin can tied to his tail.

Must Not Be Done.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

There is one thing which Americans simply must not do—and San Francisco is the place not to do it. That is not to treat residents of Japanese blood the way some of us were foolish enough to treat our neighbors of German blood during the last war.

These Japanese-Americans had nothing to do with starting this Chinese war, and like it no better than we do. In fact, their sort of people in Japan do not like it, either. It is directed by the military oligarchy as much against their rights as it is against China.

Still less have our resident Japanese anything to do with it. Many of them are citizens, born here, and the rest have cast their lot with America. They are decent people, and if we are decent we will treat them decently.

One Bottle Will Do It!

Symposium On The Far East

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I cannot help but criticize the American Chamber of Commerce and our American people in Shanghai after reading the copy of cable voicing their disapproval should they be asked to withdraw and abandon American business, printed in The Post on September 8.

I am ashamed for my people that in a time of suffering and stress they can still put "American Trade" in China ahead of "American Humanity." It is true, their homes and their interests are there in a foreign country, but since that country is being molested by invaders and facing a situation over which America has no control why do they stay there and invite hardship and perhaps havoc on a country that they cry to for protection. America always has lived up to Theodore Roosevelt's foreign policy — that Americans anywhere will be protected. Americans in foreign countries have used his policy as a keynote on which they have based their fortunes.

Fortunes and human life have no comparison. These same Americans instead of inviting peace and trying to protect themselves—their lives and perhaps many lives of those to whom they are calling for protection—are talking of property and business. They do not seem to care that they may be the source over which our great country may be plunged into war again. A small slip or misunderstanding may turn us all toward havoc and distress and they still cry for protection. They do not seem to realize that the men sent there to give them what they cry for may be giving their lives and bringing heartache to their families. Those boys do have homes. Homes that they would like to keep from sorrow and hardship later on, as was the result of our last war.

If there is a warning of an earthquake, or flood, or volcanic eruption I wonder if these people would cry for protection. I believe not; they would move as fast as they could possibly do so. War is a disturbance, a lack of human understanding between nations. Why cannot these people treat it in the same way? I ask these few Americans—they are few compared to the many who will have to go there if things become worse and we are forced into a situation that we do not want—why they cannot try to help themselves and withdraw or stay there and take what comes themselves and not force the outcome on many who do not want it.

The man who can place fortunes and business above peace and humanity is not worthy of being called an American. R. A. HIGGINS.
Washington, Sept. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Why should all the thousands of Americans in China be told to leave or stay there at their own risk? They have a right to be there, and if there is any risk about their staying there, it ought to be the risk of the brutal aggressor nation in daring to put at peril their lives and property.

American citizens as a rule do not travel or reside in China just as tourists or for the fun of it. Many are there for purposes of trade, selling the products of American farms and factories, and buying such goods as we require for import into our own country. Others are there in Christian missionary work—in fulfillment of the command of Christ to go into all the world and preach the Gospel. They are supported by the denominations of our Christian people, even children in the Sunday schools giving their dimes, nickels and pennies. Also there are many American newspapermen there, giving us the news we have a right to get. Why should they all be told they remain at their own risk? Why do we spend billions on our Navy if not to give reasonable protection to American citizens wherever they travel?

I am sure that if Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson or any of our illustrious Presidents of the past were President now, there would be no such outrages against American lives and property as are occurring. Japan would know at the start that American citizenship means to Americans what Roman citizenship meant to the old Romans.

They would be afraid for one thing that we would immediately stop export of scrap iron, for making shells and guns to be used against unoffending Chinese and Americans in their midst. When Jefferson was President and pirates of Tripoli killed and enslaved American citizens, did he tell them that when they traveled off the Barbary Coast they did so at their own risk? No, he sent American warships over there and effectually stopped interference with American commerce, lives and property.
HENRY D. BAKER.
Durham, N. C., Sept. 8.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In view of the wanton slaughter of thousands of innocent non-combatant Chinese by the barbarous Japanese militarists, who are so ruthlessly trying to steal more Chinese territory from an honest and peace-loving people, it seems to me that we American housewives should feel the time has come to join together and boycott every article made by Japan and begin this boycott immediately. Let American women show by such a boycott that we will not tolerate such a dictatorial country as Japan and other belligerent countries that rob and butcher innocent people.

As a native of California, I know how the Japanese covet our glorious State and if they are successful in conquering defenseless China it will not be long before they will try to attack us. You may not know, here in the East, that there are now said to be 200,000 Japanese reservists in California. It is asserted that these men are subsidized by the Japanese government and placed at strategic points throughout California.

If the four largest governments, including our own, are too cowardly to show their condemnation of this wanton slaughter of Chinese, Spanish and Ethiopians, then let us American women show our indignation by refusing to buy merchandise made in Japan or any other aggressive country. A CALIFORNIAN.
Washington, Sept. 7.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Japan, the eleventh-hour comer into the vineyard of civilization, now lustily claims the same prestige and prerogative as European nations who have borne the heat and burden of the day. This Oriental newcomer, with arrogance and hauteur which would do credit to England or Italy, insists on uplifting her more backward and belated neighbor, even at the point of the sword. Mohammed deserves the prize for being the greatest uplifter of all time. He offered the benighted peoples of his day the alternative of Islam or the sword. By this means he brought under dominion of the Crescent his widespread empire which he still holds in allegiance.

During the past 400 years the European has thrust himself into contact with the "lesser breeds" of man in all parts of the earth. Human slavery with its concomitant horrors and atrocities has followed in his train. His dominant motive has been exploitive, and not altruistic.

During the last century the enlightened Christian conscience has greatly relieved the severity of man's inhumanity to man and lessened the galling load which the conquerer has imposed upon his victim. Human slavery has been abolished wherever the white man holds dominion, and the dominated weaker races are treated with a lesser degree of cruelty and injustice. But the white man's chief burden is still upon his conscience—to square his performance with his profession.

Japan now assumes the white man's burden of uplifting China to the level of European civilization against the inclination and protest of the unwilling beneficiary. The white man resents and resists Japan's proffer to help him bear his burden and accuses her of guile, hypocrisy and deceit. The claim is made that the chief motive is profiteering, and that uplift is only a plausible pretext. The white man has taught Japan the villiany which his yellow pupil seeks to execute. As long as England holds dominion over India, and Italy over Ethiopia, it ill becomes these European uplifters to point the condemnatory finger at Japan for imitating their example, method and motive. We cannot convincingly point to the mote in our brother's eye while the beam is in our own.
KELLY MILLER.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

It appears to me that nations as well as individuals do not learn from experience. Our Nation, in this respect seems no exception.

Apparently our Government is following the same traditional and dangerous foreign policy in China which finally involved us in the World War. Let us unite in opposition to another repetition of a potential dilemma similar to the "Lusitania."

Regardless of what our personal beliefs and sympathies may be, I am of the opinion that our Government should evacuate as soon as possible our nationals from the Shanghai area (those to remain should be permitted to do so at their own risk) and face our ships definitely homeward.

All of our financial interests, combined with our economic aims and aspirations in China, will not justify the sacrifice of one American life.

This, I believe, is the only true course for America to pursue if she wishes not to become involved in another flagrant and costly calamity. A SUBSCRIBER.

"Boys Of '98" Memorial?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Thirty-nine years ago—September 9, 1898—the First District of Columbia volunteers in the War with Spain returned home from the Santiago campaign. The regiment was recruited in this city and was composed of young residents of our Capital City. Approximately 1,000 men, including the officers, were enrolled. Upon our return home the people of Washington gave us a patriotic welcome—one long to be remembered.

Thirty-nine years have passed and today, I dare say, most of those who gallantly marched up Pennsylvania avenue in 1898, escorted by our beloved sires—the G. A. R.—have passed to the Great Beyond. Our ranks are growing smaller, and in a few years more we, too, will be resting in yon Arlington.

This year at our reunion, which will be held on November 20, we will endeavor to launch a movement for a suitable memorial to perpetuate these "Boys of '98" to be placed somewhere in our city. I hope that we will be supported by Washingtonians. Many of the survivors think that a most suitable place for such a memorial would be in the proposed new Municipal Center. WILLIAM A. HICKEY,

A Universal Religion.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

A recent correspondent asks for expressions on the subject of a universal religion. The suggestion is that a bulwark against racial oppression cannot be created by a multiplicity of religions, and therefore the inquiry for a universal religion.

The inference is that the writer looks upon the numerous religious denominations as so many different religions. This may be a common error. Without exception these various denominations have one and a common religion. The difference consists in forms of expression and modes of worship. In fundamental belief they are one and the same.

The members of these denominations are in brotherhood and fellowship in the Christian religion. They all worship the one God and teach and practice the Gospel of His Son.

The Christian religion is a universal religion. It has spread itself over the entire globe—universal in extent. It is fitted to man's moral nature and intended for all mankind. It is ample and complete compensation for all ills, calamities and distresses to which the human heart and flesh are heir. "It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds and drives away his fears. The Christian religion is universal in application and effect.

Dare Science Say 'Never?'

IT IS surprising to find how many eminent men of science, distinguished discoverers and inventors, men of open minds and far vision, have put themselves on record in some stultifying expression of pessimism.

Even Edison was not free of this myopia. In 1906, when wireless telegraphy was operating in a feeble way, he was asked, "What is the ouutlook for wireless telephony?"

The great innovator answered, "It does not exist."

Equally eminent authorities voted against the airplane. Lord Kelvin, whose adventurous science made the transatlantic cable a reality after several practical men had botched the job, was quite certain that a flying machine was a physical impossibility. He proved it to his own satisfaction by the laws of physics.

Kelvin's pronouncement was seconded in America by the eminent mathematician, Simon Newcomb, chief astronomer at the Naval Observatory. Just as ostriches and other birds above a certain weight do not fly, so machines above a certain avoirdupois would be incapable of lifting themselves in sustained flight. Newcomb suggested that if successful airplanes were attained, they must of necessity be small, lightweight mechanisms like watches.

"If the watchmaker can make a machine which will fly through the room, then, by combining 10,000 such machines, he may be able to carry a man," ventured Newcomb.

Since these authorities failed so widely in their estimates of what could be managed within the law of nature, we need not take too seriously the shrugs with which some present-day authorities react to the mention of other human dreams.

There is very much alive today, for example, the dream of interplanetary flight. The problems involved are beyond those of aeronautics, just as the problems of telephony were beyond those of telegraphy—but the lessons of successful aerial flight are giving pointers and hints and warnings and guides to a future technique of space navigation which the specialists have named "aeronautics."

When I mentioned the rocket to a professor of aeronautics seven years ago, he laughed. "Are you asking me to discuss the rocket as a practical power device?"

Why not? The steam engine, the dynamo and the gasoline motor were feeble toys once. Each had to advance from infantile beginnings through step after step of experiment and improvement before the present different types were attained. Rocket research is occupying the time of a few pioneering physicists. In another seven years we may look for courses in rocket engineering in some of the more progressive schools.

Perhaps the problem will not be solved until some entirely new fuel is obtained—something that is able to release a maximum of energy from a minimum weight of material, and to release it under the control of man. Even when oxygen is delivered to the gasoline or other combustive in concentrated liquid form, as in the rocket experiments, the energy released as a result of the burning is only an infinitesimal fraction of the energy resident in these liquids. Scientists call this resident energy atomic energy. This is the energy of matter itself, compared with which the chemical energy of combustion is quite trivial.

If we use a pound of gasoline in the best internal-combustion engine of today, we get about one kilowatt-hour of energy. But if, instead of merely exploding the gasoline, we were able to convert the mass of all its atoms into energy, so that there would be no exhaust gases, no residue or waste of any kind, but complete transformation of matter into energy, calculation shows that the yield from the pound of gasoline would be 11,300,000,000 kilowatt-hours.

There can be no more compact storage than this arrangement of atomic energy. If our power requirements were 1,000 kilowatts per hour continuously, or 24,000 a day, our 1 pound of material would provide fuel sufficient for more than 1,200 years. Nor is it only gasoline that packs this tremendous load of energy. A pound of air, a pound of sand, everything contains the same.

If we find a way to release and control only a small percentage of this resource, all present practices of power production become obsolete. Each household, each individual, each machine, would have an inexhaustible source of energy always at hand, and central generating plants and transmission lines would be superfluous.

I must add the caution of certain eminent authorities. There are those today who say that this dream is completely wild, who point out that more energy is required to smash atoms than is released from the few that get smashed, and that therefore hope of atomic energy as an economic source of power is futile, never to be attained.

Can a scientist afford to use the word "never" in a serious sense? I doubt it. The conquest of matter, the conquest of space, the conquest of aging, even the conquest of death—who would dare write "never" to one of these dreams? The least difficult may require the efforts of generations of experimenters yet unborn, but nature must yield if man perseveres.

Nazis Abroad.

IT IS NOTHING to fret about at the moment, but the attitude of the Hitler government toward Germans who become naturalized in this country is a renewal of that hyphenism which became a synonym for disloyalty during the war. Under the present policy of the Nazi foreign office, Germans who take out American citizenship are encouraged—in fact, exhorted—to remain German, nevertheless, and loyal to the Swastika as well as to the Stars and Stripes, which would be a neat trick if anyone could do it.

The Nazi system to which these persons are asked to give continued allegiance is a contradiction of everything to which they swear devotion when they take out American citizenship, and anyone who can embrace both flags is ready to hold membership in the Anti-Saloon League and the Bartenders' Union, the D. A. R. and the C. I. O., and the Ku Klux Klan and the Sons and Daughters of I Will Arise. Moreover, they are inferentially asked to commit the crime of perjury, because anyone who retained his loyalty to the Hitler regime, though swearing allegiance to this country and forswearing Hitler in particular, according to the formula, would be taking a false oath.

The Nazis have caused us little trouble up to now, and their comic strutting, saluting and heiling in their summer camps is mere foolishness compared to the plotting and political tunneling which their agents have conducted in Austria, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia.

IN ENGLAND, also, they planted a great swarm of political spies to check the activities of German sojourners and refugees, and the British took notice of this when they kicked out several phony journalists who had abused the democratic hospitality of a free country.

In Austria, long ago, they plotted and directed the assassination of Premier Dollfuss, who may have been a great man—or a great man to be rid of, according to your opinion—but was, nevertheless, the head of a foreign state. In Switzerland the Nazi Gustloff organized groups of Nazi political agents in the guise of social clubs which were disbanded by the Swiss government in defense of its sovereignty. In Czechoslovakia, a democratic country, the Nazis have been organizing for a long time, claiming minority rights which they do not grant to minorities in Germany.

Like the Communists in our midst, whom they much resemble in their mental processes, our imported Nazis, including not a few who have taken out American citizenship, insist on the liberties guaranteed by the American Constitution and laws while serving a regime which has abolished those very liberties.

It is no trival matter when the government of one nation, through the agency of traitorous societies, actively promotes disloyalty among the naturalized citizens of another nation.

This, however, was the method of the Kaiser's government, and the Hitler government nowadays revives that method, although it needn't follow that a naturalized German who still likes to hang around with others from the Fatherland to drink a few steins and sing a few songs of an evening is keeping his fingers crossed. He may be honestly delighted to be out from under the terror and be a citizen of a free country, with nobody to curb his opinions, throw him in jail for demanding a raise in pay or make his children praise Hitler above God in their prayers.

NEVERTHELESS, the Nazi policy of dual allegiance, recently re-emphasized in the great reunion of hyphenates under Hitler's auspices, tends to create suspicion of all bunds here which engage in marching and semi-military formations under foreign flags.

There is no legal reason to demand that honestly naturalized Germans abstain from such activities and shun the company of hyphenates, but that would be evidence of good faith and true renunciation of the man who has held that a German is always a German wherever he finds himself and in spite of any oath he may take to the contrary.

Hitler's newspapers, which print nothing without official permission of the government, threatened not long ago to take an unpleasant interest in the internal affairs of this country. This may well be kept in mind in connection with all groups which fly the Nazi flag, whatever their patriotic pretensions may be.

The new 1938 automobile models, it leaks out, are being designed with the special aim of appealing to the ladies. The boudoir influence is being emphasized and many new things in the line of upholstery, vanity cases, mirrors and ceiling lights are being installed. All hope of the male buyers that the designers might install brass spittoons this season is practically lost.

Fulpan Day At The Fair

Petunia Congressman Is Honored By Constituents.

By Louis M. Jiggitts.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Petunia,
August 27, 1937.

Miss Willa Doolittle,
Care Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Miss Doolittle:

There will be no home-coming celebration, as my friends have decided to hold a Fulpan Day at the Verbena County Fair. It is Petunia's turn to have the fair this year and they have frankly told me that they would expect a huge crowd at the fair if I would permit them to designate a day as Fulpan Day. I have consented to do this and to make a short address in the afternoon.

I am returning the Home-coming Day manuscript and I want you to request Mr. Gost W. Smith to make the necessary changes. He should include a number of well-rounded phrases, and you may inform him that I want to expatiate on the farm problem. I particularly desire a large number of statistics on farms and farmers.

Yours sincerely,
CICERO FULPAN, M. C.

Dear Congressman:

I delivered your instructions and the manuscript to Mr. Gost W. Smith. He asked what statistics you wanted and also whether he was to have you advocate the ever-normal granary. He also said it would cost you an additional $25.

Miss Willa Doolittle,
Care Congressman Cicero Fulpan,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Miss Doolittle:

I am rather happy to say that Fulpan Day at the Fair proved a very pleasing success. I am sending you herewith a clipping from the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette. Should any of the Washington reporters come to the office during my absence, you may permit them to glance over it. It will not do any harm to let the powers in Washington know how I stand among my constituents.

Yours sincerely,

'Fulpan Day' Huge Success

By Fannie Sitz
Special Correspondent of Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette.

The greatest crowd in Petunia's illustrious history attended Fulpan Day at the Verbena County Fair yesterday. From early morning when the fairground gates were thrown open to the eager crowds until the merry-go-round broke down playing its last sprightly tune in the wee, wee hours of the night the day was one continuous succession of successes.

The weatherman was kind, not a cloud besmirched the sky, and the sun shone with a brilliance to match the cheerful smile of Verbena County's greatest son. Large delegations were on hand from Biddlesville, Detour, Morning Glory and Evening Star Station.

The Grand Parade, which was scheduled for 9 a. m. prompt, got off to a surprisingly early start at 10:15, led by the Grand Marshall Editor Cy Skribbels, of the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette, on a spirited black steed in riding britches and a bright red ribbon across his learned bosom. Immediately following the Grand Marshall Editor Cy Skribbels was Petunia's musical pride, the Petunia Progressive Citizens Band, consisting of 26 musical pieces, three saxophones and two cymbals playing "Hail the Conqueror."

Next came the raison d'etre or piece de resistance (the reason for the celebration) Congressman Cicero Fulpan, the man who has served Verbena County for many long years in the halls of Congress with dignity and honor and whose position as a leader at the Nation's Capitol in these stirring and crucial times has assured for himself and Verbena County a place in the history of our Nation riding in an open car furnished by the Petunia Automobile, Truck and Tractor Sales Co., Inc., known for its progressive spirit and cheap vehicles. Seated by the Congressman was Mayor Aufton Fitz who was also bowing, smiling and shifting his fedora whenever the car stopped along the vastly crowded route. Then followed floats too numerous to mention, ten in all.

After the parade the crowds poured into the fairgrounds, where they thoroughly enjoyed themselves until the Congressman spoke late in the afternoon.

Pigs.

Following the dinner hour the annual hog-calling contest was held. A novelty was introduced in the contest by placing pigs at various distances from the fairgrounds. The closest pig wore a green ribbon around its neck, the next closest a yellow ribbon, the next a red ribbon and the one furtherest away a blue ribbon. It was decided that the contestant calling in the pig furtherest away would win.

The calling generally was on a very high level and was considered the best in many years, but after all had called, Mr. Slim Slack, who has held the Verbena County championship for the past three years, retained his title. With a loud, sooee, pig, sooee, pig, soo-ee, he was able to call in the pig with the red ribbon. No one could call quite loud enough to reach the attention of the blue-ribbon pig. It was generally thought that the pig had been placed too far away for the human voice to reach.

After the hog-calling contest everyone, except a conspicuous few from Detour, gathered at the Grand Stand for the feature attraction of the day, the address of the Hon. Cicero Fulpan, statesman as well as Congressman.

Seated upon the platform with the honoree of the day were Editor Cy Skribbels, master of ceremonies; Hon. Quintus Quirke, president of the Verbena County Fair Association; Miss Primrose Potts, president of the Petunia Ladies Upward and Onward Club; Mrs. Fannie Sitz, poet laureate of the Petunia Literary and Betterment Society; Mr. Pinkus Pratt, prominent farmer, and His Honor the Mayor of Petunia, Aufton Fitz.

Praise.

After a rendition of "Semper Fidelis" in honor of the honoree by the Petunia Progressive Citizens Band, Editor Cy Skribbels, master of ceremonies, called the meeting to order. In a few choice words such as only the editor of the Verbena County Weekly Bugle and Gazette can utter he explained the reason for the occasion, paying a deserved tribute to Congressman Cicero Fulpan. He then introduced Miss Primrose Potts.

Miss Potts, modishly attired in a stylish blue knitted bouclette suit with hat and accessories to match, said that she was honored to welcome a great man for the ladies of Petunia. She expressed in a few simple words the appreciation of the clubwomen of Petunia for the time and trouble expended by the Congressman in so willingly and gladly explaining to them on various occasions the intricate problems of our Government.

Editor Cy Skribbels then introduced Mrs. Fannie Sitz, who, he said, he hoped would one day be chosen poet laureate of the United States of America. Mrs. Sitz, gracefully acknowledging the compliment, informed the audience that she would recite one of her original poems in honor of the Congressman being a triple quadrant with crescendo finale, which is three four-lined poems on the same subject with a three-lined special tribute with ascending enthusiasm. Pausing briefly to give the audience time to comprehend the nature of the poem, she recited the following:

When he takes a stand
And grasps a task in hand,
Nothing can withstand
C. Fulpan, the grand.

His stand is for the right
And be it day or night
He's always in the fight
With all his well-known mite.

Little men come, little men go,
But he goes on forever.

Fannie Sitz Reports Scene For Bugle And Gazette.

Some slow up, some slow down,
But Cicero Fulpan, never!

Fulpan is a great man
A great man is Fulpan
Fulpan, Fulpan—(pause)—O
FULPAN!

Editor Skribbels arose and introduced His Honor the Mayor, and as the Mayor arose the crowd shouted, "Give us Fitz!" The Mayor obliged by speaking immediately.

"I am," he said, "almost rendered speechless by this honor." The crowd applauded. "I am happy to introduce another great man. The Congressman's position, power and push has made Petunia and Verbena County bywords in our Nation's Capital. He is a peer of no man. The Pride of Petunia is the Wizard of Washington, a man whose heart and head are like the Rock of Gibraltar in these trying times.

Fulpan.

As the Congressman arose the crowd arose with him as the band blared forth "Hail the Conqueror" again. The crowd roared its approval, and for a time there was a friendly contest as to who would make the most noise, but the band finally won out, and with the last crash of the cymbal the Congressman motioned the crowd to be seated.

"I am," he began, "touched deeply by the splendid reception you have accorded me. You will never know my joy in returning to you, my friends, after nearly eight months of ceaseless toil in your behalf, the joy of returning to this quiet and peaceful environment after nearly eight months of continuous strife and battle with the enemies of the great inarticulate masses."

After paying his respects to the master of ceremonies and the other notables he said: "I will speak briefly. I recall that Lincoln's Gettysburg address though brief is immortal."

The Congressman then spoke for two hours.

Congressman Fulpan gave an interesting account of his stewardship, explaining his votes on the important measures to the complete satisfaction of his hearers. He said that he had not definitely expressed himself upon the Supreme Court issue, as it had not been brought before the House and he made it a custom not to commit himself until a measure was being discussed in the House so he could receive it with an open mind. He said the same applied to the wage and hour bill and Government reorganization. However he promised his hearers that he would explain himself fully and completely on these important matters when, as and if they come before the House.

The Congressman spoke on a wide variety of subjects, mentioning particularly the position of this country in the Sino-Japanese trouble, saying that he had not definitely made up his mind what position the country would take, but at the moment he was opposed to it, and that he was taking no part in the Far Eastern trouble.

The Congressman spoke for some time on the farm problem. He explained the various plans being brought forward to aid the farmer, including the ever normal granary, but committed himself to none. In this connection, he said that just before leaving Washington he told the President etaoin shrdlu cmfwyp vbgkqj xzfi.

This remark, so typical of the Congressman, brought applause from his hearers.

Congressman Fulpan cited a number of statistics concerning farms and farmers, which showed to the complete satisfaction of his attentive audience that he has given much time and thought to the interests of his constituents and proved him to be thoroughly familiar with all the trials and tribulations of the farmer, many of which he mentioned with telling effect.

In pledging his continued efforts in behalf of his constituents, the Congressman delivered some of the most beautiful phrases ever heard in Petunia. His voice rose in fervor as he pledged himself anew to fight for the welfare of Verbena County, his Congressional District and his native country.

As the Congressman sat down the crowd was amazed to see trotting across the fair grounds toward the speaker's stand the blue-ribboned pig which had earlier in the afternoon failed to heed the pleading voice of Mr. Slim Slack.

The band played its farewell tune, "Aloha Oe" (which is "Goodbye to You"), and the crowd dispersed to the midway to enjoy itself again.

No Tears Fall

By Sidney Olson

"Spy Overhead."

IN ORDER TO get the full impact of this, let us lay the scene swiftly. It is in Washington in 1936 and the time is autumn. The citizenry is suffering from low-blood pressure because nothing has happened for a long time. A breathing spell has been announced for business; the President is surging about the country making speeches, and Mr. Landon, of Kansas, is the long side of the 3-to-1 money on the election.

The time is early for football and latish for baseball, particularly since the Nats are practically nowhere in the pennant race. Reporters wander about, disconsolately suffering from the megrims, with just a dash of emotional hebetude.

Into this dull background tapestry suddenly come two gentlemen, one short and chunky and known as Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., Progressive, Wisconsin, and the other large and bland and known as Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, Utah.

The two of them begin operations as the Senate Civil Liberties Committee; headlines splash the newspapers; fresh fall breezes take the place of the decayed-swamp atmosphere that characterizes Washington at summer-end, and in practically no time whatever the election is over and the customers are getting mustard on their fur coats in the stadiums on Saturday.

• • • •

TALES OF GORE, chicanery, big money handled loosely and of the operations of furtive persons in underworld capacities are always good stuff. But when the persons are revealed as the paid hirelings of such great corporations as General Motors and Chrysler and Frigidaire; when the talk is of millions of dollars paid to break up American Federation of Labor unions on the pretense that they are communistic, and when the sensations pile up day after day, end over end into unexplored subterranean territory—then you are touching the country's vitals and Washington seems like Washington once more.

Clinch Calkins, who is a lady of detached perspective and wide background, and who writes like dry-ice melts, in a sort of burning chill, has done a book on the espionage phases of the investigation that made both the National Labor Relations Board and the Committee for Industrial Organization effective.

• • • •

IT CAN SAFELY be said now that the John L. Lewis drive into General Motors, Chrysler and the rubber workers would never have achieved its present results without the background laid down by the La Follette committee. If you sat at that horseshoe-shaped table in room 357, Senate Office Building, last autumn you would never doubt it. There it was you saw big, young Richard T. Frankensteen, a Chrysler worker but a few years out of his college football team, get mad.

Young Frankensteen had just found out that his best friend, his chum for years, one Johnny Andrews—the Johnny he went fishing and hunting and drinking beer with, the pal who drove with him to union meetings and worked with him in the little Chrysler union—had been a hired labor spy, employed and paid to sell out his friends.

Frankensteen told his story to the jammed little hearing room loudly and clearly, so that every word reached the ears of Herman Weckler, former Chrysler labor relations head and now chief of De Soto corporation. Frankensteen said:

"Mr. Weckler yesterday made the statement that they had to have espionage so as to develop a firm basis for industrial relationship. I want Mr. Weckler to know and want the Chrysler managers to know—and I speak for a majority of his employes and I feel that he knows we are willing to prove it—I want him to know we are not going to work in any of their plants with that type of individual. They are either going to get out or our people will not work in their plants."

Six weeks later Frankensteen and all Chrysler employes were on strike as members of the C. I. O.

• • • •

BY FEBRUARY 1 of this year the Corporations Auxiliary Co.—the firm which had sold Chrysler and many other great companies on the need for labor spies in their plants—had gone out of business.

Miss Calkins makes the vital point that the worker, after a century of mass effort to organize into mass formation to get a larger share of that national income, is only now beginning to learn the value of numbers. She says:

"Yet shut off from the aid of his own fellows, disarmed by his own ignorance, the worker, always handicapped by pressing need, is in an awkward pinch battling with an adversary who brings onto the field the whole fighting paraphernalia of society; his detectives, his gas projectors and machine guns, his lawyers to second him, and the legislature right around the corner in a field wagon.

"To the outsider it seems evident that 32,000,000 American wage earners working intelligently together for what they separately want could lick even the apotheosis of money, polish up the seconds and commandeer the wagon. . . . But the lonely bargainer is apparently only learning this fact."

She points out that if Eugene Grace actually headed his men in the field in a head-on attack against strikers, public sympathies would not so easily be diverted toward the strikers, for it is the newsreel pictures of battalions of vigilantes and company police, fully armed, attacking a thin line of marching strikers armed only with posters, that sends the public into the strike battalions, despite any amount of engineered publicity against their cause. But it is this anonymity—the lack of the personal touch in the relations of working man and employer, that has brought about the present, occasionally desperate, situation.

• • • •

THE LESSON most forcefully drawn from the hearings and most forcefully repeated in Miss Calkins' precise and effective prose is that labor spying does not pay either the employer or the worker. But it does pay, and lushly, the slit-eyed, nervous-gestured spies who testified before the hearings that their companies had made millions. They admitted that where there was no labor trouble, they made some; where there was a little trouble, they exaggerated it, and where there were great difficulties, they worked to crush it at the greatest possible cost in lives, publicity, money and tear gas.

So no tears fall for the detective agencies and strike-breaking agencies that have gone out of business in the past year. The air is fresher everywhere, and this book is an accurate record of that great job of national air-conditioning.

BECAUSE A WELL-KNOWN columnist cast aspersions on the future of cheetah-racing in England, a project dear to the heart of Kenneth Gandar Dower, whose book, "The Spotted Lion," they will publish in October, Little & Brown "hasten to present the following facts about cheetahs:" The cheetah can beat any greyhound or kangaroo hound over a short distance . . . It is regarded by many judges as the fastest thing on four legs . . . They are about the length—7 feet with tail—of a leopard, but taller at the shoulders, standing between 2 feet 6 inches and 3 feet . . ." And now that I've got all this inormation, I don't know what to do with it . . . The cheetahs ! ! !

TWO YEARS AGO the directors of the Limited Editions Club decided to award a gold medal biennially to the American author of a recently published book judged to be most likely to become a classic . . . The first gold medal went to Donal Culross Peattie for writing "An Almanac for Moderns" . . . Fifty leading American critics have been asked to nominate the book published in the last two years which they consider most worthy of the medal . . . "Since the award will not be made until November," states a release from this club, "all American authors are urged to compose and publish their classics within the time still remaining" . . . I had intended to write a longer column this time, but I guess I'll stop and dash off a classic.

BETT HOOPER.

Administration of Roosevelt Nation's Best, Farley Asserts

Country Saved by New Deal, 'People's Rights Preserved,' Iowans Told; G. O. P. Lacks Program, Competent Leader, Says Chairman.

By the United Press.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt's Administration has accomplished as much for the general welfare of the Nation as any Administration in history, Postmaster General James A. Farley said tonight in an address to the Iowa Democratic State Central Committee.

"Let me emphasize that this remarkable record was accomplished without impairing or injuring one basic fundamental right of the American people," Farley said, challenging critics of the Administration.

He digressed from his main topic—the benefits agriculture obtained from the New Deal—to lecture the Republican Party on how to climb back to power.

"Permit me to say here and now that the Republican Party will never slip back into power until it formulates a program which appeals to the horse sense of the American people and then finds a leader who has the courage and ability to put that program into operation," he said.

"The Republicans of the Middle West did not desert the Republican Party," Farley asserted. "The Republican Party deserted them."

He recounted the era of disastrously low farm prices.

"Instead of a farm board (under President Hoover) foredoomed to certain failure, this Administration offered the farmers a mechanism through which they might co-operate to control burdensome surpluses and assure a measure of economic equality," he said.

The "failure of the Republican Party leadership," the Postmaster General charged, "can be traced back to dense ignorance.

"Many of our financiers and industrialists listened indulgently to the assertion that national prosperity depended upon the prosperity of agriculture. Frankly, they did not believe it, but Franklin D. Roosevelt realized it and did something about it."

Gov. Peery Opposes 3d Roosevelt Term

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (AP).—Gov. Peery declared today he is opposed to a third term for President Roosevelt.

His sentiments were voiced in a comment on the statement yesterday by Gov. Johnston, of South Carolina, who favored a third term so the Chief Executive "can complete the program he has launched."

"For the first time," the Virginia Governor said, "I am forced to disagree with the Governor of South Carolina."

Sugar Act Limits Use of Child Labor

Farm Administration officials warned sugar beet and cane growers yesterday they must comply with child labor provisions of the new sugar act to qualify for benefit payments it provided.

Growers may not employ children under 14 years of age in the production, cultivation, or harvesting of sugar beets or sugar cane. Children between 14 and 16 years may not be employed longer than eight hours each day, unless they are members of the immediate family of a person who is the legal owner of at least 40 per cent of the crop at the time the work is performed.

District Will Keep Its 2 CCC Camps

The two CCC camps in the District of Columbia are not included among the 247 camps which will be dropped on October 1 to bring the CCC within the 300,000 enrollment provided by Congress.

Maryland camps to be dropped are at Grantsville, Parkton and Snow Hill, and the one at Doncaster will be transferred to Townsend.

John Roosevelt Motors To Boston With Deb

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP).—After undergoing some good-natured ribbing about the flower-champagne incident at Cannes, France, young John Roosevelt left the family estate by motor early today for Boston.

With him were Anne Lindsay Clark, Boston debutante whose name has been linked in romance with his, and John Drayton, Harvard classmate who toured Europe with John.

62 Released After Apology In Strike Riot

23 Others Dismissed at Covington; 20 Still Face Charges.

Covington, Va., Sept. 9.—Contempt proceedings in Alleghany Circuit Court against strikers and sympathizers as the result of a disorder at the Industrial Rayon Corporation plant July 7 were narrowed to 20 persons today when 62 pleaded guilty and 23 were dismissed.

The group of 62, among the original group of 135 charged with violating picketing restrictions at the plant, offered an "apology" to the court for the technical violation of an injunction governing picketing procedure and were allowed their freedom without fines or jail sentences.

The 20 against whom the contempt proceedings will be completed include Robert Gaffney, C. I. O. organizer and director of the four-month strike; Lloyd Mays, president of local 2214, synthetic Yarn Federation, a C. I. O. affiliate, and several who already have been indicted or convicted on charges of assault and battery under the State anti-lynching statute.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Not Good Risk at Duplicate.

In Rubber Bridge it is quite logical to gamble an extra trick penalty for the chance to make one's contract. Let us assume that we have been doubled at five spades and that we are vulnerable. After a few plays we see that we can, if we choose, concede a one-trick set. We also see, however, that by making a play that may result in a two-trick set, we may, if we find a favorable break, actually succeed in fulfilling contract. The 300 additional penalty that we may incur is small compared to the potential reward of 1,000 points that would be ours if we bring home the two-game rubber.

In Duplicate Bridge, however, it is quite another matter. Here we must examine the proposed play strictly on its merits. Let us consider the following hand from a duplicate point of view:

With a hand divided 6-5, South should have opened the bidding with one diamond rather than one spade. A six-card suit, even though a minor, should be shown first.

West opened the club King. East overtook, and led back the seven of diamonds. At this point declarer saw that he would make his contract if East was leading away from the diamond King. Naturally, the tempation to take the finesse was terrific, but success at bridge, as in life, depends to an enormous degree on one's resistance to temptation. Declarer knew East to be a sound player. Was it conceivable then that he would overtake the first lead merely to make an atrocious play? Because leading away from the diamond King certainly would be atrocious! If East actually had the King, he could not know the position of the Ace and Jack. Surely he would wait to cover the Queen, if it were led through him.

Thus, despite the fact that a successful finesse would produce the double contract, South decided that the chance was all too slim. He realized that if the opponents could make five clubs, which appeared highly likely, a one-trick penalty, even though vulnerable, would be a splendid sacrifice. But, as against the 400 points that the opponents could make at five clubs, a two-trick vulnerable penalty, 500 points, would return a very low match-point score.

Since there was a much greater chance that East's lead was a singleton rather than away from the King, declarer went right up with the Ace of diamonds, drew trumps, and conceded a diamond and a heart trick. Obviously, it would have been fatal to pass the diamond lead, since West would have won and given East a diamond ruff.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Jones Willing to Back Garner in 1940 Race

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation smilingly reported yesterday he had heard no "Jones-for-President" talk on a recent Western trip.

Asked if he would be for his fellow Texan, Vice President Garner, for the 1940 nomination, Jones replied

Realistic Panels Designed for New Printing Building

The sculptured panels on the entrance to the Government Printing Office's new annex will pass up the "ladies in cheesecloth" and ponderous Greek figures which adorn some Federal buildings and go in for realism with a vengeance.

Submitted yesterday to the Fine Arts Commission for its consideration were photographs of the two panels, one showing a printer carrying a locked page-form and the other a pressman handling what appears to be a huge roller (Sculptor Elliott Means' description of his work hasn't arrived yet).

The panels will be 6 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 8 inches. Above them in the center will be the sculptured seal of the G. P. O., 11 feet by nearly 7 feet, which is being done by Armin A. Scheler, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

James Scott, colored, 53, of 2047 Fifth street northwest, died yesterday of injuries suffered in a traffic accident. His death raised the District total to 75 for the year.

Scott was struck Wednesday at Fifth and W streets northwest.

Police said William Jones, colored, 27, of 103½ Ridge street southeast, was driving the automobile that hit Scott. Jones will appear at an inquest.

Meanwhile, a coroner's jury yesterday acquitted George Gineras, 24, of 315 North Carolina avenue southeast, in the traffic death of Miss Billie St. Clair, 62, 1114 New York avenue northwest.

Witnesses testified that Miss St. Clair walked in front of Gineras' car Saturday.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 9 (AP).—J. Edwin Larsen, collector of internal revenue for Florida, said today he believed the family of Al Capone would pay $17,166 in delinquent income taxes in time to prevent the sale of the gangster's Miami Beach home at public auction tomorrow.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Yesterday was a red-letter day; on the seventh attempt I got out of the park, under my own power and without the aid of a guide or compass, at the Massachusetts exit, as I intended, instead of at the Shoreham, as the other six times . . . I did it by cutting notches on the trees with a small ax I always carry.

At this season the hedge around the long oval back yard of the White House is thin enough so you could see any of the secretariat who might happen to be playing hopscotch on the grass in the President's absence. (I remember when it was thick enough to conceal the Hoover medicine ball coterie.)

* * * *

Only seven Senators (including both the Senators from Delaware) have secretaries who are members of their families or who have the same name. Obviously faith in the secretarial powers of their relatives surges strong in Delaware Senators.

"—a peek at the backyard"

Right now many members of Congress are collecting foreign and exotic labels on their luggage at a great rate, and when they return their valises will be a sight to behold. Some are in Europe; some are en route to Hawaii, the Panama Canal, Manila or Alaska, combining business with pleasure.

* * * *

A few are broadening themselves by investigating farming in Iowa or elections in New Hampshire or Federal courts in Kansas City. They'll be better lawmakers when they return; cosmopolitan, too, ordering frijoles, pemmican, crepes Suzettes and pol at the better restaurants.

After a week in Washington, the b. g. still maintains stoutly that she'd rather play with Shirley Temple than with Sistie Dall . . . That child will have to realize that she's in Washington and not in Hollywood.

Since half the Americans you know have Revolutionary ancestors (especially your conservative friends), they shouldn't miss the 818 excellent pictures of colonial gentlefolk, by Favret de Saint-Memin, a French fugitive from the guillotine, who dashed them off between 1789 and 1794, at $35 for an original and 10 copies. Almost any American should find an ancestor in the lot, and they're a handsome crew, not to mention having $35 to throw around that way.

Anyone who ever dares do any research work for an American President will, alas, be called a brain truster from now down the dim avenues of history, even if he goes to bed in a dunce cap . . . I wonder whether Mr. Roosevelt has ever hung a dunce cap on any of his own brain-trusters!

* * * *

"—he flattered our ancestors"

They must have had quite a time ironing out for the Congressional Record some of the speeches made the last day or two of the session; some of the oratory seemed to come out a little snarled and tangled, under the influence of whimsy or something.

* * * *

It's either the Washington summer climate that makes this the greatest seersucker town in the republic, or perhaps the fact that the President wears seersucker suits occasionally . . . The chief of the Air Corps ranks sixteenth among the Army bureaus, far below the chief of chaplains and the chief of finance, but above the chief of chemical warfare. (But he should worry so long as he gets pay and a half for flying.)

So far as my spies can ascertain, there are no Senators living at the Senate Hotel, nor any Ambassadors at the Ambassador Hotel, nor a single Commodore at the Commodore Hotel . . . But I'll bet there are some cavaliers at the Cavalier Hotel—never saw one without 'em . . . As part of that $20,000,000 traffic safety daydream, do you suppose they could build low concrete walls between the traffic lanes on Sixteenth street, to keep the blonde lady in the next lane from climbing up on your fenders?

Two Gunmen Take $1,200 Payoff From Numbers Player

It may have been only a coincidence, and the police call it as an ordinary holdup, but——

Mrs. Sydney Simms' number came up, and the boys who run the Capital's numbers lottery paid her off—$1,200. That was Wednesday.

Yesterday at 2 p. m. Mrs. Simms, colored, told police, two white men entered her home with drawn guns. They forced Mrs. Simms, she said, into her kitchen and took from a teapot in the china closet the $1,200 and an additional $50 she had saved.

The men fled in a car with a third man, she said. Police said the car was stolen.

When Hippo Tries Out a New Bathtub

play pen so he could get acquainted with it. (Animals' fear of strange things and places is the most serious problem in transporting them.) Inquisitive as a puppy, first thing the hippo did was haul his three tons into the box.

When he'd inspected the interior thoroughly, Bungo decided to leave. But he couldn't. The end he was facing was boarded up and he didn't know a thing about backing out.

Eventually the perplexed behemoth, as nonplussed as a kitten entangled in a ball of yarn, solved his dilemma by wiggling and pushing his way out slowly and patiently.

"He just squooched and shimmied until he was clear," explained Blackburne. "Then he made a beeline for his tank and stayed there for the longest time, figuring that was the safest place for him."

Yesterday, satisfied Bungo had no further fear of the crate and noting weather conditions were ideal for the task, Blackburne decided to get the moving job under way. A heavy truck, with flatbed trailer, and a crane truck drew up to the lion house.

Goes Without Breakfast.

The hippo had been denied his breakfast because the plan was to bait him into the huge shipping case, and even the choicest chopped vegetables don't appeal to Bungo when his quivering tummy is full.

Blackburne temptingly waved a sheaf of fine hippo food in front of Bungo's cavernous mouth, but, hungry as the creature was, he refused to take the bait. In fact, the head keeper thinks he noted a hurt-feeling look in the mammal's eyes, as though he were wondering whether the man he fairly worships was playing a dirty trick after all these years.

In short, it took two hours to lure Bungo into the crate and make secure the entrance. Hauling the cargo to the pachyderm house was relatively simple. Less than 15 minutes after it had been backed up to the cage door, the crate was opened, exposing Bungo from the rear. He was lying down, utterly resigned to whatever lay in store.

"Upsy daisy," shouted Blackburne, or words to the same effect.

Backs Out Gracefully.

The immediate response was a wag of Bungo's abbreviated tail, shorter than a collie's. Then the three-ton titan quickly drew himself up on all fours and, to the utter amazement of Blackburne, Walker and Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, backed out of the parking place with all the dignity of the Queen Mary leaving her dock.

While his gallery wondered what would come next, the mateless hippo—his wife died here six years ago—briefly sniffed the bars and then gingerly set foot upon the stone staircase leading down to the tank. Between steps he paused to survey the painted background, which depicts a scene along the Nile, smell the strange water cautiously and warily eye the assembled photographers, who were shooting for dear life. ("Bungo doesn't like to have his picture taken," Blackburne explained.)

"Isn't it grand?" exclaimed Dr. Wetmore in scientific admiration, his eyes aglow at the sight of an animal testing the water's temperature with all the finesse of an ample matron about to take her first dip of the season on the beach at Coney Island.

In less than a minute Bungo was diving and grunting with unrestrained glee, interrupting his revel only to favor Keeper Blackburne with a gaze of forgiveness and sniff quizzically at the papyrus growing on the banks of the Nile—it was painted that realistically.

He is the fourth tenant in the new animal house, a PWA project. On Wednesday the two pygmy hippos, Harvey and Rose, and Minnie the tapir, were transferred, also from the lion house. Minnie, like Bungo, thinks their new residence is the wild cat's whiskers, but the pygmies act as if they came out on the short end. They just huddle disconsolately in the back of their cage.

In fact, Harvey (for Harvey Firestone, the donor), attempted a break soon after being unloaded. Balancing himself on his hind legs, he had his head over the stone paling in front of his tank and might have climbed out successfully if Blackburne hadn't come by in the nick of time.

Bungo, Minnie, Harvey and Rose will be joined within the next week or so by Jumbina and Kechil, the elephants, and the rhinoceros. (Jungle society editors please copy.)

Union Reiterates Policy Against Strikes by U. S. Workers.

Johnson Calls Congress 'Reckless Patronage Jamboree.'

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 9.—Luther C. Steward and Gertrude M. McNally, both of Washington, were re-elected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of the National Federation of Federal Employes at the organization's annual convention here today.

Re-elected as vice presidents were: First, John Fitzgerald, New York; second, Lee R. Whitney, Milwaukee; third, Charles L. Wiegand, Baltimore; fourth, Dr. Walter P. Taylor, College Station, Tex.; fifth, Ulrey J. Biller, Washington; sixth, William M. Rapsher, Philadelphia; seventh, George L. Evans, Denver; eighth, Arthur Joachims, Seattle, and ninth, Vaux Owen, Atlanta.

William L. Rabbel, Portsmouth, Va.; John P. Carroll, Boston, and Henry G. Nolda, Washington.

San Francisco was chosen for the 1939 convention.

Strike Policy Reiterated.

The convention, which adopted a resolution reiterating the 20-year policy of the N. F. F. E. of opposing strikes by Government employes.

Resolutions also were adopted thanking President Roosevelt for his interest in improving public personnel administration; expressing opposition to the placement of military officers and men in civilian positions; and favoring restrictions to relatively young candidates of appointments in lower grades in the service, except in an emergency, as an essential to true career service.

An address prepared by Robert L. Johnson, president of the National Civil Service Reform League, and read to the delegates by H. Elliot Kaplan, executive secretary, in the absence of Johnson, said the Seventy-fifth Congress demonstrated that its real concern was to extend the spoils system.

His address termed the last session as "a reckless patronage jamboree," in which "the merit system was riddled by bill after bill carrying clauses or riders exempting employes from the requirements of the civil service laws."

"Retention of Spoils System."

"Different tactics toward the same end—the retention of the spoils system—have pigeonholed the important Ramspeck bill to bring first, second and third class postmasters under the civil service law. The Senate Postoffice Committee has had this bill in hand since last January, and has done nothing about it. . . .

"The patronage forces became even bolder in the Wagner-Steagall housing bill. They exempted from the civil service law all positions paying over $1,980 and made all positions with salaries of $7,500 or more subject to senatorial confirmation. What a chance for a career service they have established there! . . .

"We do not believe Congress or the Legislatures can much longer get away with the patronage racket. We can stop it if we get out and fight for our right to have only trained and responsible public employes administer the constantly increasing powers put into the hands of our governments.

"We must show them that the spoils system is no longer 'good business,' that it will cost them more votes than they can buy. And we must hearten and support those of our representatives who are truly trying to carry out their pledges and make our Government service an honorable career."

Six Children Give Marionette Show, 'Hansel and Gretel'

After two months of rehearsals, six children from the Chevy Chase playground yesterday gave a marionette performance of "Hansel and Gretel" before 60 youngsters at Friendship House, 324 Virginia avenue southeast.

The children, under the direction of Mrs. Ann Klesius of the Playground Department, had been working on costuming, mastering the technique of handling the puppets and memorizing their lines since July 1. The stage, scenery and figures were made last year by members of the Playground Department.

Barbara Savage, 13, of 3944 Legation street northwest, was stage manager. The other five were her sister, Marguerite, 11; Bonnie Jean Duffy, 14, 3901 Northampton street northwest; Gloria Cardillow, 13, 3911 Northampton street; Jane Mundy, 11, 3711 Jenifer street northwest, and Susan Olliver, 11, 115 Leland street.

Police Ask Victims Of Robberies to Be At Line-up Tonight

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, last night expressed keen disappointment because of 130 victims of holdups and robberies invited to identify 39 suspects at a public line-up, only 34 appeared.

One suspect was identified. He gave his name as Reginald Wheeler, of 1010 H street northeast. He is suspected of a $40 holdup. Another public line-up will be held tonight, the inspetcor said, voicing a plea for more co-operation by the public.

Race Pigeon, Hurt By Auto, Is Found Near White House

A young racing pigeon, apparently struck down by a hit-and-run driver, was found in the street in the rear of the White House yesterday by Mrs. Dorothy Nichols, of 1405 Girard street northwest.

The bird wore attached to one leg a metal band carrying the number WBC 464 IF 37. On the other leg, tied with a rubber band, was a tag with the number 151.

Grade-Crossing Death Accident, Md. Jury Rules

Urges Safety Device Where Tracks, Highway Meet at Bladensburg.

A coroner's jury found yesterday the death of Clarence L. Joneston, 46, Hyattsville, killed when his car crashed into a train on Defense highway near Peace Cross September 1, was accidental, but recommended "that proper safety devices be installed immediately at this crossing."

G. H. Atkins, brakeman on the train which struck Joneston's car, testified railroad regulations ordered all watchmen to warn motorists of an approaching train by placing a light on one side of the track and swinging a second light on the opposite side.

William Harrison, colored, watchman on duty at the time of the crash, did not appear at the inquest. Another watchman, Robert Briggs, colored, testified he had never heard the regulations outlined by Atkins.

Joneston, ambulance driver for the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, was driving from his home in Hyattsville, on an emergency call for an injured woman when the crash occurred. He died shortly after in Casualty Hospital.

The inquest was conducted at the Hyattsville police station by Acting Coroner Henry H. O'Neill.

Meanwhile District traffic and police officials will hold the first monthly meeting at 3 o'clock Tuesday in a new drive to reduce traffic accidents, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen announced.

Upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, the commissioner designated the following to participate in the parleys:

Van Duzer also submitted to Hazen a traffic report for the first eight months of 1937 and the corresponding figures for the first eight months of 1936.

It showed that the Seventh Precinct had the best comparative record for August, having reduced its accident toll by 17½ per cent.

The Eighth cut its toll 9.5 per cent. No. 1, dropped 8.5 per cent. No. 2 and 4, made a reduction of 8 per cent, and No. 3 brought its record down 6 per cent.

Board to Hear Budget Views Of Civic Groups

Various Leaders Will Face Questioning Today and Tomorrow.

Spokesmen for civic and trade organizations from all parts of the city will parade before the District Commissioners today and tomorrow to explain their views on the $65,000,000 budget proposed by departmental heads for the next fiscal year.

Forty witnesses had been scheduled late yesterday for an all-day session today and a half-day meeting tomorrow.

The District heads, who in past years have listened attentively to requests for appropriations over and above the departmental estimates, are prepared to cross-examine the witnesses with such queries as:

"Would you be willing to pay more taxes in order to get what you are asking?"

The Commissioners intimated yesterday that they would welcome advice on how to reduce the estimates rather than proposals for new items in view of the District's fiscal plight.

Following the public hearing, the Commissioners will hear departmental chiefs next week.

They hope to submit the budget to the Budget Bureau by the end of that week or early in the following week.

Airline Pilots Face Trouble At Army Field

Bolling's Cross Runways 300 Feet Shorter Than Airports'.

Control of Landing Lights Present Another Difficulty.

Commercial airline officials who conferred yesterday with Lieut. Col. William O. Ryan, commanding officer at Bolling Field, learned that the cross runways at the Army terminal are 300 feet shorter than the shortest runway at Washington Airport.

Another difficulty, which will have to be overcome if the field is used as a commercial airport, results from the fact landing lights being installed will not be controlled by the air traffic control tower.

"If we are going to use the field," an official said, "we will have to install loudspeakers which will bellow orders to turn on the lights when they are needed for night flying."

Proposed as Stadium Site.

Samuel J. Solomon, manager of Washington Airport, yesterday revealed a "suggestion" had been made to him that his terminal be used as a stadium site. Indicating the proposal was being considered, he said: "We intend to continue to operate Washington Airport as long as there are enough planes using it to justify its maintenance. The regulations recently laid down by the Bureau of Air Commerce will affect only about 15 per cent of our traffic, and, so far they haven't affected anybody at all."

Representatives of Eastern Air, operating between New York and Washington, Pennsylvania Central, and American Air Lines, who attended the conference said they desire to use the Army base only in case of emergency. They said it takes three quarters of an hour to get to Bolling Field from downtown Washington.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, general manager of Eastern Air, has declared that fog hazards at Bolling Field are comparable to those which undoubtedly would be encountered at Gravelly Point, which has the approval of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

"Nuisance" Forecast.

"A general movement of air lines to Bolling Field, "he said," is a certain way to develop commercial air transport's 'nuisance' value to the Army, which particularly at this time, should not be interrupted in its training activities because of pressure of scheduled operations. It will be at least three or four years that the Army will be forced to put up with these same scheduled commercial operations which will undoubtedly result in friction between two otherwise very friendly organizations."

Officials of the Airline Pilots Association, do not agree with Eastern Air's general manager. David L. Behncke, president, has frequently declared in favor of the move to Bolling.

"The pilots are grateful to the War Department for making Bolling Field available for commercial operations," he commented. "We have felt for a long time that the sooner the transport lines got away from the hazardous conditions at Washington Airport, the less likelihood there would be of a serious crash."

Eight Film Plays Are Named Best of Three Months By Will H. Hays National Previewing Committees

Coast-to-Coast Appraisals Conform in Large Measure to Washington's Earlier Verdicts; "Lost Horizon" Continues Downtown Run; "Victoria the Great" Recommended as Worthy Work; "King Richard II" Is Being Tuned Up; Notes of the Theater.

THE September issue of the valuable brochure devoted to "Selected Motion Pictures," as determined by coast-to-coast previewing committees reporting through the office of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., is triply interested and important. Instead of covering the studio output of a single month, as is usually the case, it embraces the quarter-year period between June 1 and September 1, 1937. The pictures listed as "best of the month," therefore, as the pamphlet points out, really are the consensus choices as the best of three months. There are eight of these favored subjects on the list.

BELL.

The eight features that engaged the major interest and aroused the greatest enthusiasm on the part of the national committees are "Fire Over England," "The Life of Emile Zola," "One Mile From Heaven," "Parnell," "The Road Back," "They Won't Forget," "Topper" and "Wee Willie Winkie."

Of these, all are parenthetically noted to be "outstanding," with the single exception of "The Life of Emile Zola." This is a pardonable omission since the booklet has this to say of the picture now playing the National Theater as a "road show" attraction: "The Life of Emile Zola" reaffirms one's belief in the spiritual integrity of mankind and its unity with and expression of that which we call divine. Warner Brothers has carved its niche in the hall of fame, for 'The Life of Emile Zola' is one of the truly great pictures of all time."

In full accord with this sentiment with regard to "Zola," this column still finds it difficult to coincide with the committees' views in the case of some of the others. For instance, I should hesitate to catalogue "Parnell" and "The Road Back" as "outstanding," unless it is meant in the case of the former that it is outstanding for the gross miscasting of Clark Gable in the title role and, of the latter, that it is to be deemed distinguished by the exorbitant amount of slapstick "comedy" that was interjected into an infinitely pathetic story of baffled young manhood, just out of the trenches and groping for a place in a world it could neither interpret nor comprehend.

"One Mile From Heaven" and "They Won't Forget" have not as yet been seen on public exhibition in the National Capital. The first is a Twentieth Century-Fox production, the other by Warner Brothers. "Fire Over England" was made in England, but released in this country through United Artists.

If a complete roster of producing companies is important, the "best of the three months" distribute themselves among United Artists, Warner Brothers, Twentieth Century-Fox, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Universal. Congratulations to all concerned—with the noted reservations.

The well known—at least to newspaper people—deadline is rapidly drawing near for those who still wish to see two popular screen offerings. With the new season of regular touring attractions opening at the National Theater on Monday night with the first Washington presentation of George Abbott's production of "Brother Rat," the engagement of "The Life of Emile Zola" necessarily must come to an end this week.

The motion pictures of the recent bashing bee between Joe Louis and Tommy Farr, being shown in Sidney Lust's Cameo Theater in Mount Rainier, Md., to the gleeful excitement of all who view them, come off tonight. With the advent of the cooler weather of the past few days, business has taken a leap at the National. In view of the fact that all seats for "Zola" are reserved, it exceedingly behooves those who wish the most choice locations to step about a bit.

Surprise! Surprise! "Lost Horizon," Frank Capra's $2,000,000 picturization for Columbia Pictures of James Hilton's popular novel, did not pass from the local scene with the close of its eminently successful week at the Earle Theater last night. It begins a second week of continuous downtown showing today on the screen at the Metropolitan, uncut and unchanged from the original form in which it was "road showed" at the National early in the spring.

• • • •

Margaret Webster, stage director for Maurice Evans, returned to this country last week from London and has begun the restaging of "King Richard II," in which Mr. Evans will reopen September 15 at the St. James Theater, New York, where he acted in the play 133 times last year. After the four-week New York return engagement, Mr. Evans is scheduled to start a transcontinental tour in "Richard," opening in Boston on Monday, October 18, and coming later in the season to the National Theater in this city.

• • • •

There comes to hand from Carl E. Milliken, of the Will H. Hays organization, a realistic and slightly excited bulletin concerning the manifold superiorities of an impressive photoplay production sponsored in this country by RKO-Radio.

This is "Victoria the Great" which seems, as Mr. Milliken vigorously stresses, to have many virtues in its favor. It is, of course, a spectacular screen entertainment based on the life and achievements of Queen Victoria of England, ruler of the British Empire and Empress of India. The picture was made in England by Herbert Wilcox, with that charming actress Anna Neagle in the title role.

The vital consideration, however, seems to be that for the first time in history the House of Windsor consented to the making of the picture and made available to the producers all of the official records pertaining to Victoria's life and reign. That should be sufficient earnest to the film's authenticity.

Among the characters in the pictured story, of necessity, are such figures as the queen's consort, Prince Albert, Disraeli, Gladstone, Palmerston, Peel and Lord Melbourne.

"Victoria the Great" will be eagerly awaited on Mr. Milliken's say-so. It is inevitable, of course, that it will be compared with Gilbert Miller's stage production of "Victoria Regina," starring Helen Hayes and relating to the same subect matter, although probably not in the form of a series of vivid vignettes.

Wee Willie Abashes the Colonel

In the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of Rudyard Kipling's story of "Wee Willie Winkie" there are many amusing scenes between Shirley Temple, in the title role, and her grandfather, the doughty colonel, played by C. Aubrey Smith. One of them is pictured above. "Wee Willie Winkie" opens on the screen at Loew's Columbia Theater today, following its successful recent engagement at the Capitol.

Richard Talmadge reports from Alaska, where he's filming scenes for "Spawn of the North," that he's had exactly three days' filming in seven weeks. Rainfall has totaled 18 inches.

"Benefits Forgot."

Next screen assignment for Clarence Brown, just finished with "Conquest," Greta Garbo-Charles Boyer vehicle, will be "Benefits Forgot." The story is about Midwestern small-town life in sixities.

Sea-Going Tirade Recorded on Film

As fine a piece of salt-water swearing as ever ripped a mains'l was recorded by a Paramount sound crew just to bedevil Capt. Charles Arey, bluff skipper of the wind-jammer Golden State.

Capt. Arey's schooner was being used for location work off Catalina Island on Paramount's Technicolor sea picture, "Ebb Tide."

Recently the captain, his temper shortened by the exigencies of maneuvering a ship for movie-making, launched into a five-minute tirade against a hapless seaman who had failed to lash a line securely. Before the captain became aware of the joke that was being played on him, the sound man had recorded nearly three minutes of his sea-going expressions. It will not be heard from the screen!

Stage Coaches in Record Caravan

Greatest movement of stage coaches in California since the days of '49 is under way, as more than 30 of the pioneer conveyances are headed toward Hollywood for use in Producer-Director Frank Lloyd's new production, "Wells Fargo."

A majority of the coaches are en route from Hood, Calif., where the State's largest collection is maintained.

One, a prized specimen long displayed in the Wells Fargo museum at San Francisco, was being dismantled for shipment to the studio by train.

Dozens of other vehicles of the period from 1844 to 1870, including chaises, wagons, ox-carts and two primitive railroad engines, are being assembled for use in "Wells Fargo," the cast of which is headed by Joel McCrea, Frances Dee and Bob Burns.

Is 'Heart Interest' in Fantasy

Jane Wyatt, whose latest portrait likeness appears above, is effectively cast in the principal feminine role, opposite Ronald Colman, in Columbia Pictures' imposing filmization of James Hilton's novel of "Lost Horizon." This subject, after a capacity week at the Earle, ending last night, moves today to the screen of the Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater to continue its downtown run uninterruptedly.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Sept. 9.—My sympathy for Freddie Bartholomew's "Aunt Cissie" in her legal battles for his custody is a trifle strained after reading an interview she gave the newspapers recently. In it she damned the bosses of MGM because they had refused to give her Freddie a salary raise—said she might just as well take him out of pictures and back to a normal childhood in England as to let him go on working for "practically nothing."

JANE WITHERS.

The "practically nothing" happens to be $1,100 a week, forty weeks a year! Forty-four thousand dollars a year—and a three-month vacation! Poor, underpaid little Freddie—he only earns as much in a day as the average American workman earns in approximately five weeks and a half! Out of it, he has to pay income tax and contribute $400 a month to the support of his parents, which leaves him hardly enough to buy an occasional Rolls Royce.

Perhaps Freddie's salary, as compared with the salaries paid some top-notch stars is small, but "Aunt Cissie" must have a very short memory for the family poverty in England if she can call $44,000 a year "practically nothing." And she fails to consider the fact that growing boys, who lose their cuteness in a very few years, lack permanent value in the estimation of a studio. But what is the use of defending the studio—Aunt Cissie's slighting reference to a salary of $1,100 a week for a 12-year-old kid probably gives you just as severe a pain in the neck as it gives me.

Much of the silver used in the plating of tableware today is reclaimed from the laboratories of Hollywood. Film is coated with silver nitrate. During the processes of development, chemical action causes the precipitation of free silver which collects as sediment in the "fixing" tanks. Every studio has installed a salvage plant and the value of the silver reclaimed during an average year is estimated at approximately $100,000. Most of it is purchased by silversmiths because of its purity . . . and that new spoon with which you stir your coffee today may be plated with a Garbo-Taylor kiss, a Grace Moore aria, or a Shirley Temple dance.

Had lunch with Jane Withers and her mother today and heard in detail the story of their recent vacation tour of the Northwest. Dominating the narrative was Mrs. Wither's determined effort to keep the studio bosses from knowing their whereabouts. "We've had enough experience to learn our lesson," she said, darkly. "Last year and the year before, we went on vacation trips — and had them ruined by studio commands to hurry back for re-takes." Suddenly, Mrs. Withers paused, a peculiar expression swept her face and she started to laugh. "Listen to me!" she gasepd. "Telling how we tried to dodge the studio—and six years ago, I would have given ten years of my life just to get Jane inside of one!"

Just to show how the wheel of fortune spins in Hollywood, make a note that in 1929 Tyrone Power played an unimportant bit in support of Tom Brown in "Tom Brown of Culver," whereas, in 1937, Tom Brown is playing a minor supporting role in Tyrone Power's starring picture, "In Old Chicago."

Overheard Porter Hall, one of Paramount's most distinguished character actors, moaning today about the difficulty of gaining recognition in his own studio. Each morning when he goes to the studio mail room to inquire for his mail, a clerk (at least a dozen work in that department) invariably stares at him blankly and asks his name. Trying to impress it on their memories, Porter has spelled his name for them, written it for them, and shouted it at them—and they always forget. "But if my pride has been wounded before," he said, "it was completely crushed today. When I asked if there was anything for Porter Hall, a new clerk looked me over appraisingly and barked, "You've got the wrong window, Buddy. Only actors get their mail at this one!"

Producer David L. Loew purchased the title "Fit for a King" from three separate authors who had published stories using the name. Thus he insured exclusive rights to it on the screen for the new Joe E. Brown comedy to be released by RKO Radio.

Anchor Room At Annapolis Soon to Open

Inaugural Is Set for Next Week; New Dance Still Holds Sway.

By Chanticleer

Hey! Hey! Comes now a new spot for the jaded seekers of diversion after dark. Beginning next week, the anchor sign will be out at the Annapolis Hotel, meaning that the new Anchor Room is receiving customers.

The idea is that the Anchor Room is to make not just a little ripple in the charted seas of after-dark entertainment but a whale of a big splash. Wednesday night is set for the opening and who wants to miss an opening?

• • • •

Having nothing better to do at the Mayfair between rounds of moosics by Jack Campbell, Leo Lisee and Beverly Stull, some one wondered what a cocktail would be like if the ingredients could magically be taken from these three personable performers. The answer: A glass of liquid rhythm filled with high spirits.

Johnnie Shaw, ye olde maestro at the Madrillon, is the fellow to take the blues out of a rainy day. Add the other members of his band and toss in Helen Forrest for a bit of vocalizing and you have the prescription to beat any "blue X-day."

• • • •

The interest in Boulevard Farms' Big Appling continues for the sensational new craze dance really has hit the town. Tonight the band again swings out in special Big Apple tunes and it's another big Big Apple night. Incidentally, it was ten couples from the Crystal School of Dance who did the initial introduction last week.

Plenty of talent and entertainment on the floor at the Lotus this week. It rides along smoothly under the title of "Medley in Rhythm," featuring soft shoe, challenge, tap, acrobatic and the entire bag of tricks in dancing. Al Norton and Bill Strickland and his orchestra hold up the home talent as usual.

It bears the name of the Blue Room, out there at the Shoreham, and it's brand-new, where diplomats and statesmen dine and dance the winter months away. The Blue Room is replacing the old ballroom and is new from top to bottom. The bandstand will be the largest in town. Opening set for October 1. At present Rosita and Fontana draw the crowds to the Terrace.

• • • •

Here and there: This is the way it works down at Brinkley's, the popular Southeast gathering spot. A stranger came in one night last week, watched the dancers and listened to the music and had a drink—and came back three nights later with a party of nine . . . Want a nice quiet place to dine? Try one of those marvelous dinners at the Hay-Adams House . . . Three Ms continue to entertain musically at the Hi Hat at the Ambassador . . . The Regatta Cocktail is being brought out as the newest concoction at the bar and to draw attention to the coming water event.

• • • •

Remember Judy Ellington, who sang for so long at the Lotus? She is visiting in town this week and now is being heard on the air with Rudy Vallee and his ork under the name of Roberta Lee. Tsk! Tsk! One just never knows who will pop up where as an old friend, does one? She'll be Steel Piering at Atlantic City next and then to the coast with the band.

Unlisted Trading Practice Defended

By the Associated Press.

Two officials of the Detroit Stock Exchange told the Securities Commission yesterday they regarded expansion of unlisted trading as essential to the exchange's continued operation.

Fred J. Winckler, president, and Clark W. J. Colby, secretary, testified before SEC examiners in behalf of an application for unlisted trading in the $5 par capital stock of Nash Kelvinator Corporation. The stock is registered on the New York and Boston Stock Exchanges and on a temporary basis on the Detroit and Philadelphia Stock Exchanges and on the San Francisco Curb Exchange.

Winckler and Colby said they regarded all of Michigan as "vicinity" of the Detroit Exchange. Out of a total of 8,800 stock holders of the Nash-Kelvinator issue, 1,000 are in Michigan, the examiners were told.

Wallace Gives Out New Sugar Quotas

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Wallace yesterday allotted quotas of about 22,000,000 pounds of sugar to foreign countries which pay full duty on shipments to the United States.

These nations supply less than half of 1 per cent of the total domestic consumption.

Peru received the largest increase over its previous allotment, 12,041,-216 pounds, to bring its revised 1937 quota to 23,755,315 pounds. The additional quotas may be either raw or refined sugars.

Other increases included: Dominican Republic, 7,584,752 pounds, to bring its 1937 quota to 14,253,232 pounds; Canada, 641,729 and 1,205,-934; United Kingdom, 398,850 and 749,517; Netherlands, 247,800 and 405,-665; Dutch East Indies, 240,429 and 451,813; Czechoslokavia, 299,480 and 562,782; Costa Rica, 23,427 and 44,024; Colombia, 304 and 571, and Belgium, 234,747 and 629,055.

AAA sugar officials said about 6,000,000 pounds of reserve quota for full duty countries this year remained unallotted.

Prisoners' Confessions Solve Chicago Murder

Chicago, Sept. 8 (AP).—Investigators claimed a solution today of the Grant Park moonlight slaying on the basis of confessions by two men under arrest.

The confessions, said Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan, established robbery as the motive for the fatal shooting of Herbert Lee, Evanston merchant, as he strolled through the downtown lakefront park with Grace Snyder, 23-year-old blonde.

Fairfax Shifts Pupils to Stop Overcrowding

Groveton-Woodlawn Area Relieved by Use of Community House.

Overcrowded class rooms greeted the teachers of the white schools of Fairfax County, Va., as classroom work started yesterday. County Supt. W. T. Woodson reported the greatest overcrowding in the Groveton, Oakton, Woodlawn and Vienna elementary schools and the Fairfax High School.

In order to relieve the congestion in the Groveton-Woodlawn area classrooms were established in the Woodlawn community house where the four upper grades will be taught for pupils in the Woodlawn area. This will relieve the Groveton school. The three lower grades of the Woodlawn School with 160 enrolled will continue at the old Woodlawn School building, pending completion of the new school building.

Pupils are being transported to the temporary school from Accotink, Engleside and Potters Hill.

Enrollment at the Fairfax High School increased from 456 last year to more than 600. Part of the increase is being taken care of in a large temporary building constructed this summer.

T. Woodson. Plans will be made to hold a county-wide officers' training course.

School Dance Tonight.

The first of a series of fall dances sponsored by the Annandale School and Community League will be held tonight at 9 p. m. in the auditorium of the Annandale School. The dances are being given by the league to purchase auditorium chairs.

Plans are being made for the annual reception for the teachers to be held at 8 p. m. September 17.

George Franklin Buell.

George Franklin Buell, 58, real estate dealer of northern Virginia and member of the Herndon, Va. town council, died yesterday while on a visit to Boston, Mass. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. from the Buell home in Herndon. Burial will be in the Chestnut Grove Cemetery.

He was born in Lowell, Ohio, the son of the late Maj. P. B. Buell and Ellen Mather Buell, founders of the town of Herndon.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emma Alexander Buell; a daughter, Miss Elizabeth A. Buell; a sister, Mrs. James Cockerille, of Orlando, Fla.; two brothers, Thomas R. Buell, of Tulsa, Okla., and Arthur Buell, of Herndon.

2 Rob Actress of Gems.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Yetta Zwerling, veteran Jewish actress, reported to police early yesterday she had been robbed of $20,000 in jewelry by two men who posed as telegraph messengers.

52 Constitution Delegates' Graves Will Be Decorated

Plans for decorating the graves of 52 of 55 delegates to the Philadelphia constitutional convention 150 years ago were announced yesterday by Representative Sol Bloom, director general of the Sesquicentennial Commission.

The rites will be conducted at noon next Friday in 13 States and the District. Abraham Baldwin, a signer, is buried in Rock Creek Cemetery, and the body of Elbridge Gerry, who did not sign, lies in Congressional Cemetery.

The main ceremony of the national observance will be at the tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon, which will be in charge of Representative Bloom. The services there will be broadcast over a coast-to-coast network.

Thirty-nine delegates signed the Constitution. Sixteen others did not, either because they left Philadelphia before the convention closed or because they were opponents of the document.

Two graves, those of Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer (Maryland) and William Houston (Georgia) could not be located by commission investigators. Another delegate, Judge John Lansing, of New York, vanished mysteriously in New York City in 1829. He was last seen heading for a Hudson River wharf to mail a letter.

Tentative plans call for Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen to decorate Gerry's resting place in Congressional Cemetery and Dr. George C. Havenner, civic leader, to place a wreath on the grave of Baldwin.

Hazen Intervenes And Lifts Ban on Amber Fog Lights

Let there be fog lights, said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen (in effect) yesterday and from now on there will be fog lights—Police Captain Milton D. Smith and an old traffic regulation notwithstanding.

Motorists recently have been using amber lights on the front of their cars to aid driving on foggy nights. Captain Smith, traffic division commander, unearthed an antiquated law which prohibited their use. He said warnings would be issued, followed by arrests.

But Commissioner Hazen had different ideas. His official auto is equipped with amber "fog" lights and he sees nothing wrong with them. So he told Capt. Smith not to make the arrests.

The old regulation provided that autos should be equipped with two headlights—"no more or no less." Commissioner Hazen said he would change the law, eliminating "no more or no less" and insert "at least two headlights."

An estimated 20,000 District motorists are using "fog" lights.

Thirty applications for parole will be considered by the District board of indeterminate sentence and parole today at Lorton, the secretary announced yesterday. Those eligible for parole are Evangeline C. Hill, Charles Harrison, Duncan Wright, Salvatore Tamorria, James A. Churchman, Ira B. Moore, Talbert Lee McCarthy, John Komlos, Arthur E. Miller, John Gill, John R. Strickland, Daniel Johnson, Gussivas Gaines, Joseph Moore, Charles E. Smith, James Hebron, Amos Mungo, Lee Bryant and Ira Ralph Gray.

McGonegal Heads Engineer Society

Alfred R. McGonegal, of Arlington, yesterday was elected president of the American Society of Sanitary Engineering, which is holding its convention at the Mayflower Hotel. McGonegal, who has been the District's chief plumbing inspector since 1909, defeated Edwin W. Cade, of Brooklyn, N. Y., by a vote of 39 to 30. Cade was running for re-election.

McGonegal was president of the society in 1931 and 1932. He has been with the local inspection force since 1900. It was stated during yesterday's meeting that he is largely responsible for Washington's "model plumbing code."

A veteran of the Spanish-American War, McGonegal was a National Guard captain on the Mexican border in 1916. During the World War he was a member of the Constructing Quartermaster's Corps.

Among the speakers yesterday was John B. Gordon, District director of sanitary engineering, who described Washington's sewage disposal plant at Blue Plains.

U. F. W. A. to Attempt Treasury Organization

A recruiting team of 150 United Federal Workers of America members will penetrate the Treasury Department here today in an effort to organize its 18,000 employes.

The drive, directed by Leonard Buck, chairman of the Treasury local membership committee, will continue for a week. The campaign will include personal contacts, literature and speaking at employe meetings.

Southern Railway Grants Pay Boost To Avert Walkout

A threatened strike of 1,000 Southern Railway freight handlers was averted last night, according to G. A. Link, representative of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, when the road offered a 5-cent-an-hour pay increase.

Company officials and the union agent had been deadlocked for three days in Southern's headquarters here. Wednesday it was learned Link was authorized to call a strike if terms were not reached.

Link declared pay rises had been granted to other branches of the railroad's service, but none had been given to freight handlers and miscellaneous employes belonging to the brotherhood until last night.

Woodside Typist Believed Suicide

A glass found beside the body of Miss Emera Johnson, 26-year-old Navy Yard typist, found dead in bed yesterday, contained one of the deadliest poisons known, Montgomery County police announced last night.

States Attorney James H. Pugh announced he was satisfied the case was a suicide.

The young woman's body was found fully clothed by her stepmother, Mrs. Bernice Johnson, who had gone to Miss Johnson's room in the Johnson home at 9011 First avenue, Woodside, Md., to awaken her.

Dr. H. H. Howlett, of Silver Spring, who was called, expressed the belief death occurred about an hour after the young woman came home at 11 p. m. Wednesday. Mrs. Johnson told authorities her stepdaughter had seemed moody earlier in the evening.

Miss Johnson's father is Wellington Boyd Johnson, retired patent attorney. Her mother, Mrs. Minnie Johnson, died in 1925.

Baker Denies Guilt On Assault Charge

John Acriprete, 65-year-old baker's helper, who is charged with shooting his employer in an argument over a pay cut, was held for the grand jury yesterday under $5,000 on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Arraigned before Police Court Judge Robert E. Mattingly, Acriprete pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing.

Police said the accused man shot George F. Martin, 42, of 5209 Fifth street northwest, Monday at Corby's Bakery. Martin, wounded in the abdomen, is still in critical condition at Emergency Hospital. Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty, of the homicide squad, said Acriprete stated he shot Martin during a fit of rage.

Luncheon to Launch 1937 Chest Campaign

Initial plans for the participation of the group solicitation unit in the tenth anniversary campaign of the Community Chest this fall will be made at a luncheon meeting of the unit to be held Tuesday noon at the Harrington Hotel. John L. Vandegrift, chairman, will preside and will outline the campaign plans.

The group solicitation unit, like other departments of the Community Chest, got away to an early start this year with the result that practically all of its chairmen have been named. In many of the divisions, keymen are now being selected and the intensive work of the organization is being launched.

League Faces Worst Situation In Its History

To Tackle Perils to Peace in Sessions Opening Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

Geneva, Sept. 9.—A world political situation which statesmen admitted holds greater perils to the peace of the world than at any time since the great war tonight confronted the League of Nations on the eve of its annual sessions.

The League Council will convene tomorrow and the assembly next Monday.

The League Council will tackle many problems, beginning with the dangerous ramifications of the Spanish Civil War.

The undeclared war between Japan and China undoubtedly will demand attention. China has indicated she will make an appeal against Japan under the League covenant.

Italy to Be 'Attacked.'

League officials predicted the Chinese would ask for League action under article 17, under which Japan would be invited to defend her case at the council table.

Russian circles tonight said Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Union's foreign commissar, will actively attack Italy in the League sessions.

The Spanish government at Valencia has asked that the council take suitable action on her contention that Italian warships have sunk Spanish merchantmen. It was believed Litvinoff, without directly dragging the Soviet-Italian dispute to the league, may seize upon the Spanish-Italian controversy to charge that Italy has been doing the same thing to Russian vessels as to Spanish government merchantmen.

Russians attached importance to the fact that Admiral Smirnoff, commander of the Soviet Black Sea fleet, will be here to back up Moscow's complaints against Italy.

The League economic committee tonight issued a warning that political appeasement in the world was necessary before there could be any far-reaching improvement in the economic situation. Enormous expenditures on armaments, he said, eventually may strike a blow at world prosperity.

The present industrial activity in the iron and steel industries, and even in consumption goods, was attributed to large expenditures in almost every country on armaments.

This is one of the factors, the committee said, which lead some authorities to regard the present trade improvements as "unlikely to last."

Kiwanis Club Votes Bennett Memorial

The Washington Kiwanis Club yesterday voted to establish a John S. Bennett Memorial Fund, honoring the late superintendent of Central Union Mission, at its weekly luncheon meeting at the Mayflower.

A letter from Dewey Zirkin, former club president, suggesting creation of the fund was read at the meeting. He pledged the first contribution of $25. George Mangan, president, announced that the plan was indorsed by the board of directors and favorable action by the membership followed.

Kiwanians wishing to contribute should communicate with Ed Shaw, secretary. A resolution of regret on Mr. Bennett's death was unanimously adopted.

Mangan, Shaw and Albert B. Van Voorhees, vice president, were elected delegates to the Capital District Kiwanis convention to be held at Staunton, Va., October 17-19. Alternates will be Dwight Burnham, Sidney Seidenman and Al Howard.

Yesterday's speaker was Robert Horton, radio commentator, who discussed the current international situation and said it would be folly for the United States to become embroiled in another world conflict.

Bank Sends $2,000, Bandits Free Pair

Muncie, Ind., Sept. 9 (AP).—Two men held Oliver W. Storer, millionaire Muncie banker, and his wife captive for two hours today while they waited for a clerk from Storer's bank to arrive and give them $2,000 in cash.

The men bound and gagged Mr. and Mrs. Storer and forced Storer to call a clerk in the bank and direct him to bring the money.

When the messenger arrived the bandits took the $2,000.

Chauffeur, Master And D.C. Police in Hide-Seek Game

A servant and master played hide and seek with one another in Washington last night, each searching for the other, as police tried vainly to bring them together.

A Mr. Rash, of Blackstone, Va., arrived here on business. His chauffeur, Norman Everett, colored, drove him to a downtown hotel. Rash told Everett to find a room for himself. The chauffeur drove off into the night.

Next morning the chauffeur called at the downtown hotel to take his master to Capitol Hill. But Mr. Rash wasn't even registered at the hotel.

The chauffeur appealed to police to locate Mr. Rash. The chauffeur forgot to leave his address with police. Shortly afterward Mr. Rash appealed to police to find his chauffeur and car.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Feeling Progressively "More Miserable," Not Knowing the Cause, Youth Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past three years I have been feeling progressively more miserable, without ever quite knowing what is wrong. I am always criticizing myself in some way, comparing myself unfavorably with others. Sometimes I feel lonely, and then I attribute my general wretchedness to the fact that I have few friends and am not particularly popular. Other times, I notice the college athletes (I attend a large university) and compare myself unfavorably with them. Then I doubt my being much of a man, and think my unrest is due to lack of masculinity. I swing with the wind, wondering why I feel badly, putting my finger first on this trait, then on that, as the possible source of trouble.

I can only believe that I have a sense of inferiority to most people around me. And yet, secretly, I feel superior to them. In prep school I stood high scholastically, graduating second in my class, and although my scholastic record has dropped to below average now, still I have that sense of mental superiority.

• • • •

Having managed to struggle along this far, I was sort of existing until graduation, with the expectation that the change of environment afterward would be helpful, as I believe I am half the victim of environment. But I have met a wonderful girl and I've got to achieve normalcy. She liked me a great deal when we first met, but I think my moods of despondency will lose her. Sometimes I am jealous of her (though I conceal it) and usually I imagine she could never like me and I feel despondent even when I am with her.

• • • •

I've got to overcome my sense of inferiority. Sometimes my mind runs feverishly; sometimes I forget my troubles; but I'm constantly discontented, either actively or passively. As Mephistopheles says: "Hail him who has a steadfast mind." That's what I want. Thanking you sincerely for any advice, I am. F. B. R.

Case for Physician.

DEAR F. B. R.: Yours, obviously, is a problem for a diagnostician with psychiatric insight. Your incipient melancholy may be due to glandular disorders which can be remedied by medication; or it may be that it is tied up with emotional inhibitions dating back to some unremembered shock, or chain of unfortunate experiences in early childhood. In any event, you should by all means avail yourself of expert scientific analysis and treatment.

• • • •

Any suggestions which I, a layman, might make for improving your social technique or for bolstering up your wobbly ego, would be directed more at your symptoms than at their cause. And it is the underlying cause of your increasing distress which must be ferreted out and treated if you are to become a normally happy, self-confident human being. M. H.

Loves Married Man.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 19 who has been silly enough to fall in love with a married man. I have known this man over a year, but never went out with him alone until a few weeks ago. He is one of the most interesting and charming persons I have ever known. He asked me, on the occasion that I went out with him, if I would live with him. I managed somehow to summon the courage to refuse, but I am afraid that I will not be able to refuse the second time, for I really love him. I do not know whether or not his married life is happy. He has never mentioned it. And I don't know how much he really thinks of me. Please give a very unhappy and troubled girl a little good, sound advice.

SHOULD KNOW BETTER.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR S. K. B.: The soundest advice I can give you is not to go out with this man again. The fact that he is married should be reason enough in itself for your not going. But the fact that you fancy yourself in love with him, and are flirting with the idea of agreeing to his insolently insulting proposition brands such a move as potential social—and possibly spiritual—suicide. I dare say he is perfectly happy at home, doesn't care two pins for you actually, and sooner or later would despise you with a vast and cold contempt if you were to yield to his suggestion. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Pink Eye Treatment.

Sooner or later everyone has a pink eye or two. It's a joke to the friends, but not so funny to the owner.

Pink eye is inflammation of the external layer of the eyeball—the conjunctiva. This mucous membrane covers the eyeball and is reflected over the inside of the eyelids. The inflammation is caused usually by infection with some sort of germ, but it may be caused by a chemical or by sunburn. The conjunctiva being a mucous membrane, discharges its outer cells when inflammation occurs—a catarrh—so that the acute cases are called carrhal conjunctivitis.

Simple, acute pink eye usually is due to the pneumococcus, a cousin of the germ that causes pneumonia, and is treated by simple measures of cleansing with salt solution or boric acid solution, and by antiseptics such as optochin or mercury or acroflavine. Silver preparations such as argyroll should not be used except under a physician's advice, and should not be continued for a long time, as they produce staining of the skin.

Chronic conjunctivitis or recurrent conjunctivitis may be due to repeated styes or infection of the hair follicles of the eyelid. These can be reduced or prevented by brushing the edge of the eyelid with a weak (5 per cent) solution of alcohol with a camel's hair brush.

A form of conjunctivitis picked up in swimming pools has been described, and yields best to the application of 2 per cent quinine bisulphate ointment.

Foreign bodies, such as cinders, bring on an acute condition of inflammation which is agonizing to the victim. Attempts to relieve this before calling a doctor are usually in order.

For this a drop of castor oil in the eye is advised by Dr. Henry S. Gradle (in Health and Life Series). The oil is heavy enough so that it frequently carries the cinder to the corner of the eye where it can easily be removed.

If this does not work, roll a clean piece of surgical cotton on a toothpick or match and dip it into sterile boric acid solution. Cinders usually lodge in the upper lid, so that should be rolled back over the toothpick and if the cinder can be seen, deftly picked off on the moistened cotton.

Juvenile Fall Frocks Show New Dress-Up Trend

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

BACK TO SCHOOL with smart new fall clothes! And the juvenile wardrobe may be as varied and interesting as that of any chic adult. Materials and styling this season are an incentive for individuality—school clothes in the current interpretation are no longer regimented.

For instance, little Joan may appear for her first day at school in a frock made on princess, dirndl, basque, quimpe, flared or straight lines (the pencil-box silhouette). It also may be one of a dozen popular materials, including cotton, rayon or silk crepe.

Plaids are big news in school clothes this fall—both cottons and woolens, dresses and coats. Plaid is also much in demand for trimming and accessory contrast for dark backgrounds. Theme song prints, odd flower patterns and clothes sponsored by juvenile movie stars are other "musts" in the small school girls' wardrobe.

White touches, such as dainty little collars, pipings, bandings and ric rac braid are noted on practically all of the children's dresses. Unique buttons are other details which give an otherwise simple dress an air of grown-up sophistication. Belts, which may be worn or not, as preferred, adorn almost every fall model (except the princess models); they are made of self-material and tie in a perky bow in either the back or front. Smocked yokes and waistlines add distinction to both cotton and silk dresses and are very popular with the younger set. Sleeves are short (very short), sometimes with a bit of shoulder detail and tight around the arm to give a quaint and smart puffed-effect.

When Joan goes to a party, she becomes a different personality and dresses in a quaintly charming little model which touches the floor in length. Children, according to Washington salespeople, love the long party dresses, and if they have their way in the purchasing, will never select a party dress of school length. Long dresses make them feel grown-up and dressed up. These are made of taffeta, point d'esprit, or novelty silks, trimmed with ribbon or velvet bows and sashes.

The quaintly charming party dress above is of novelty silk with velvet ribbon belt and sash. The hair circlet and bracelet are of rosebuds and forget-me-nots.

The lively print dress (above), for school, is made of spun rayon with a gay flower motif on a navy or brown background. It has a generously flared skirt, snugly fitted waist, cap sleeves and white collar edged with ric rac braid which extends to the waistline. It also features the short puffed sleeves.

Fifi D'Orsay Reveals How She Made Herself More Feminine

Change Your Personality Immediately If It Is Becoming Outmoded or Humdrum, She Advises Women.

By Genevieve Reynolds.

ARE YOU TIRED of being yourself? Does your personality seem outmoded or humdrum? Then change it immediately, advises Fifi D'Orsay, stage, radio and screen comedienne, who has been appearing this week at a local theater.

Miss D'Orsay should know whereof she speaks. She recently successfully changed her own personality and appearance both on the stage and on the screen.

"I found out that I was being typed," she explained, "and that would handicap me in getting new parts for the stage. Then my husband wanted me to develop a more feminine personality."

"Can any woman change her personality?" Miss D'Orsay was asked.

"Certainly," replied the vivacious comedienne, "just so long as she isn't the mother of 12 or 13 children. It would be impossible for such a woman to think much about herself or her husband."

How She Did It.

Pressed for details as to how she had changed from a hard-boiled flirt to an enticing coquette, Miss D'Orsay explained: "First I did away with my dyed, jet bangs that gave me a bold, hard look, and allowed my hair to become its natural color, a chestnut brown. Then I brushed my hair from my forehead to accentuate my eyes. This new coiffure, which my husband suggested, made my whole face softer and more refined.

"Next I quit wearing short, tight clothes and wore simple dresses that made me more feminine. Clothes don't create sex appeal. By that I mean a woman can have real sex appeal in slacks as well as in form-fitting gowns."

Miss D'Orsay believes that a woman's personality should subdue her clothes and stand out instead of permitting her clothes to subdue her personality. She advises the average woman to change her personality occasionally to avoid ruts, also to aid in keeping her husband or sweetheart interested.

What did Miss D'Orsay consider the most affective personality for a woman to possess?

"A truly charming personality must be adjustable," she said. "That is if you are around someone that wants to talk, let them talk and you listen intelligently. If they are quiet and want to be entertained, you must talk. You must have a different personality for each person and talk about things they are interested in, whether it be a nun, preacher, politician, banker, cowboy or writer."

"A really effective and successful personality will appeal to women and children as well as men."

Hits at Affectation.

She cautioned against being unnatural and affected. "For instance," she said, "if you are the quiet type, develop charm that goes with graciousness and dignity and don't try to be excitedly dramatic. That would be a flop for any woman. However, a certain image that you wish to convey can be created by illusion. People think I am very petite—about 5 feet tall. In reality, I am of average height, 5 feet 5 inches tall. My eyes look large, but they are small and flexible. I use them a great deal to express myself.

"Good looks are nothing. If you have them you are lucky. Illusion is a great deal. Personality is everything."

For holding husband or sweetheart Miss D'Orsay recommends the old French custom of keeping them guessing. "Let them wear the pants—that is, be the obvious boss," she said. "Concede to their wishes when they are right, but don't give in every time.

"A woman should keep glamorous for her husband. That is, keep neat and well dressed. But that doesn't mean just evening clothes. You can be glamorous even though you cook his meals and darn his socks if you will be versatile in your personality.

"By all means, don't nag your husband. Have confidence in him and he will repay that confidence by being true to you. Never let him suspect that you are suspicious of any of his actions."

Miss D'Orsay is proud of her new personality because she considers it natural and human. But more than anything else, she is happy over becoming an American citizen about three years ago.

Oberlin Ruled By Austerity 100 Years Ago

Girls Began Days of Learning to Be Ministers' Wives at 5 A. M.

MODERN college girls have a free and easy life in comparison with those who first registered at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, 100 years ago, as revealed by a history of the college compiled in connection with its centennial this fall.

Women students at Oberlin a century ago rose at 5 o'clock in the morning and went to bed at 10 at night. A half hour was given to devotion in the morning, after which rooms were cleaned. Hours of study followed. After lunch all the girls gathered in the living room and reported their own misdemeanors. Once a week they heard a lecture on engagements, marriage, hygiene, politeness, dress and the essential qualities needed to make a successful minister's wife.

Scrubbing floors, serving meals, washing the clothes and keeping clean rooms of the men students were among the first duties of the co-eds at this college. They received two and three-quarter cents an hour for this service. Furthermore, the men were forbidden in the rooms while the girls were putting them in order.

One hundred per cent of the women who enrolled in this first class married. Since that time the marriage rate among the co-eds and men students of the campus has declined until it is now only 60 per cent.

The course of study mapped out for these pioneer women included logic, rhetoric, political economy, natural philosophy, astronomy, chemistry, moral philosophy and sacred music.

Some hesistancy was shown in permitting the girls to study astronomy because it would necessitate their staying out after hours to study the "heavenly bodies." Composition classes for the women were held separately from the men since it was not considered advisable for the girls to read their themes before the men. Finally when the classes were combined several of the girls left the room to weep in privacy at the humiliation of such a procedure.

Outside interests permitted by the college authorities were the Female Moral Reform Society, literary societies and a musical union. Essays no such subjects as "The Proper Treatment of Licentious Men" were written and read by the members of the society.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

"ANYTHING that's fresh and starch-looking," was Megs stipulation for the rejuvenation of her living room. "Even for winter I can't stand a stuffy effect, maybe because I'm so tired of this dingy layout. I can't spend a lot on changes, but I do want, if possible, to get rid of that well-fed upholstered look."

Blue With Green.

To begin with, Meg had a plain green rug that had to be retained, but looked pretty hopeless because of its ugly color. A trip to the cleaners was the first step in the plans for redecorating. When it came back, it looked a lot better, in fact it turned out to be quite a nice, dusty light green, the grayed tone of current fashion. We suggested the palest of water-color blue walls . . . an unusual combination, with the green, but awfully smart. Then slip covers of faded blue denim with red welting for sofa and one chair, and for two other chairs slip covers of a plaid repeating the main colors in the room. Curtains of white dotted organdy with wood cornices painted red, some small extra cushions in red, very narrow picture frames painted red.

The stumbling block in the room was a big oil heater in the most prominent corner of the room. For that we prescribed a screen to go around it made of heavy unfinished plywood, on which Meg could draw a map of the county, locating the homes of her friends as well as the important landmarks. (Mostly in greens and blues with flecks of red—and done very modern to camouflage the fact that Meg was nobody's painter of note!)

Another problem was the upright piano which Meg felt very sentimental about, but she couldn't evade the fact that it wasn't the very last word. It ended up in the dining room, where Meg assembled all her music, including radio, victrola and music cabinet. That took a lot of the hardest wear off the living room, also it was a good place to put the discarded easy chairs from the living room. Being a large room, this dining room made a grand secondary living room, where the high school sons of the family could bring their gang for gay evenings . . . here they would be free to pull back the rug and do their worst, while Meg and George lazed over the evening papers in the undisturbed tranquillity of their own living room.

All-Around Fur Coat.

One of the most elaborate new fur garments for fall has recently been purchased by Rosalind Russell, movie actress.

It is a full-length coat, appropriate for day as well as formal evening wear, and created from blue fox.

The sleeves are three-quarter length, and the coat is belted in snug at the waistline with a girdle of navy suede.

Black for Co-eds.

Louisiana State University co-eds voted overwhelmingly for black as the color of colors during a pre-school census of style preferences made by a designer of college girl modes.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Sept. 9.

OUR STATE'S much-needed law requiring 72 hours' wait between the issuance of the license and the fateful marriage ceremony is now in effect, and Assemblywoman Jane Todd, of Westchester County, is no doubt a proud and happy mother, for Jane did it.

ALICE HUGHES.

Her own bailiwick was the headquarters of the midnight-marriage mess—slightly dazed youngsters speeding to a village, routing out a clerk and a justice, and being spliced before they knew what day it was. Undoubtedly it was a nefarious business, and it was high time it was stamped out. But is it? Probably not, for there never was a law passed that couldn't be outsmarted by crafty folk, and it is practically certain that matrimony here can be turned into a racket. Isn't it odd that everything becomes a racket sooner or later?

Now New York marriage licenses can't be put in play until three days after issue. But already some lads have thought up at least two ways of removing the sting from a worthy statute. One, they say, is to use predated licenses in small towns not equipped with electric automatic clocks. A second is for an unworthy justice to certify and file the paper three days after using it.

If these subterfuges are really workable, it looks as though we are still going to be cursed with off-side, early-morning marriages—with plenty of dizzy young lives mangled in the process. It's a shame, but maybe Assemblywoman Todd can think up a few new teeth for excellent law!

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Such odd things insist on happening here that we may really deserve our reputation for civic goofiness. Take the subways—please do. They are the scene of incredible goings-on. Only the other day I saw two men hopelessly stuck in a subway turnstile! Mr. John Ring, of Miami, plus suitcase, had become gummed up in the contraption, and our own gallant Peter Lynch, rushing to his rescue, got caught, too. And there they were, until a subway guard unlocked the dingue and got them out—unhurt, but ruffled. Mr. Ring went on his way, remarking that such a thing couldn't happen in Flordia, and he was quite right. Only here! Mr. Lynch, the hero, escaped with a sore neck and temper.

• • • •

Now that the autumn entertaining season is about to boom here, I wish you could come with me and visit the new Hostess Shop in one of our biggest stores. It would make you send out 100 invites pronto. I think the prize offering is a buffet supper and midnight snack outfit, which boasts real dinner-size plates. How a man suffers trying to balance a tiny plate filled with buffet tidbits! Of course, if you're going to be fancy and serve hot doodads, they have individual covered ramekins. Why, the darned shop nearly turned me into a hostess! . . .

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. George Washington, citizens of the State of New Jersey, have just sailed on the S. S. George Washington and their honeymoon—and the bride's name is Martha, too! Poor Mr. W. tells me that his whole life has been a succession of plush knee-breeches, as he has always been chosen to play The Father of His Country in school pageants. An honored name—but a burden, too, who can doubt?

• • • •

Another boat-boarder the other day was Miss Olga Tritt, one of this city's foremost jewelers, whose specialty is ferretting out precious stones to insert in her own designs. She must have gotten wind of some dandy gems, for she bolted off on the Ile de France on little more than an hour's notice.

Last year, feeling one of those old seeress fits coming on, I predicted big theatrical success for pretty Louise Platt, of Baltimore, then in a mild piece called "Spring Dance." Well, Table-Tipper Hughes reports that since then she has done well in films, and soon appears on Broadway in a leading role of "Midsummer Night," a comedy by Allan Scott. Just parade here girls, and get discovered!

YOUR FIGURE, MADAME!

"Do It Regularly!" Is First Rule of Beneficial Exercise.

By Ida Jean Kain.

IF YOU'RE GOING to exercise—and you are, of course—you might as well get something out of it.

The first exercise rule is: Don't start unless you intend to keep at it. In revising your curves, regularity in exercise is the chief essential. Five minutes a day can make an improvement in your figure, but it must be every day. Five minutes a day is 30 hours in a year. You are more likely to keep on with your exercise if you begin gingerly.

Perhaps you go to a gymnasium for your exercise. Fine! But go there every week. Continuity in exercise is the sole means of making your figure over.

It doesn't matter what time of day you exercise, as long as you are regular about it. Early morning exercise is splendid for those who have the time and a strong nervous system. Tense, nervous people should never exercise before breakfast. Midmorning is usually a convenient time for the housewife, while 5 o'clock in the evening is more likely to fit into the business woman's scheme of things.

You should never exercise immediately after meals. Wait an hour or two, so as not to interfere with digestion. Neither should you take vigorous exercise before retiring, as it may be too stimulating.

Your age determines the type of exercise you should take. This means your physiological, not your chronological, age. See your doctor for a checkover before taking even a single exercise.

Have a regular hour for exercise.

It's not necessary to exercise in a room that is so cold it makes you shiver. The air may be comfortably warm, as long as there is a circulation of fresh air.

Wear next to nothing when you exercise. Shorts or a bathing suit are fine if not too tight. Never have loose, dangling straps or binding clothing. If the bust is heavy, wear an uplift brassiere while exercising.

To be effective, exercise must be taken on a surface which does not yield to the body. Not only does a soft surface fail to offer any resistance to your bulges, but the spine assumes faulty posture while exercising in a prone position on a soft surface.

Before you jump into a strenuous exercise program, be prepared to follow these fundamental rules.

Haphazard exercise is worse than none. Remember that an overdose of exercise when you happen to be in the mood for it makes you stiff instead of supple.

Five Minutes a Day Will Control Figure if No Day Is Skipped.

Good Manners Aid Popularity

YOUR FIRST big formal, your first dress-up dinner date! You want to be poised, at ease. You don't want to let on, by schoolgirl slips, that it's all news to you.

Then know your etiquette! It's as big a help to popularity as a swishy dress, a slick hair-do.

Suppose—at a formal — you're stuck. Would you dance round and round like poor Polly? Or would you be as smart as Madge?

Madge never dances too long with one boy. If no one cuts in, she asks her partner to take her to her escort. After a few minutes' chat, she suggests that her escort swap dances for her as she knows few of the boys.

Or perhaps you find you're a hit! Keep it up. To compliments—"Where have you been all my life, gorgeous?" — return a smooth, "Waiting for this minute." Not a self-conscious titter.

You want to be poised, too, when you go to movies. If you're in a party, with Anne, Tom and Jack, don't seat yourself so it's you, Tom, Anne, Jack. The boys should be One and Four; the girls Two and Three.

And, at restaurants, show what a grand dinner date you are! Put purse and gloves in your lap instead of on the table where they're always in the way. Tell your beau what you want, not the waiter.

Other important etiquette points—what to do at the movies, dates, football games, visiting, how to act to the boy who pets—are explained in our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for the Teens." Follow its tips and enjoy popularity and good times.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Etiquette for the Teens," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Fairfax Show Will Lure Capital Society Tomorrow

Many Famous Jumpers and Hunters Will Perform in Arena; First Event Set for 10 a. m.; Mrs. Whitney Will Exhibit.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

While polo matches, golf and tennis tournaments, and a yachting classic entertain record corwds at a dozen sports centers over the East tomorrow, Capital sporting society—what there is of it at this time of the year—will find its fun at the Fairfax Horse and Pony Show getting under way in the morning at the Fairfax show grounds.

A local classic with a long and colorful history, this event is fondly regarded by both exhibitors and spectators as one of the best of early September's shows. To a certain extent its popularity for more than a generation has been due to its coming at a time when most owners have just taken their hunters and jumpers up from summer pastures and are concerned with getting them ready for fall events and the hunting season. A first-rate small show, such as the one at Fairfax has been and will be, serves as an excellent trial run for them.

Entry List Is Impressive

The list on entries is already impressive enough to insure keen competition, and indications are there will be numerous post entries. Rumors that Mrs. John Hay Whitney has decided to quit the ring have been spiked by the fact that her string of winners will be down from Llanghollen Farm for the event. Those who know their horses believe Mrs. Whitney's stable will offer stiff competition to U. S. Randles' entries—performers which have been doing rather well around here lately. Mrs. D. N. Lee, of Middleburg, also has entered a number of her horses, while George Benoit, of Fredericksburg, has three of his string entered. His daughter, Patsy Ann, and her guest, Eugenia Kelly, of Long Island, two very competent young horsewomen, will do most of the showing for Mr. Benoit's stable.

Miss Jane Kromer, daughter of the chief of cavalry, Gen. Leon B. Kromer, will ride her horse, "Jinwich," in a number of events; and Fenton Fadeley will ride his recent acquisition, the great jumper Apple Jack. The cavalry at Fort Myer is away on maneuvers and, consequently, will not be able to compete, with the exception of Capt. Jack Hines, who has entered a number of jumping events.

Among other exhibitors are Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Owen, of Washington; Miss Kay Simpson, of Arlington; Miss Patricia Downs, of Warrenton; Miss Anna Hedrick, Ernest Redman and Thomas N. De Lashmutt.

The opening class will begin at 10 a. m., and the 15 other classes will follow throughout the day, with a recess around noon for a luncheon featuring fried chicken and Virginia ham.

Cuban "Queen" Sails for Havana

Coming to the Capital not long ago with all the fanfare generally accorded visiting "royalty," Senorita Rosario de Blanck, Cuban Tobacco Queen, slipped back into town for another visit recently and was on her way back to her homeland before many persons knew of her second sojourn.

With her chaperone, Senora Alfonso Lawton, Senorita de Blanck was guest of the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, for the past four days. They sailed yesterday afternoon for Havana.

In contrast to the lovely young lady's first visit, which was climaxed by a brilliant party in her honor at the Cuban Embassy on the last day of August, the more recent one was given over more to sightseeing and less to formal entertainment. There were parties, yes, but mostly small, quickly arranged get-togethers for the guests and members of the embassy staff.

Mrs. Hull Was Tea Hostess

On Wednesday Senorita de Blanck and Senora Lawton were tea guests of Mrs. Cordell Hull in her apartment at the Carlton. There was much to talk about, for this was Senorita de Blanck's first visit to the United States, and she was bubbling over with excitement and enthusiasm about our country.

The daughter of the Cuban Minister to London, she has had an unusual background. She was born in Shanghai, educated in Italy and has traveled just about everywhere. Before leaving yesterday she said she hoped some day to come back to the United States for an extended visit.

Marriage Announced.

Miss Myrle Wood, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Wood, of Griffin, Ga., and John J. Donnelly, of Washington, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., were married August 31 in the rectory of St. Patrick's Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Scully and their son, Gerald, jr., have returned to their home after several weeks' vacation in Canada and a visit on the shores of Lake Erie with Dr. Scully's mother, Mrs. T. E. Scully, of Buffalo.

Johnsons Return.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Johnson, their son, Richard, and their daughter, Rosalie, returned to Washington Tuesday night after having spent two weeks in New York.

John Warriner Is Bridegroom Of Bette Edgar

Wedding at Bryn Mawr of Interest to Washington Society.

WASHINGTON society was interested in the wedding yesterday of Miss Bette Perry Edgar, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., formerly of Washington and Baltimore, to John Dorrance Warriner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dexter Warriner, of Philadelphia and Fernheim, Montrose, Pa. The bride is the daughter if Mr. and Mrs. William Arthur Edgar, of Bryn Mawr, and the wedding took place at the Church of the Redeemer there, Canon Ernest C. Earp officiating.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a satin gown of an ivory shade, with a train edged in rose-point lace, and a tulle veil, which fell from a cap made of old family rose-point and duchesse lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, gardenias and bouvardia.

Mrs. Richard M. Ehret, the bridegroom's sister, was matron of honor, and Miss Jeanne Alexandra Edgar was maid of honor for her sister. Their gowns of French blue moire were worn with matching velvet hats, and they carried Talisman roses and delphinium.

The bridesmaids, who wore ivory moire frocks with French blue velvet hats, were Miss Beatrice Churchman, Miss Helen Hays Ashbrook, Mrs. Thomas Lane Emory Eysman and Mrs. John Norman.

James Davis Winsor 3d was best man, and the ushers were Robert M. Williams, J. Tyson Stokes, Charles C. Townsend, William J. Robinson, James Devlin, jr., S. Atherton Middleton, Farnham Warriner and R. Dexter Warriner, brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Edgar wore a gown of blue pastel lace, trimmed with touches of fuchsia velvet, and a turban of that material and color. Mrs. Warriner, mother of the bridegroom, chose blue crepe with a matching beret.

Following a wedding trip to Mexico City, Mr. Warriner and his bride will reside at Newton Square, Pa., after October 18.

Jane Holt Wed To Ralph Chase

West Virginia Senator's Sister Becomes Bride of D. C. Attorney.

IN A WEDDING witnessed only by members of the immediate families, Miss Jane Holt, sister of Senator Rush Holt, yesterday afternoon became the bride of Ralph K. Chase, of Washington. The First Congressional Church in Old Greenwich, Conn., was the scene of the ceremony, at which the Rev. Alden S. Mosshammer officiated.

The bride, who was given in marrigae by her father, Dr. M. C. Holt, of Weston, W. Va., wore a white satin gown cut on princess lines and fashioned with a train. A tulle veil fell from her cap, which was trimmed with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of white flowers.

Mrs. M. C. Holt, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Her frock was of aquamarine velvet, and was floor-length style with flowing sleeves. Senator Rush Holt was best man.

Immediately after the wedding the couple left on their wedding trip, which will include a brief cruise before they return to Washington to make their home.

Mrs. Chase, who since her brother's election to the Senate has been one of the youngest Congressional hostesses, also has served as voluntary secretary in Senator Holt's office for the past two years. Although she is eight years his junior, she has—by her own admission— filled the role of "occasional counselor" to her brother.

The bridegroom, who until recently was associated with the Securities Exchange Commission, now is an attorney with the Maritime Commission. Yesterday's wedding came as a complete surprise to most of Mr. and Mrs. Chase's friends. Since their engagement was announced a few weeks ago, they have refused to divulge any detail of their wedding plans.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hechinger returned to Washington Tuesday after spending two months traveling through California and Canada.

ABOUT THE TOWN

With Dudley Harmon

Sunburned and full of health, Dorothy Cassard has returned to her apartment on R street (the same building, incidentally, where Mrs. Buchanan Merryman of "Aunt Bessie" fame makes her home). With her mother, Mrs. Harrison Cassard, she visited Panama as the guest of Col. and Mrs. John Long. Miss Cassard's fiance, Capt. Aex McCone, is stationed there. Their wedding will take place in November.

The Cassards visited Havana and spent three days in Bermuda on the way back to Washington.

ANOTHER returned traveler is Clement Conger, who has made quite a tour of New England and eastern Canada, including the Gaspe Peninsula. En route he visited Ann Child and her mother, Mrs. Pavenstedt, at their summer home in Dublin, N. H., and also stopped for a while with Gen. and Mrs. David Porter and their daughter, Carlile, at Prout's Neck, Maine. Both these girls made their debuts in Washington last year.

The Porters are at present living in Philadelphia, but Carlile hopes to come back again this winter for some of the Friday supper dances at the Sulgrave Club.

Speaking of Prout's Neck—another Washingtonian summering near there is Mrs. Higgins Chapin, who has a house at Small Point. She will open her Foxhall road residence shortly after September 20.

• • • •

AT A TIME when everybody else is coming home from somewhere, Mrs. William A. Moffett is leaving town. With her daughter, Beverly, and two grandchildren she will set out to the West Coast to visit her daughter, Mrs. Eliot McFarlane Moore, in California.

Mrs. Moffett's son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. George Moffett, have returned to their home in Norfolk, Va., after a visit at the family home on Massachusetts avenue.

Our own Charles Evans Hughes and John Nance Garner are the lucky possessors of "external youthfulness and poise" according to an article by Gelett Burgess on how to look 11 years younger than your age. The author of the Purple Cow, the Goops, and Are You a Bromide? wrote on this subject for a New York newspaper, but neglected to explain how he arrived at the figure of exactly 11.

Dental plates, and even paralysis are not criteria of age, according to Mr. Burgess. The youthful people on his list "all show curiosity about life, attention, expectancy, and social reciprocity. All have backs as an adolescent, none twiddle their fingers or feel of their faces. They don't make mugs when they talk or listen."

Others of interest to Washington on this list are Helen Hayes, who was born in the Capital; Ruth Bryan Owen and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Mr. Bugess adds that President Roosevelt, too, is youthful, "despite his tendency to grimace." The Vice President is one of the author's favorite examples of youthfulness, as he always shows "vigor and alertness."

IT'S JUST AS well that Doris Duke Cromwell is now in Honolulu and had to miss the recent launching in New York of her new $50,000 yacht. For after duly being splashed with champagne, the ship slid gracefully into the Harlem River only to get stuck in the mud, where it remained until pried loose.

Called the most expensive boat of its size, the craft is named the Kailani and Lahilahi. The Cromwells plan to use it for trips to and from their estate in Honolulu. It has aboard an orange canvas which can be spread on the roof to aid searchers in case the boat gets lost at sea. The blue and white pennant of the New York Yacht Club flies from the stern.

Miss McNeill To Be Honored

Mrs. Eugene Woodson Will Be Shower Hostess for Bride-to-Be.

Mrs. Eugene Woodson will entertain at a shower this afternoon in honor of Miss Frances McNeill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McNeill, of Washington, whose wedding to Joseph D. Easley will take place October 16 at her home.

The bride-to-be will have as her matron of honor and only attendant Mrs. George H. McNeill, of Morehead City, N. C., her sister-in-law. The ushers have not yet been announced. The Rev. William S. Abernathy will officiate.

The future bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Philip S. Easley, of St. Louis.

Mrs. Evan E. Lewis, widow of Col. Lewis, has as her guest her sister, Mrs. Harry Hill Bandholtz, widow of Maj. Gen. Bandholtz, who was sent to Hungary after the war with the Inter-Allied Military Mission.

Bandholtz saved the National Museum of Budapest from being destroyed after the war, and the statue now stands as an expression of the Hungarian people's gratitude.

Complimenting her sister, Mrs. Lewis entertained at a tea Wednesday afternoon. At the conclusion of her visit in Washington, Mrs. Bandholtz will return to her home in Constantine, Mich.

Women's Orchestra Guild Members Meet in October, Start Symphony Season With Wagnerian Concert on 31st

3,000 Association Memberships Goal of Group in D. C.

Organization Formed Last Year, Hopes for Capacity Audiences.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

The National Symphony Orchestra has replaced the weather as an all-time topic of conversation for members of the Orchestra Guild, which will have its first fall meeting in October. The members have been working all summer toward the guild's goals announced in its two slogans: "Capacity audiences" and "3,000 association memberships."

The guild was formed a year ago at the suggestion of Mrs. Eugene Byrnes, president of the Friday Morning Music Club and a member of the board of directors of the orchestra. It was her idea to form a women's auxiliary members of which would maintain interest in the orchestra in season and out; would talk about it to their friends, both from the standpoint of its musical contribution and its value as a civic enterprise, and would work to increase membership in the association and the number of season ticket subscribers.

The first meeting was at the Arts Club last October with 20 there at the invitation of Mrs. Byrnes, who had conferred with Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Mrs. Foster Adams and other members of the orchestra association regarding her plan. Following the organization of the guild it held monthly meetings, the first at the home of Mrs. Beale Howard. In January, Miss Alice Clapp entertained the members at a luncheon at the Sulgrave Club at which Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the orchestra was present and discussed its aims. In February, Mrs. Byrnes entertained at a Valentine tea. During March the members gave all of their attention to symphony fund campaign, with Mrs. Charles Bittinger as chairman of the Guild committee. The final tea of the season was given by Mrs. William J. Humphrey at her home in Belle Haven, Va., the last of April.

Spread News Of the Orchestra

Guild members pay no dues, but pledge themselves to do missionary work for the orchestra both at home and "abroad." They talk about it wherever they go—at bridge games, golf, over their teacups and above the click of their knitting needles. It is a subject of prime importance and one they discuss with convincing enthusiasm born of their own interest. There is always plenty to say, for the concerts of past seasons, the fine artists to be presented during the coming one and the success of Dr. Kindler in Hollywood Bowl, Chicago and other cities where he has been during the summer are all worth talking about.

To be eligible for membership in the guild one must be either a season-ticket subscriber or a sustaining member of the orchestra association. The sustaining membership of $25 goes to the fund which keeps the orchestra in Washington, paying the rental of the hall and the salaries of the 80 musicians in the organization. All summer the guild members have been active, bringing in additional patrons either as subscribers or association members.

Mrs. Byrnes and Mrs. Adams are chairmen of the guild and Mrs. Howard, Miss Mary Adams and Miss Clapp, honorary chairmen. Miss Blanche Polkinhorn is secretary and Mrs. R. H. Dunlap acts as liaison officer between the guild and the association.

Other members of the guild include Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Hugo Hesselbach, Mrs. Charles Keefer, Mrs. Adela K. Payne, Mrs. Walter Hilton, Miss Lucy Brickenstein, Mrs. Daniel Borden, Mrs. William E. Humphrey, Mme. Felian Garzia, Mrs. Clark Foreman, Mrs. Perkins Coville, Miss Grace Clifton, Mrs. Rodney Dean, Mrs. Douglas Bement, Miss Portia Oberly, Mrs. Fritz Ermarth, Mrs. Warren W. Grimes, Mrs. William T. Pierson, Mrs. William D. Searle, Mrs. Arthur Seaton, Mrs. J. Frank Staley, Miss Jean Stier, Mrs. William H. von Dayer, Mrs. Evan M. Wilson and Mrs. Boyd Taylor.

Orchestra Season Starts October 31

The orchestra season starts this year with the first of the Sunday concerts on October 31, devoted to a Wagnerian program with the Wagnerian Festival Singers as guest artists. November 14, Moritz Rosenthal, pianist, is being presented as guest artist; November 21 will be a program comprised of compositions by Washingtonians; December 12, Ruggiero Ricci, the boy violinist, will be soloist. December 19 the Beethoven Ninth Symphony will be presented with a chorus of 200 voices supplementing the orchestra.

On January 9 Rudolph Ganz, pianist and composer, is to be the soloist, January 23, Ruth Posselt, violinist; February 6, Dr. Walter Damrosch will come as guest conductor; February 20, a program of Viennese music has been announced; March 6, one devoted to opera; March 20, Percy Grainger, guest soloist, and April 3, the usual request program.

The eight midweek concerts will all be in the evening this year, beginning on Wednesday, November 10, with Lucrezia Bori as soloist; followed on December 15 by a program with Josef Hofmann as guest artist; January 19, with the Vienna Choir Boys; February 16, Mischa Elman; March 9, Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, and March 30, Richard Crooks.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

ONE OF THE CHEERIEST voices I know over the telephone is that of Miss Jo Coffin, assistant to the Public Printer, as she answers with a bright "Hello, hello!"—always two brisk greetings which make you feel as though she were glad you had called even before she hears your voice. And that's a real art for as busy a person as she who has to put aside work to say even a single "hello" when the telephone rings.

THE CONGRESSIONAL COUNTRY CLUB is planning a big party tomorrow night, a dinner, followed by a fashion show and dance.

If the weather is fair, the tables will be arranged on the terrace and the mannequins will parade through an aisle of them to the outside dance floor, across a platform, which will be placed there for the occasion, and back again among the diners. Perhaps I should have said this would be the plan if the weather were fair and warm enough. Although it would have been hard to believe this time last week, this is really a season when even starry skies do not guarantee weather that is pleasant for sitting out under them.

In case of a rainy or cold night, the dinner will be served inside with the tables circling the dance floor and a promenade arranged there for the models who display the fall fashions.

Mrs. Vern P. Simmons, the only woman member of the club's entertainment committee, has been in charge of arrangements for the affair but is leaving them today in the hands of Mrs. Frank Yates; for she takes the train tonight for Fresno, Calif., her former home, to spend a month. Mr. Simmons, who is also a member of the entertainment committee of the club, is making a western business trip and will join her in Fresno later to return with her to Washington.

The committee is headed by John Maury and includes Ted Grape, Dr. O. U. Singere, Andrew Walker and Charles H. Hillegeist.

Protect U. S. Democracy, Miss White Urges Women in Address to Philadelphia Club

APPEALING to American women to extend their work as preservers of the home to include the task of preserving democracy, Miss Earlene White, of Washington, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, yesterday addressed the Business and Professional Women's Clubs of Philadelphia, at its meeting commemorating the sesquicentennial of the Constitution.

"The reason American women were not guaranteed suffrage and other rights as citizens under the Constitution when it was drafted, is that the American women of 150 years ago were not organized and had no spokesman in the first Constitutional Convention," she said. "If they had been, the long fight for the adoption of the nineteenth amendment giving women the right to vote would have been unnecessary.

"History will furnish no such excuse for the women of the present day who fail to do their full duty as citizens. We are organized, we have spokesmen in the Cabinet, the United States Senate and in the House of Representatives. We are left without an alibi if we fail to do our share in this day and age to protect Democracy and to appreciate the Constitution of the United States.

Miss White will make another address on the Constitution when she speaks on the Constitution Day program of the Daughters of the American Revolution, September 17.

'Small Talks' For City Club

'Large Subjects' on Program of Discussions Opening in October.

THE WOMEN'S CITY CLUB, of which Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley is president, has announced an innovation in its winter program, in the addition of a series of "Small Talks on Large Subjects" at the clubhouse. Membership in the club is a pre-requisite to taking part in the series of discussions planned by the committee, which is headed by Miss Dorothy Dorian, Mrs. Gus A. Schuldt, Mrs. Nadine Lane Gallagher and Mrs. Julia Hopkins.

Speakers including Mrs. Augusta Spaulding, Mrs. Sylvia Ziskind, Mrs. Embert Le Lacheur and Mrs. Agnes Giles Newman will lead the groups in such subjects as Law Every Woman Should Know, Public Speaking and Personality Development, Short Story Writing and Parliamentary Law. There also will be several language courses.

The groups will begin about October 3, with enrollment open only to members on and after September 14. A feature of the plan, Mrs. Wiley said, is that membership in the Women's City Club is included in the enrollment of new students in the courses.

Junior Section Will Be Added By Chevy Chase Woman's Club

New Department to Be for Members Up to 30 or 35 Years Old; Parent Organization Opens Season October 20.

A new department is to be added to the Chevy Chase Woman's Club this season, a junior section for women up to the age of 30 or 35. Mrs. Arthur E. Nesbitt is in charge of organizing the new group and will announce definite details regarding it after she has had a meeting of her committee early in October.

The club, of which Mrs. Joseph T. Maguire is president, succeeding Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, opens its season October 20 with a general meeting of the membership at the Columbia Country Club, which will be preceded by a meeting of the executive board on October 13.

Officers for the coming year include Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, first vice president; Mrs. Edward H. Helmuth, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur T. Davenport, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul H. Butler, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Kenneth D. McRae, treasurer.

Mrs. Robert F. Griggs, program chairman, plans to emphasize during the year the contrast in benefits enjoyed by citizens of countries under democratic governments and those ruled by dictators.

The various section chairmen are now at work completing their plans for monthly meetings. Mrs. Douglas Griesemer, chairman of applied education, will present to Miss Janet Rastall this month the scholarship awarded her last spring. The club each season presents to a Chevy Chase student who has completed successfully the first two years of a college course, a scholarship for the junior or senior year. Miss Rastall will use it to continue her studies at Ohio State University, where she is majoring in social administration.

Music Section To Be Active

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Philip Gott, the music section will start its season the first week in November. It is one of the oldest departments of the club and provides the music for all of the monthly club meetings as well as having a musicale and tea for its own members, preparing a special musical program for the club membership at Christmas and a spring concert. It includes a choral of 50 voices which rehearses under the direction of Louis Potter.

Officers of the section in addition to Mrs. Gott are Mrs. William Collins, assistant chairman; Mrs. Carl Oeschle, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Wilson, treasurer.

The literature group will meet the fourth Friday in October instead of the third—its usual date—so as to follow rather than precede the opening program of the club. Mrs. Frederick F. Estenschied, chairman, who is at present touring the Gaspe Peninsula, plans a discussion of Pulitzer prize books at the first session.

Drama Committee To Meet Soon

Mrs. Irving M. Day, chairman of the drama section, will call a meeting of her committee in a few days. Other sections which will soon be announcing their fall programs are the art section, Mrs. Henry DeCoursey Adams, chairman; the French section, Mrs. F. S. Brackett, chairman; the evening section, Mrs. Alfred Savage, chairman; the nature section, Mrs. Harold C. Bryant, chairman; the social section, Mrs. Harrison Fitts, chairman, and the international relations section, Mrs. Edgar F. Fowler, chairman.

Mrs. H. S. Yohe, chairman of printing, will have the yearbook ready for the press this week. Mrs. Robert M. Barnett has been appointed chairman of welfare to succeed the late Mrs. Elmer D. Hays, in whose recent death the club feels a deep loss.

Life's Too Easy for Grid 'Rookies.'

By Shirley Povich.

To the slightly jaded eyes of this department, who has been traipsing around the country with big league ball teams for a dozen years, the manner in which Sammy Baugh was received by his new Washington Redskin playmates yesterday was something of a revelation, not to say utterly confounding.

It was the kind of a reception that Slinging Samuel had better not bank on next spring when he reports to the St. Petersburg training camp of the St. Louis Cardinals as a rookie infielder.

POVICH.

In the strictest sense, he's a rookie in professional football, too, but that didn't prevent such seasoned mercenaries as Cliff Battles, Turk Edwards, Ed Kawal and a host of others from extending the glad hand to Baugh. With a "Hi Ya, Keed," and clubby things like that Baugh was immediately welcomed into the Redskins' fold.

Coach Ray Flaherty personally escorted Slinging Sammy to the equipment room, picked out some nice new regalia for the fellow, asked him if he felt like playing, and then stuck him in the regular backfield of the Redskins without any more ado. Baugh, who had never played a game of professional football in his life, simply slid into the Redskins' family and was accepted right off the bat.

Maybe pro football is like that, but I couldn't help but visualize the vastly different reception Baugh is apt to get when he joins up with the Cardinals next spring. I'm a-thinking those big league ball players won't be quite so solicitous. They never are. Hard is the way of the baseball rookie.

Until a rookie proves himself, he's something of a punk to his big league teammates. Manager Frankie Frisch will hardly look up a nice new uniform for Baugh and stick him in the regular lineup the first day he reports. The chances are that Frisch will get around to talking to Baugh about two weeks after training begins and then is apt to inquire what his name might be. Before that, the big league manager will have mentally cursed the front office for cluttering up the training camp with a lot of college kids who ought to be in the bushes looking at some minor league pitching before they come up to the big leagues.

* * * *

And those locker room boys won't be tumbling over themselves to serve and wait upon Baugh like they were doing in the Redskins' dressing room yesterday. If Baugh is lucky, he'll be assigned a locker that is only a half mile from the shower bath and if he's real lucky, that locker will have some clothes hooks in it. Those locker room kids reserve for a rookie—especially an utterly green rookie—all the respect they reserve for an intruder in the night.

* * * *

I hope the Redskins haven't spoiled Baugh. I doubt if Slinging Sammy could be spoiled. The only thing big-shot about him is the way he plays football, if you know what I mean. The fellow acts like all this publicity is just a bit embarrasing, and he gives the impression that he'd like to hunt up an nice inconspicuous corner and hide out there until the opening whistle. The Cardinals shouldn't find him hard to get along with.

* * * *

But down at St. Pete there won't be any of those warm greetings that Baugh got yesterday from his football pals. It just isn't done in the big leagues where the ball players eye every newcomer as a threat to their own bread and butter and where they like to teach a rookie his place.

* * * *

Did you ever hear about Bucky Harris the first time he reported to a big league club? Well, he was bought by the Detroit Tigers just after the war and entrained for the training camp at Waxahachee, Tex., prepared to slug his way right into the Detroit lineup in those exhibition games. He had plenty of determination. But let Harris tell what happened:

* * * *

"I was down there in the Tigers' camp for almost a month and the nearest I got to a turn at bat was 20 feet. Every time I started to hit, one of those regulars would give me a dirty look and jostle me right out of the way. I haven't had a turn at bat with the Tigers yet. I was supposed to be pretty hot stuff in the minor leagues, but I couldn't get any closer to the Tigers' lineup than shagging flies. They turned me loose without even seeing me swing a bat."

It couldn't happen, though, in football. Any time a guy does in college what Baugh has done, he's almost a sure-shot to make good with the football pros. He's "in," and no questions asked. It's a long hop from college baseball to the big leagues, but the gap between the college gridiron and pro football ain't much, 'twould seem!

O'Hara Free After Posting $10,000 Bail

Track Head Is Charged With Criminal Libel by Governor.

By the Associated Press

Providence, R. I. (Friday), Sept. 10. Walter E. O'Hara, stormy central figure in a battle with Gov. Robert E. Quinn over the managing directorship of the Narragansett race track, early today pleaded innocent to two charges of criminal libel and was released on a total of $10,000 bail.

Surety was posted by Mayor Thomas McCoy, of Pawtucket. At the post-midnight arraignment before Judge James W. Lieghton in West Warwick District Court trial was set for September 17.

O'Hara then left with State police for the Providence District Court to face a similar charge of libel brought by William E. Beehan, Larchmont, N. Y. (general counsel for the Outdoor Advertising Co.). The second charge, like that brought by Quinn, was based on an article in O'Hara's newspaper.

The criminal libel charges were brought after publication of an early morning extra of O'Hara's Providence Star-Tribune, which contained a denunciation of the Governor.

The State racing commission had demanded that the Narragansett Racing Association show cause why its license should not be revoked. A denial of the commission's six allegations was contained in the edition which printed the gubernatorial denouncement.

"I promise to drive him (O'Hara) out of the State," the Governor said as O'Hara sat in the State supreme court chambers, where his counsel attempted to block the State racing commission ouster order.

The court adjourned shortly after 2 p. m. without acting on the removal order or on a motion of one

Budge Defeats Hunt, Battles Parker Today

Hunt and Van Ryn Bow in 3 Sets; Jadwiga Jedrzejowska and Helen Jacobs Reach Semifinals at Forest Hills.

By the Associated Press.

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 9.—Two contenders who had not lost a set kept those records clear and two others who had encountered early difficulties came through with ease today as the vacant semifinal brackets were filled in the combined men's and women's national singles championships at the West Side Tennis Club.

Four performances impressive enough in the efficiency of their execution to make up the lack of the thrills which attended yesterday's program were supplied 8,000 sun-drenched customers by J. Donald Budge, as strong a favorite as his hair is red; Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, the pulverizing Pole; compactly built Frankie Parker and chop-stroking Helen Jacobs.

Budge, with an ease that baffles description, mopped up the 19-year-old junior champion from Los Angeles, blond Joe Hunt, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4, and tomorrow will go up against Parker, his Davis Cup singles mate who took a 6—2, 12—10, 6—2 decision from Johnny Van Ryn, the Austin, Tex., double ace.

Miss Jedrzejowska, rarely faltering with the booming forehands that have established her as top choice for the women's crown, defeated Ruth Mary Hardwick, another hard hitter from England, at 6—4, 6—2. "Ja-Ja" thus moved into a meeting with Miss Jacobs, perennial contender and four-time former champion who won out at 7—5, 6—3, over Kay Stammers, petite English miss who was unable to keep her southpaw shots under control.

Tomorrow's other semifinals will pair Bobby Riggs, from Los Angeles, against Baron von Cramm, foreign survivor, and Anita Lizana, next to Miss Jedrzejowska on the list of favored invaders, against Dorothy May Bundy, the youngster who yesterday dismissed 1936 champion Alice Marble.

Budge and Miss Jedrzejowska, moving on toward the finals, have not dropped a set in four matches, nor been extended to the extra effort of winning a deuced set.

Nor were they threatened with the prospect of such a fate at any time today.

Budge, whose only defeat this year came in the national doubles final, waded through Hunt in their first set in ten minutes. An even exchange of service breaks kept Hunt up with his opponent through four games of the second, but by then Hunt was virtually dead on his feet and no obstacle at all as California Don cracked his service twice more, to take the set in 21 minutes.

The final one lasted 20—and only because Budge, letting up momentarily, found himself on the short end of a 4—1 count. At that point the Wimbledon winner put on the pressure for fair, leaving Hunt flat-footed with an all-court attack that allowed him only five points as Budge reeled off that many games in succession.

Men (Quarter-Finals).

J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Calif., defeated Joseph R. Hunt, Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4.

Frank A. Parker, Milwaukee Wis., defeated John Van Ryn, Austin, Tex., 6—2, 12—10, 6—2.

Women (Quarter-Finals).

Helen H. Jacobs, Berkeley, Calif., defeated Katharine Stammers, England, 7—5, 6—3.

Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland, defeated Ruth Mary Hardwick, England, 6—4 6—2.

Veterans (Semifinals).

Cedric A. Major, New York, defeated Arthur C. Monteil, jr., New York, 6—3, 5—7, 6—3.

Dr. Henrich Kleinschroth, Germany, defeated Henry H. Bassford, New York, 3—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Today's Schedule.

11:30 a. m.—Helen H. Jacobs, Berkeley, Calif. vs. Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland.

12:45 p. m.—J. Donald Budge, Oakland, Calif., vs. Frank A. Parker, Milwaukee, Wis.

Cochrane Gets 2-Yr. Contract

Detroit's Manager Sails on Foreign Tour.

Detroit, Sept. 9.—Gordon S. (Mickey) Cochrane prepared tonight to leave for Europe to complete his convalescence from a recent skull fracture, after signing a contract as nonplaying manager of the Detroit Tigers for 1938 and 1939.

Cochrane will leave tomorrow night and will be accompanied by Dr. Roy D. McClure, head of Henry Ford Hospital, who treated Cochrane after he was injured when struck in the head by a pitched ball late in May.

Terms of Cochrane's new contract were not announced.

Walter O. Briggs, jr., who made the announcement for the Detroit baseball company, said that Mickey planned to be a bench manager in the future. He has not played since he was injured.

Angel Child Triumphs.

Indianapolis, Sept. 9 (AP).—Angel Child, holder of the track trotting record, found the Indiana State Fair Grounds oval to her liking again today and trotted to victory in three straight heats of the $1,500 L. S. Ayres 2:09 trot.

Georgetown Backs Shine In Practice

Cava, Southpaw Passer, Good; Moulin, Nee, Valliquette Star.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Honors and bruises were evenly divided among the sophomores, juniors and seniors yesterday at Old Point Comfort, Va., where a ponderous pack of Georgetown gridmen bumped and thumped their way through the first scrimmage of the season. It was a pleasant afternoon for Head Coach Jack Hagerty and his assistants, who are beginning to see in this 1937 outfit a re-incarnation of Georgetown football of yore.

Willowly Elmer Moulin, Bill Valliquette and Frank Cava were the backfield stars, sharing the spotlight with their running and passing. Moulin, a rubbery-legged, shifty lad whose chances of usurping Tommy Keating's quarterback duties are good, and Valliquette ripped off gains of 10 to 30 yards during the brisk workout, and were constantly busting through the line. They displayed the brand of ball-carrying Georgetown needs this autumn to survive its tough schedule.

Cava, a southpaw passer, unwrapped one of the best pegging arms to pop up in a Blue and Gray encampment for several years, and had no difficulty making connections. Maury Nee and Jack Fleming, ends, looked their Saturday best offensively, Nee receiving passes, Fleming getting off long, soaring punts of 50 and 60 yards.

Lieut. Hank Hardwick, Navy coach, is using Bill Ingram, Bob Antrim and Frank Case, and Charley Reimann, a good running back, in his first-string backfield during scrimmage at Annapolis, and barring any unforeseen developments this quartet probably will start the opening game of the season. All, with the exception of Reimann, played regularly last season. The latter was a reserve.

Bronko Nagurski, claimant to the woild heavyweight rasslin' championship, will forget half nelsons, aeroplane spins, and leg-splits long enough this afternoon to visit Catholic University and watch the Cards practice. Bronko played at Minnesota when "Dutch" Bergman, now chief of the local school's grid forces, was coaching the backfield under "Fat" Spears, and naturally had Nagurski under his wing. "Dutch" hopes some of his boys will catch Nagurski's spirit, best he ever saw on a football field, and retain it throughout the year.

At Camp Letts, where George Washington's representatives are bivouacked. Nick Nicksick, the stocky brother of Pittsburgh's All-American of a few years ago, Mike Nicksick, moved a step nearer a regular backfield post with a sparkling exhibition of blocking and tackling in the afternoon scrimmage.

Acknowledged an excellent runner and passer, Nick has added blocking to his talents, it seems, for he won Backfield Coach Bill Reinhart's unstinted praise after an hour's work.

Jack Cooper Winner.

Toronto, Sept. 9 (AP).—White-haired Jack Cooper, of Kansas City, sent his speedboat Tops II over the finish line at 70.6 miles an hour tonight in the final of the 1-mile event for 225-cubic-inch motorboats on the Canadian national exhibition waterfront. The 10-mile world's championship event was canceled due to rough water.

World Swim Mark Is Set By Flanagan

Olympic Veteran Also Sets Three Other Records.

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—Broad-shouldered Ralph Flanagan, 20-year-old Olympic veteran from Miami, Fla., crammed four record-smashing performances into one race as he outclassed his field to win the Amateur Athletic Union's 1-mile swimming championship for the third straight year.

Flanagan, who finished fourth in the 400 meters and fifth in the 1,500 meters at Berlin in 1936, stole the show on the opening day of the A. A. U.'s annual title meet, successfully defending the first of three titles he won a year ago by 200 yards over young John Patton, jr., of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and erasing four marks set up by Jack Medica, great freestyle powerhouse from Seattle, Wash.

Swimming alone after the first length of the 55-yard course, Flanagan increased his margin with every long powerful stroke, to shatter the world and meet record of 20 minutes, 57.8 seconds, established by Medica in 1934, by 15.6 seconds. En route, he lowered Medica's 1,320-yard American record from 15:41.2 to 15:28, and trimmed the great Westerner's American 1,500-meter mark from 19:20 to 19:18.2.

Patton, competing in his first national championship outdoor meet, barely saved second place by inches over Burt Erich of New Haven, Conn. Elwood Woodling of Ohio State University was fourth.

Two defending champions, Tom Haynie of the University of Michigan, in the 220-yard freestyle, and the Detroit Athletic Club in the 300-meter medley relay, were dethroned by stars from the Lake Shore A. C., of Chicago.

Irving McCaffrey of the Lake Shore Club, swimming for the first time in national championship competition, scored a surprise triumph in the 220-yard freestyle, winning in 2:18.8 over Paul Wolf of the Los Angeles A. C., with Haynie third, and Andy Clark of the Detroit A. C., fourth.

Adolph Kiefer, boss of the world's backstrokers, sent the Lake Shore team off to a big lead in the medley relay event, and his teammates, Gus Horschke in the breaststroke, and 15-year-old Otto Jaretz in the free-style, held it to finish about eight yards ahead of the University of Michigan team of Haynie, Jack Kasley and Ed Hutchins.

Terranova, Peters Draw.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Frankie Terranova, veteran New York lightweight, and Nick Peters, a newcomer from Los Angeles, fought a fast and furious draw in an eight-round preliminary to the Paul Junior-Al Roth lightweight fight in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Unheralded Rookie Day's Mound Hero

Krakauskas, in Major Debut, Holds A's to 1 Hit in 7 Frames; Nats Score 9 Runs in 3d of 2d Game; Cohen Wins.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Rookies splurged all over the premises at Shibe Park today, with the Washington and Philadelphia clubs each sharing in sensational feats by the newcomers, but at the end of five hours of baseball the Nats owned both games of the double-header.

They were no pitching duels, those ball games. Washington won the opener, 13 to 6, by crushing the Athletics under a seven-run assault in the fourth inning. But you ain't heard nothing yet, because in the third inning of that second game the Nats came up with a nine-run haymaker that beat the A's, 12 to 10.

But transcending even those two slugging feats were the individual performances of two rookies, (1) Pitcher Joe Krakauskas, and (2) Firstbaseman Gene Hasson. Theirs was storybook stuff.

Hasson, a young fellow who joined the Athletics today from the Williamsport club of the N. Y. P. A. league, looked big league pitching in the eye for the first time in his life in the opening inning of that first game and socked one of Dick Lanahan's curves far, far over the right-field fence, with two men on base.

Krakauskas Sensational.

But Krakauskas' achievement was even more sensational and at least more lasting. Because the big blond righthander, who was called from the Trenton Club today by Manager Bucky Harris and was given a chance to pitch, because the game had been given up for lost, actually won it for the Nats.

Krakauskas relieved Dick Lanahan at the end of the second inning of that opening game after the A's had blasted the lefthander for a 6-0 lead and then he was something to watch. Absolutely unheralded, the stocky Polish lad who wasn't so hot back in Trenton, held the Athletics to one hit over the last seven innings and shut 'em out while the Nats overcame that Philadelphia lead.

The only guy to get a hit off Krakauskas was Wally Moses who doubled in the fourth. After that, Krakauskas pitched hitless ball, unfeazed by the fact that he issued seven walks.

There was nothing moderate about the way the A's started off against Lanahan in that first game. After coaxing three walks out of Lanahan to fill the bases with one out, they pushed five runs across with the aid of Hayes' single and young Hasson's homer with two on. They picked up another run in the second when Kuhel made a wild throw.

Kelly Yields Runs.

The Nats started hacking awey at that lead in the third inning when they nicked Harry Kelley for two runs, Pinch Hitter Jimmy Wasdell singled and Almada and Lewis followed with two-baggers. They banged away at Kelley in the fourth for two more runs, Case driving in one tally with a double to left and Rick Ferrel driving Case home.

Washington put on the first of its batting shows in the fifth, knocking Kelley out. Figuring in that uprising was a two-bagger by Almada, Travis' single, a walk to Sington, Kuhel's two-bagger, a walk to Myer, Hayes' wild throw to third base, Ambler's muff of Case's grounder and Rick Ferrell's home-run clout into the left-field seats with Case on base. That gave the Nats an 11-6 lead and, in the light of the pitching that Krakauskas was to turn in, the ball game.

At one point in the second game the Nats were in front, 9 to 1, but neither Ed Linke nor Syd Cohen was able to protect that margin with much success and Ray Phebus had to be called in to put down a 3-run uprising by the A's in the ninth that fell only 2 runs short of tying the score.

The story of that second game is the story of that third inning, when the Nats pushed across those 9 runs before the A's could get three hitters out. Here's how it happened:

KING'S HEIR gained slight lead at the close of the initial quarter mile, drew out steadily after leaving the backstretch and was never menaced, winning with speed to spare. RHODIUM, well placed from the start and coming to the outside in the stretch, closed willingly, gaining up in closing stride to take place over AT PLAY. The latter was forwardly placed throughout and while unable to keep pace with the winner just surrendered the place in the concluding stride.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COCOROCO, $11.20, $5.80, $4.60; HOT CAKE, $3.90, $3.10; BRIGHT BIRD, $6.70.

COCOROCO was slow to settle into his best stride and was far back for the opening five furlongs, gained clear sailing on the inside when bettering his position and threading his way through the leaders in the stretch, was clear at the end. HOT CAKE began bettering his position on the outside after rounding the far turn and closing stoutly through the stretch, managed to get up for place. BRIGHT BIRD was a forward factor all the way, came again after relinquishing the early command to show in front when KENTUCKY EAGLE began tiring.

DAILY DOUBLE, KING'S HEIR AND COCOROCO, PAID $25.00.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:17. Off 3:24. Winner, W. H. Labopriaux's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SONGSTOP, $8.10, $4.70, $3.40; STELLA MC, $10.90, $7.30; PICK OUT, $5.20.

SONGSTOP was never far from the pace, disposed of DORIS RENE for command and fighting it out willingly, lasted to stave off the bid of STELLA MC. The latter, hard ridden, saved ground leaving the backstretch, came to the outside in the closing drive and finishing stoutly just missed being along in time. PICK OUT, in front, fought it out willingly through the stretch, but was not good enough.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:52. Off 3:57. Winner, Brandon Stable's ch. h. TUTTICURIO took command midway down the backstretch, displayed good speed when establishing the pace, lost command to TARTARUS, but responding gamely to hard urging again, went to the front in the last sixteenth and held TARTARUS safe to the end. TARTARUS, quickest to begin, was steadied along until leaving the backstretch, went to the front when called upon and fighting it out courageously, was unable to go along with the winner in the closing stride. PANSY'S FIRST, in the first flight all the way, held on well.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:23. Off 4:27½. Winner, H. and H. Stock Farm's br. g. (3), by Brown Budd—Gotdit. Trained by T. H. Heard. Value to winner, $825; second, $125; third, $75; fourth $35. Time, 1:11.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANTHER CREEK, $22.90, $11.80, $5.50; GOOD CATCH, $25.20, $8.00; CORAMINE, $2.90.

PANTHER CREEK was steadied along while working his way forwardly in the first three furlongs, responded willingly to pressure when straightening out in the stretch and was up in the last strides. GOOD CATCH was steadied along in near pursuit of the pace, came willingly on the outside in the stretch, and was up for the place in the closing stride. CORAMINE, quickest to begin, drew away into a good lead and faltering in last few yards, was unable to stave off bid of first two.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 4:37. Off 5:01. Winner, Miss A. MANNERLY was steadied along in closest attendance of the pace established by ROSE PATH, wore the latter down before reaching the stretch, drawing out steadily in the last three-sixteenths. BATTLING GIRL, unable to keep pace early, closed a lot of ground in last three furlongs. ROSE PATH outran her field from the start, was rated along in front and holding on well, was unable to cope with the closing bid of the first two.

THIS WAY was never far from the pace, went to the front when BUDDING STAR began tiring and hard ridden at the end, outlasted BULL MARKET. The latter moved up gradually in the last half mile and saving all possible ground, was under punishment in the stretch and just failed to be along in time. BUDDING STAR displayed good speed in pacemaking, weakening in last three furlongs.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED ARIL, $33.00, $11.20, $6.10; DIAN, $5.00, $3.40; HAPPY FELLOW, $5.40.

RED ARIL, under steadying restraint while racing in near pursuit of the early pace, wore down the early leaders and hard ridden at the end, just lasted to hold DIAN. The latter, unable to keep up early, moved up willingly in the last three furlongs and responding gamely to punishment in the stretch, just failed to be up in time. HAPPY FELLOW, far back early, closed a big gap and was going stoutly at the close.

Red Sox Pound Yanks to Win, 13-7; Cards Break Chicago' Jinx,' 8-2

Champions' 4-Run Lead Short-Lived

Bostonians Slam Three Hurlers; St. Louis Trounces Root.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 9.—The Boston Red Sox wore themselves out today hitting and running the bases, but it was worth it, since they hammered their favorite "jinx," the Yankees, into a 13-to-7 defeat, ending the New Yorkers' six-game winning streak.

After spotting the Yanks four runs in the first frame, they came from behind twice to chalk up the victory with a 16-hit attack at the expense of the Yangee "M-men"—Blubber Malone, Johnny Murphy and Frank Makosky, with Murphy the official loser.

Archie McKain steadied after a shaky start and lasted until the seventh, when Footsie Marcum relieved him. It was McKain's eighth win of the year.

A five-run rally in the fourth, on four hits, started the Sox on the way. They had two more big innings, getting three in the seventh and four in the eighth, each on four hits.

3,000 See Baugh Give Sensational Passing Exhibition in Pro Debut

Texas Christian Aerial Artist in Near Perfect Display.

By Shirley Povich.

Three thousand onlookers, responding to the ballyhoo, watched the practice of the Redskins at Fairlawn yesterday and learned that it's true what they say about Sammy Baugh. He can pitch that football.

Baugh put on a show for the 3,000 and Coach Ray Flaherty and Owner George P. Marshall and his new Redskin playmates by rifling dozens of forward passes into the arms of his colleagues—long ones, short ones, flat ones, high ones—and any time the ball wasn't caught, it wasn't Baugh's fault.

He was throwing a light ball that his ends could pluck out of the air with the ease of picking grapes off a vine and he was throwing a heavy ball that ker-plunked into their stomachs when the need was for a fast, short pass over the center of the line. He was a passer with a change of pace.

Couldn't Get Hurt.

But he was operating from the advantage of a guy who was taking no chances on getting hurt, or being unduly rushed, because Coach Ray Flaherty had given his lads the office not to bruise Baugh, who was in a Redskin uniform for the first time. He simply aimed that oval and chucked it.

Baugh put on the show, but the best football during the 50-minute scrimmage under a boiling sun was offered up by Halfback Don Irwin, the Colgate grad, who is shaming the big names in the Redskin backfield with his ability to bang through the line and make his way through an open field.

In a half-dozen scrimmages in which the first team backfield operated behind the second team line, Irwin romped through holes, picked his way through a broken field and shook himself free for long dashes. On the strength of that performance he is deemed a certain starter in the Redskins' backfield next Thursday night against the Giants.

Little Peterson Shines.

Little Nelson Peterson (182 pounds) didn't do anything, either, to disturb the belief that he will be close to a regular back for the Redskins by his frequent dashes through and around the first team line yesterday. Tabbed as a scatback, Nelson tore off a series of lengthy gains.

Owner George Marshall, pacing the sidelines in his shirtsleeves and revealing the latest in suspenders (burgundy and gold), revelled, too, in the performance of Newcomer Max Grause, the 198-pound fullback, who is built on the lines of a Chinese pagoda.

Krause joined the team just before the scrimmage yesterday after being delayed at Chicago by his work in the municipal playground department, and was in the scrimmage 20 minutes after reporting to Coach Flaherty. He took his place in the regular backfield, caught some of Baugh's passes, barged through the line with all the gentility of a war tank and then went on the defense and hit Jim Barber so hard he sprained that tackle's ankle.

Barber as a result, may be lost to the Redskins for the opening game, a severe jolt to Flaherty's plans.

Add to League Lead as Ott's Bat Aids; Hubbell Bows.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, Sept. 9.—The New York Giants boosted their National League lead to three full games today by splitting a double-header with the Dodgers. They won the nightcap, 9 to 2, behind the effective relief pitching of Dick Coffman, after Carl Hubbell was clubbed, 5 to 1, by Brooklyn in the opener.

Led by Mel Ott, who whacked out three singles and a double to lead the attack in the nightcap, the Giants took a three-run lead in the first two innings and were never headed.

The even break, coupled with the Cubs' defeat at the hands of the Cardinals, added a full game to the Giants' National League lead.

Lefty Al Smith, who started for the Giants, was relieved by Coffman in the fourth, and the ace relief hurler, relying on his sharp-breaking curve, allowed just four hits over the last six frames.

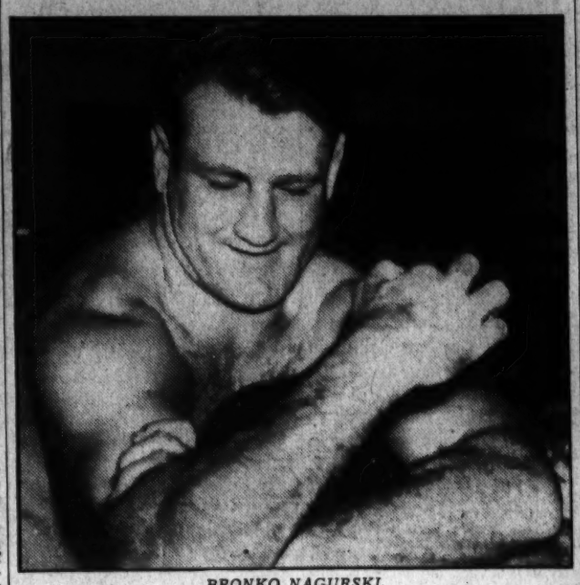
Nagurski Meets Cox In 'Title' Mat Bout



BRONKO NAGURSKI.

Bronko Nagurski, world's wrestling "king," who smashed his way to All-American and professional football fame with Minnesota and the Chicago Bears, will attempt to smash through a one-man line represented by Challenger Joe Cox, of Kansas, tonight at Griffith Stadium.

Nagurski will try to punch Cox into defeat just as he ripped college lines to shreds while at Minnesota during 1927, 1928 and 1929, and while with the Bears the following six years.

Tonight will make Nagurski's 244th match since he started wrestling. He has lost but one match in 243, and Joe Cox, so it happens, is the only grappler who has beaten him.

Kansas Cox is nobody's fool when it comes to matching holds. He has been victorious in 90 per cent of his matches.

Nagurski arrives in town this morning with his manager-trainer, Tony Stecher. At 12:15, at the Harrington Hotel, he will be honor guest at a banquet held by the Touchdown Club and the Minnesota State Society.

The former Minnesota All-American is calculated to put new life into the mat game.

Nagurski won the "title" three months ago in Minneapolis, throwing Dean Detton. Three weeks ago he went to the Pasific Coast, and in Los Angeles before 22,000 people who paid $33,000 he successfully "defended" his title against Vincent Lopez.

Promoter Joe Turner has guaranteed Nagurski $5,000 or 25 per cent of the gate to risk his "throne."

The "title match" will be one fall to a finish. A special referee, his name not to be divulged until mat time, will be imported from Philadelphia to handle the bout.

In the semi-windup Ray Steele, the Californian, faces Bill Sledge, and in 30-minute preliminaries Rudy Dusek tackles Al Mercier, a newcomer; Willie Davis opposes Abie Coleman and Billy Hanson opposes Ed Cook. First bout is at 8:30.

Post Notes on FISHING

By Bill Ackerman.

On Wednesday fishermen around Washington were making up fishing parties as they haven't done since early summer. Word had come up from several captains at Deale that the fish were in and just milling around on top. Rock, weakfish and blues—not in separate shoals, but mixed together.

ACKERMAN

The same word came from Seaside, and, from what we could glean from these reports, boatmen were running up to the Herring Bay area and fishing the same shoals—fish that have been hanging around the outer end of Holland Point Bar and the northwest buoy.

Grounds that we have always maintained supplied some of the finest weakfishing to be found anywhere in the upper bay. Until this year our best catches have always been bottom fishing and baiting with crab, and, when the pounds, early last month, started to lift them, that was our first thought. It was a poor one, however, for the only decent catches that have been made to date have been brought in by trollers.

The two northeast blows during the past two weeks had them striking several evenings in fine shape, but certainly not consistently, as they should be doing at this time of the year, for while one day any kind of a lure would take them on top, the next would require from 10 ounces to a pound of lead to make them even notice your baits. Party after party have reported running through shoals that paid not the slightest heed to lures of any kind and fished at all depths.

Anyhow, the fish are here, and it can't be long before the boats can depend on getting them consistently. We say that with crossed fingers, for this cockeyed season has produced so many reversals and oddities, that the fish might even leave without ever coming in under the shore on the grass beds—but it isn't likely.

The best bet for the week-end is any place on the Western Shore from Seaside to Annapolis Roads. Shoals of fish are almost solid over this whole section. Take with you every lure you have and a few bloodworms to boot. In all likelihood you will need them.

Have you ever tried the edge of the shoal ground inside the Annapolis bell buoy west of the entrance for those big tide-running weakfish? That is a favorite ground. Or the edge of the rocks around Thomas Point Light at the mouth of South River for that shoal of rock that have steadily been putting on weight during the past four years? The deep water off the Three Sisters between West and South rivers always has been good fishing grounds, as has Niggerhead Buoy, off West River.

Every indication that Solomons has thrown off the hard-luck streak that has so doggedly followed fishing parties out of there. Rock, weakfish and blues seem to be just as thick there as further up. Capt. Ed Bowen reports catches of blues —60 to the boat.

At Point Lookout, one of the largest catches of large hardheads that has come in for many weeks. J. A. Wright, fishing with Capt. Beale from Piney Point, on Tuesday, took them to the tune of 200, 1 small weakfish and 1 small blue.

Joe Turner gave us a ring last week with the idea of going to Oregon Inlet for Labor Day, but when we couldn't give him anything that sounded interesting, he turned to Ocean City for the bottom fishing he discovered with George King for the first time this summer. Another year and you won't be able to get the pair of them away from it. Joe pulled big weaks until he was tired, along with seabass and other fish that live on these gravel reefs from early June until cold weather.

The ladies sure put the bee on the men this past week by way of catching a little extra fishing tackle, and not because of exceptionally large fish but because they had the good sense to enter the largest fish they caught.

Frank Del Vechio presented Mrs. Agnes Gordon, of 912 Irving street northeast, with a swell salt water rod for the rock she caught at Tall Timbers. Says he has plenty more too, for the angler that brings in the largest fish each week. (While they are working on the Eastern Branch Eleventh Street Bridge, it is very little out of the way to stop at Del Vecchios and then cut through Virginia avenue to the Fifteenth Street Bridge. This is for the many southern Maryland anglers who figure to get their bait there at the last minute.)

There is little doubt that the weakfish that caught a fine reel from Ollie Atlas for Mrs. Evangeline Sunday, of 5029 Hitchins place, will be long remembered by her. It's a fine fish indeed, that has that kind of a reel tied to its tail. Caught fishing with Capt. L. M. Spriggs, at Piney Point on Sunday evening.

There are plenty more fine prizes for big fish if you will take them to your tackle dealer for entry. Rods, reels, tackle boxes and trips for you and your friends aboard some boat at several different fishing points, but if you wait for too big a one, it will be too late for there are only several more weeks of the contest.

Extremely sorry that R. F. Green, of 4310 Prospect avenue, Brentwood, Md., misunderstood that hardheads could be entered. Lugging that 4 pounder all the way in town for nothing was pretty much of a letdown. Better luck next time.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Gross Scoring 84

Mrs. R. P. Huff, Kenwood, Takes 2d Low Net at 81.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Mrs. C. S. Miller, member of the Army and Navy Country Club, won the annual play for the Corby Cup at Columbia yesterday, scoring 98 minus an 18 handicap for a net 80, and taking the cup to the Service Club for the first time in its history.

Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley continued her domination over the gross prizes in the women's tournaments by playing the back nine in 39 strokes and pairing it with an outgoing 45 for an 84, 3 strokes ahead of Marion Brown and Mrs. W. R. Stokes, who grossed 87.

Mrs. R. P. Huff, of Kenwood, an early finisher, led the field throughout the afternoon until Mrs. Miller, one of the late starters, posted her winning score. Mrs. Huff was 96—15—81.

Other prize winners included Mrs. J. Ludewig (Army and Navy) and Mrs. Stokes, with net 82's. Mrs. Ludewig scored 94—12—82, and Mrs. Stokes, 87—5—82. Marion Brown (Manor) was next with 87—4—83, including 42 putts, followed by Mrs. K. S. Giles (Indian Spring), 90—6—84.

Mrs. Earl Amick, of Columbia, won the seventh gross prize in a draw with Mrs. L. G. Pray (Manor), and Ellen Kincaid (Congressional). Mrs. Amick scored 99—14, 85; Mrs. Pray, 91—6, 85, and Miss Kincaid, 91—6, 85.

The Corby Cup triumph marked the first local prize-winning effort for Mrs. Miller, wife of a naval officer, who has spent only two years in the city. Mrs. Miller was out in 51 but returned in three less strokes to win the cup by the slim margin.

Mrs Meckley started with a bogey 7 on the first hole, after exploding over the green from a nearby trap and then 3-putting, but was out in 45, despite a quartet of 3-putt greens. She scored the lowest nine of the day coming back, a 39, fashioned from consistent golf, five 5s, a pair of 4s and two treys.

Columbia's tricky, lightning-fast greens took their toll of the field of 110 starters and only 28 turned in cards. Scores:

Devitt Opens Grid Practice; 15 Report

Fifteen candidates answered Coach Jim McNamara's call yesterday as Devitt Prep opened its football training period on the school field.

The squad, with but one returning regular, Jim Bott, tackle, is expected to be aided by Roderick Clay, last year's center at Tech, and Dodo Robinson, who played the same position at George Washington High in Alexandria last year.

An increase which will double the number of players is expected when school opens, McNamara announced. The prepmen face one of their hardest schedules in recent years, facing eight first-class teams, beginning September 25 against Mercersberg Academy.

Many of the best local players have already entered. Entries are being received until tomorrow night at the playground office in the District Building and the Tennis Shop at 1015 Fifteenth, street northwest.

Senior Golfer's 76 Leads Field

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP).—A race among the 1937 winner and two of his predecessors developed today as the second half of the field set out at Apawamis to wind up the year's championship of the United States Seniors Golf Association.

Richard H. Doughty, of Detroit, who annexed honors in his "freshman" year by tying Findlay S. Douglas' record score of 148, made an auspicious start in defense of his laurels by rounding the course in 77, five over par, but his round was eclipsed by Charles H. Jennings, of Roaring Gap, N. C. Jennings, winner in 1934 with a total of 158, set the pace for the field, numbering 157, with a superb 76, only four strokes over par figures for the course on which Harold Hilton, an invader from England, won the United States amateur title 26 years ago.

Most remarkable performance of all, however, was the 78 of Raleigh W. Lee, of the Scioto Club, Columbus, Ohio. Winner in 1933, Lee, a class D member of between 59 and 64 years, finished on the heels of his two juniors.

O'Hara Free After Posting $10,000 Bail

Track Head Is Charged With Criminal Libel by Governor.

of O'Hara's counsel that the racing commission be restrained from enforcing it.

The trackman left the courtroom unmolested and drove with his wife and Mayor Thomas McCoy of Pawtucket, a political friend, to his penthouse office at the big racing plant.

He hardly had time to arrive there when the "criminal libel" warrant was issued at the fourth Rhode Island District Court and was handed to a State police corporal by Gov. Quinn for immediate service.

The charges were prepared at the Governor's West Warwick home, where this afternoon he entertained members of the State police at an outing.

This was a day tense with swiftly moving attacks and counterattacks.

The State Racing Commission last night charged "unlawful" use of uncollected winners' money at Narragansett Park and ordered the Narragansett Racing Association to "show cause" why its license should not be revoked. A hearing was set for tomorrow on that and five other allegations contained in the order.

Then came the Star-Tribune extra, in which O'Hara denied the allegations and made a written denunciation of the Governor. He asserted all money due on uncashed winning pari-mutuel tickets was being held by the track.

The extra was labeled "libelous and scurrilous" by the Governor.

The full bench of the State Supreme Court opened its hearing of the case of "O'Hara vs. Kiernan" before a crowded chamber at a few minutes after 11 o'clock this morning. It was Francis J. Kiernan, chairman of the State Racing Commission, who made public the order that O'Hara be ousted as managing director of 'Gansett.

Columbia Match Finishes All Even

Capt. Harold C. Turner, Air Corps, and Freddie McLeod, Columbia professional, finished all square in a special match for a sizable wager yesterday with Harvey Johnson and Billy Dettweiler, played over the Columbia course.

Turner, links partner of Lieut. Ken Rogers, of Honolulu, recent quarter-finalist in the National Amateur where he lost to Champion Johnny Goodman, won the first hole by holing a 30-foot birdie putt to draw first blood and repeated on the seventeenth to erase a one-hole deficit and even the match.

The Turner-McLeod duo were 2 up after eight holes, McLeod winning the second with a birdie, but the Georgetown U. pair won three in a row at this point and were 1 up, leaving 11. They assumed the lead again on 14 on Johnson's 4, but were halved by Turner's second 30-footer of the day. The match is scheduled again in two weeks.

Hope Knowles Victor In Philly Net Play

Philadelphia, Sept. 9 (AP).—Hope Knowles, of Philadelphia, and Polly Morrill, of Boston, advanced today to the semi-finals in the girls' national tennis doubles championships today, beating christine Waples, of Chicago, and Marian Chester, of Milwaukee, 6-2, 6-0.

Gabler Holds Phils Safe as Mates Roll Up Decisive Runs.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Sept. 9. — Vince DiMaggio's homer with two on and two out in the sixth today enabled the Boston Bees to conclude their series with the Phillies with a 5-2 victory. Frank Gabler, who relieved Ira Hutchinson in the sixth and prevented further scoring, was credited with the triumph.

The Phillies had a 3-1 lead until the last of the sixth.

Singles by Del Young, Chuck Klein and Morris Arnovich accounted for the enemy's first-inning run, and the second came over after Cuccinello made a two-base error on Bill Atwood's grounder and Pitcher Claude Passeau singled in the second frame. A pass to Dolph Camilli and Arnovich's slashing two-bagger gave the Phillies their final counter in the fifth.

Wheat Prices Decline With Soviet Sales

Exports During Week Rise to 2,824,000 Bushels.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Increasing evidence of Russian competition in the wheat export field did much today to pull Chicago wheat prices down about a cent a bushel. The Russian grain-selling agency in Rotterdam was reported to have reopened in an effort to capture enlarged export business, and announcement was made that Russia's shipments of wheat this week to other European countries were the largest in two years. It was also emphasized that Black Sea forwardings of wheat this week totaled 2,824,000 bushels against 1,544,000 bushels the week previous.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅝ to 1 cent under yesterday's finish, September, 1.07½ to 1.07⅝; December, 1.09½ to 1.09⅝; May, 1.11¾ to 1.11⅞, with corn varying from 2½ decline to ⅝ advance; September, 1.05⅞ to 1.06¼; December, 63⅝ to 63½; May, 65 to 65¼. General Buying Rallies Cotton

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—Cotton recovered part of recent losses today on trade, foreign and commission house buying. December advanced from 9.08 to 9.21, but encountered late hedge selling and closed at 9.13. Final prices were 4 to 10 points net higher.

The market opened up 1 to 8 points in response to steadier Liverpool cables. Despite the increase of 505,000 bales in yesterday's Government crop indication to 16,098,000 bales, selling orders were scarce. Moderate buying was sufficient to cause advances of as much as 12 to 18 points at one time, but after support from abroad tapered off, reactions developed.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil was steady today, closing net unchanged to 3 points lower, with trade mixed. Steadiness of cotton and hogs promoted covering and speculative buying on which prices advanced 2 to 5 points early, but hedge selling increased on the upturn and the gain was lost. Sales were 111 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; September closed 7.57; October, 7.51; December, 7.55; January, 7.56; March, 7.63.

Public Buys Heavily With Market Drop

The Securities Commission said yesterday that the public bought heavily on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday, when the market fell sharply. On that day 14,443 odd-lot orders, involving 369,272 shares were placed, compared with 8,729 selling orders involving 258,848 shares.

The previous trading day, September 4, odd-lot buying orders totaled 2,271, involving 54,190 shares. Customers' selling orders totaled 1,467, involving 39,202 shares.

Holiday Cuts Bank Clearings In Past Week

But Total for 22 Cities Is 5.1 Per Cent Above Year Ago.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Sept. 9.—Due to the Labor Day holiday, bank transactions receded sharply from those of the week preceding, but rose above the like 1936 total, despite a slight drop in the New York figure. This rise followed the decline reported a week ago, which interrupted a series of five consecutive weekly advances.

Clearings for 22 leading cities for the five-day week ended September 8, aggregated $4,434,738,000, compared with $4,219,243,000 for the similar five-day period last year, an increase of 5.1 per cent, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

New York's clearance amounted to $2,690,568,000, against $2,696,971,000 last year, a loss of 0.2 per cent, while the total for the outside centers was $1,744,170,000, compared with $1,522,272,000 in the like 1936 week, a gain of 14.6 per cent. Clearings this week dropped $829,544,000 from the total of the week preceding.

Large Cotton Cargoes Going to the Orient

San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Foreign trade exports from the San Francisco harbor up to July 1 registered a 35 per cent gain over the same period a year ago, according to the Wells Fargo Bank.

The explanation of this large export increase lies largely in unusually heavy recent shipments of cotton to the Orient. Imports for the same period increased 11 per cent over a year ago.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Advance in Less Active Trading; U. S. Bonds Firm; Franc Weak.

New York, Sept. 9.—Steadiness in commodities, a firmer tone in Government bonds, and a moderate recovery in stocks on smaller trading marked the financial day. Turnover in stocks was around 1,500,000 shares. Prices fell off a little toward the close. December wheat dropped ⅝ of a cent to $1.09⅜ a bushel.

It requires more than one day to turn a bearish tide, but the improvement in stock prices today lifted the clouds of discouragement. At least it suggested that the war news was perhaps a minor influence, serving merely to bring uncertainties to a temporary climax. Brokerage house opinion remained rather bearish, on balance, but those outside that influence were inclined to look to the cheerful side.

On the news side the war developments at least were no more menacing than they have been recently. Perhaps the side that thinks no general European war is imminent gained followers. So far as autumn business is concerned, while no boom is in prospect the influence of large crops at high prices still is emphasized as a sustaining influence. It will do much to offset the continued burdens of labor troubles and rising costs of industrial production.

This week's review of the iron and steel trade made by the Iron Age says that steel companies "continue to expect a gradually rising trend in new business this month," but that the new orders may not come soon enough to prevent some further drop in output. The leading producer finds current business "good." Export steel is slower, partly because the Japanese are reducing their purchases, their weakening financial position no doubt being a factor.

Tax Policy.

A factor in the autumn retail trade, and in the near term outlook for stock prices as well, that has been discussed little recently is the dividend distribution. Last year at this time the outpouring of extra dividends had begun to count, not only in boosting stock prices but in stimulating sales as the small stockholders began to spend their dividends paid and in prospect. Distributions this year promise to be smaller. It begins to look as though the penalty tax on undistributed profits may not be repealed as soon as hoped, and the tendency naturally will be for corporations to count it in as permanent addition to production costs and to regulate the business and selling prices accordingly.

The recent decline in stocks has driven home the point that it might not always be easy to pay out profits, to escape the tax, and get the money by selling more stock. Moreover, the time when large cash reserves may be needed is drawing nearer. A policy of paying the high penalty tax and retaining the remainder of profits, outside the usual dividends, would be a sound one as protection against future recessions in business. It would nevertheless tend to curtail business expansion and ward off another boomlet in retail buying such as we had at last year's holiday season. In long run stock prices will follow actual profits rather than dividend payments, but from the total of profits, before tax, must be deducted the higher taxes which the corporation managements may decide to pay.

Early Gains.

In stocks the lead was kept by Steel, Chrysler and the industrial big fellows. Both Steel and Chrysler managed to surge above par on 3-point climbs before the lunch hour and kept in that vicinity fairly closely, although the usual pressure came around delivery time at 2:15. At their best stocks recovered 1 to 5 points, or nearly 40 per cent of their losses of the past two sessions. All groups participated in the rally. Mail order, motor, metal, railroad, rubber and chemical shares made the best gains.

Late selling canceled much of the early gains, but the market on balance was fairly soothing to those still out of danger but near the line. Among the heady risers were National Steel, Youngstown, Bethlehem, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Loews, Smelting, Howe Sound, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Texas, Standard Oil, Sears, Montgomery Ward and duPont. Pacific Coast and Vadsco Sales were particularly soft. Chesapeake Corporation recovered an earlier loss of nearly 3 points.

Odd Lot Purchases.

While it is common knowledge that many insiders in corporations, and a good share of Stock Exchange men sold stocks in July and August, and at the moment are preponderantly bearish (or at least the brokers are) the small lot buyer has not been discouraged. On the contrary, the recent break in prices merely stimulated the buying activity among the little fellows. The largest odd lot deals since the figures were first published by the SEC, on June 7, took place on Tuesday, the day of the big break. On balance the small investors bought 110,424 shares and number of orders to buy exceeded orders to sell by 5,714. The number of shares sold by the small investors has exceeded purchases on only one occasion, July 29.

Steel.

If Steel common is strong above par tomorrow, probably no great attention will be paid to the monthly report on shipments. The operating rate fell a little in August and probably tonnage sent out also declined, but it was nevertheless comparatively high. The market already has taken into account the fact that activity is not so great just now as had been hoped and seems to be taking the bearish view on the possibility of a good increase in steel orders this autumn. The price of Steel common, as that of most stocks, is trying to guess high or rising profits in coming months rather than to appraise the value of profits already made. In other words, it probably is not too high if we are going to have another good business year and is too high if next year brings even moderate business recession.

Stock Exchange Page Becomes a Member

New York, Sept. 9 (AP).—William J. Denham, 27, who yesterday was a page on the New York Stock Exchange floor, was eligible today to join the members on the floor. He was elected through the transfer to him of the seat of Herbert L. Jones. The youthful member, who has been in the employ of the exchange since his graduation from high school, has been admitted to partnership in the firm of Graves, Banning & Co., with which Jones is connected. Jones said he chose Denham to succeed him because of "his loyalty to the exchange and his keen interest in his work."

Borrowing by France Causes Drop in Francs

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP).—A Bank of France statement showing that the treasury is borrowing heavily precipitated a sharp slump in the franc today. The franc closed on official trading at 26.98 to the dollar compared with yesterday's 26.865. The fall continued later in unofficial trading, with the franc quoted at 27.05 to the dollar (or about $.037 to the franc).

The Bank of France statement for the week ended September 2 showed the treasury had taken another 800,000,000 francs in loans without interest. This brought the loan total to 3,900,000,000 of the 15,000,000,000 francs authorized by Finance Minister Bonnet's decree of June 30.

Banks Report $10,000,000 Idle Cash Rise

Excess Reserves Mount to $760,000,000 in Sept. 8 Week.

By the Associated Press.

Idle cash of member banks in the Federal Reserve System mounted $10,000,000 during the week ended September 8 to $760,000,000. The increase, noted in a Federal Reserve Board report today, followed a $10,000,000 drop in the banks' lendable funds, or excess reserves, last week.

Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks dropped $26,000,000 during the week ended September 8, and part of the sum withdrawn from the reserve institutions presumably found its way into commercial banks, bolstering their supplies of idle money.

Money in circulation, expanded to meet the Labor Day holiday demands, rising $65,000,000 to $6,597,000,000. This was $321,000,000 over the same week last year. The board reported its holdings of Government securities remained unchanged during the week at $2,526,000,000.

Members of the board's open market committee will meet tomorrow to survey credit conditions and the Government security market.

"STELLA DALLAS"

A Photo-serial in six chapters based on the SAMUEL GOLDWYN screenplay starring BARBARA STANWYCK and JOHN BOLES. Released thru UNITED ARTISTS. Now playing Loew's Palace.

CHAPTER 5

When Stella Dallas learns the horrible truth—that she is hurting the one person she loves best, her daughter, Laurel—she goes to Helen Morrison. Brokenly, she makes a bargain with Helen: she will divorce Stephen so that he can marry Helen provided Laurel can live with them and enjoy the advantages of their position and wealth.

In spite of Stella's valiant efforts to conceal her real reasons, Helen realizes that Stella is making a supreme sacrifice for her child. Helen, a mother herself, appreciates Stella's noble cation in spite of her brazen, stumbling manners. She agrees to Stella's plan.

At first Laurel is happy to be back on Long slland with her father and his new wife. She joins in the carefree existence, thinking that she will soon return to her mother. But when Helen informs her that in the future she is to remain permanently with them, Laurel stubbornly rebels against the arrangement. And when Helen gently breaks the news that it is her own mother's wish, the girl realizes that Stella overheard the gossip on the train—the gossip which branded her a common woman.

Laurel's loyalty and love are aroused to fever-pitch and she rushes back to her mother. But when Stella receives Helen's telegram announcing Laurel's return, she is more determined than ever that her plan shall not fail. Frantically, she disarranges her apartment, strews it with cheap magazines, puts on her showiest clothes nad sets out to find Ed Munn.

Bob Burns Says—

Takin' it all in all, I suppose we're a pretty nice race of people. The sense of fair play is pretty deep rooted in all of us, but I declare I believe the women folks have more conscience than the men. A lot'ta times, when a cashier gives a woman too much change back, she'll shove it in her purse and walk out real fast, but where a man would forget the incident and let it go, a woman's conscience'll hurt her and she'll wind up by takin' the change back.

I was stoppin' at Aunt Poody's house one day and I noticed she was havin' meat for dinner. When she got dinner all cooked and on the table and we started to sit down to eat, Aunt Poody says: "You know, I think we should invite the neighbors in for dinner. The butcher left their meat at our house by mistake and I don't think it'd be any more than fair."

Student's Failure To Learn Identity Held Death Cause

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP).—A coroner's jury was told today the drowning of William Graydon Hutton, 20, electrical school honor graduate, in Lake Michigan, August 28, followed his failure to learn his paternity.

John Lanocho, rooming house keeper, testified Hutton brooded over "Who am I? What am I?" and wrote repeatedly to a woman he believed to be his sister in Harrisonburg, Va. Two days after the drowning, letters arrived, Lanocho said, explaining the woman was not Hutton's sister but his mother and that his father was an English army officer.

Man With Record Of 21 Arrests Held

James R. Steele, 34, whose local police record lists 21 arrests, was held under $5,000 bond yesterday when arraigned in Police Court as a fugitive from justice. He is wanted for blowing a safe in Mount Rainier, Md.

Judge Robert E. Mattingly reduced bond from $30,000 to $5,000 when Steele said he intended to fight extradition. He was granted a continuance until October 12.

Detective Sergt. Richard Cox with Guy Rone seized Steele near his home in the 1200 block H street northwest Wednesday. Assistant District Attorney Karl Kindleberger set the high bond.

Detective Cox formerly worked with Steele's father in the fire department. Cox and the man he arrested were never chums, as The Post reported yesterday.

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Stanley P. Young, chief of the Biological Survey's division of game management, left here yesterday for the Carmen Mountain section of northeastern Coahuila, Mexico, to head an expedition for wildlife photography. The Chicago Academy of Sciences, the Smithsonian Institution and the National Zoological Park are co-operating.

The scientists hope to repeat some of the tricky work they did three years ago in northeastern Louisiana, when Young lured wolves into taking their own pictures at night. Otherwise, the objectives are to collect mammal specimens for the survey and the live capture of mammals for the National Zoological Park in Washington.

While in Mexico Young will confer with Government officials on the many wildlife problems, including game laws and regulations between the two countries. The Carmen Mountains, upon which the expedition will center, form a biological island south of the Rio Grande. They are near the middle of the largest area which was left unworked by the late Dr. E. W. Nelson, former Biological Survey chief, and Maj. E. A. Goldman, of the bureau, during extensive field operations.

No Soap

Maybe, and no doubt by this time, the whole soapy situation has been cleanly ironed out. The only reason for mentioning it is to show that eternal vigilance can sometimes make things worse.

It began when SEC people complained of the loud smell of the liquid soap in the washrooms. The U. F. W. A. Union considered it a matter for its adjustment committee. Morton Liftin began negotiations for the soap's removal. Everyone was agreeable to it. The commission's service section called the Interior Department and Interior called the soap contractor. The contractor assured all that the soap would be changed and speedily it was. All of the smelly soap disappeared.

Then—certainly for a number of days—they had no soap at all in the washrooms. No soap, not even the smelly kind. This was discommoding, and some thought that the adjustment committee had outvigilanced itself.

AAA Plans 'Average' Potato Quota in 1938

By the Associated Press.

Farm administration officials announced yesterday a proposal to control commercial potato acreage "at the average level" next year under the soil conservation act.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced all commercial potato producers would be asked to vote this month "on whether they want the 1938 agricultural conservation program to contain special provisions that would tend toward acreage stabilization for potatoes."

Officials said "each commercial producer would receive his fair share of the national quota, and would qualify for benefit payments if he did not exceed his quota."
